'ASSAULT' IN MARIN

VIET NAM 'MESS' TOLD BY GENERAL

Travis Air Force Base Commander Says U.S. 'Running Alongside'

By JOHN KEARNEY

Before flying for the weekend to unsettled Saigon, Brig. Gen. Maurice Casey, commander of Travis Air Force Base, stopped off in San Anselmo last night and told students at the San Francisco Theological Seminary:

"No one can dispute the fact that things there at present are in one heck of a mess."

The South Vietnamese are running in every direction at once, he said. With the signs of an impending coup, people are jockeying for position, each wanting to be on the side of the winner.

"The situation is giving a lift to the Communists, who are doing all they can to encourage the trouble. In the meantime, we Americans are running alongside trying to keep things together."

A frequent visitor to Viet Nam, Gen. Casey had come on campus to talk about American involvement at the suggestion of faculty member Professor David N. Freedman, a personal friend.

In the early afternoon he good-naturedly faced a barrage of questions from a seminary seminar on the Viet Nam crisis and later addressed the main body of students.

Questions were polite but forceful.

In answer to one student, he said he believed General Ky's strong-armed move against rebels in Da Nang came as a complete surprise to Washington.

"There is some debate about the timing and strength of Ky's action but to many people he seems quite an effective man," he said.

"This doesn't mean the government, the CIA, the State Department, the Defense Department or anyone else wouldn't like to see another man in charge. The problem is in finding someone who could take control again effectively."

As for the war, he said the fighting by Americans is on behalf of the Vietnamese. United States involvement consists of "trying to bring a state of settlement and peace to the government," he said.

The north, he added, is not being bombed as intensely as it could be. "We are saving targets and keeping the threshold of escalation down."

Air power was the advantage Americans had that the French didn't when that nation fought the ten-year war. "One thing it is doing is preventing the Viet Cong from taking the offensive," he maintained.

The latest trouble, he thought, could well be inspired from outside South Viet Nam. For years, the Buddhists took no active interest in government and he "would not be at all surprised" if Communists were in among the Buddhists working behind the scenes.

Johnson Calls For An End To Saigon Strife

Says U.S. Won't Dictate To Viet Government Brass

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today "we regret any diversion" in South Viet Nam from efforts to defeat the Communists or from the task of building a more democratic society.

Summoning about two dozen newsmen to a question-and-answer session in his oval office, Johnson began by reading a three - paragraph statement in which he said:

"We are watching the situation in Viet Nam closely. We believe everything possible should be done to bring the various factions to an understanding of the need for unity while the constitutional process is moving forward. That is what our people are trying to do."

NOT TO DICTATE

The President went on to say that the South Vietnamese are trying to build a nation in the midst of war and conceded "it is a hard and frustrating job and there is no easy answer—no instant solution—to any of

Aircraft Exodus On From Da Nang

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department said Saturday that some American planes are being withdrawn from the big U.S. air base at Da Nang, which has been subjected to mortar fire by South Vietnamese rebels.

A spokesman said the planes would remain in South Viet Nam, but would be based elsewhere. He said he did not know how many were being withdrawn.

The statement was in answer to an inquiry asking confirmation of a report that U.S. fighter-bombers were being withdrawn from the huge air base, which is a base for U.S. aerial raids into North Viet Nam as well as strikes against the Viet Cong in the south.

The base was hit by mortars and aerial bombs as a result of the violence in Da Nang between the Buddhists and forces loyal to South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The mortars apparently were fired deliberately by the rebels at the base. Fifteen Americans were wounded near the headquarters of U.S. Marine commander Gen. Leis W. Walt.

Officials described it as a "thinning out" of the planes, rather than a real evacuation of the base.

More than 100 planes are understood to be at the base normally.

Soldiers Capture Pagoda

SAIGON (UPI) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky dispatched two more battalions to Da Nang today and vowed his troops will crush the anti-government rebellion there. Mortars and aerial bombs from the worsening civil war hit the U.S. air base at Da Nang, wounding 15 Americans.

Saigon was torn by wild anti-government and anti-American demonstrations. Police used tear gas and clubs to put down one big demonstration but a new one broke out several hours later. Police also crushed that one but again Buddhists formed ranks for yet another.

PAGODA FALLS

In Da Nang, government forces captured the Buddhists' Tan Nanh pagoda, killing two more monks in violent street battles. Ky sent planes to bomb and strafe rebel positions but some of the American-made bombs fell on the U.S. air base. Rebel mortars hit the base apparently deliberately.

Rebel mortars which wounded 11 of the Americans also hit near the headquarters of U.S. Marine commanding Gen. Lewis W. Walt. He sternly warned both sides the Marines will not stand for a repeat performance.

U.S. POSITION

Attacks on the base could directly involve the Americans in a civil war of which they want no part. The rebels appealed Thursday to Walt for help in their fight against the government and threatened to destroy the air base if the Marines did not help them.

American officials in Washington were saying privately they believed the Ky government could not survive the growing opposition by Buddhists in the major cities and in the five

Governor Will Attend Hall Of Justice Rites

Gov. Edmond G. Brown will come to Marin Wednesday to lay the cornerstone for the $11 million Hall of Justice wing at Marin Civic Center.

The ceremony, starting at 10 a.m., will honor Mrs. Frank Lloyd Wright, widow of the famed architect who designed the Civic Center.

Before he goes to Civic Center, Brown will speak to members of the Marvelous Marin Breakfast Club, meeting at 7:30 a.m. at the Oakview Club in Terra Linda.

To graphically show the scope of Wright's long-range plan for the Civic Center site, imaginary "walls"—actually strings of colored pennants—will be run along the perimeters of every building which is to be built there. Visitors to the cemetery thus will be able to know precisely where such additions as the Veterans Memorial Building, county fair pavilion, art and natural history museums, community building and restaurant will be erected.

Brown is scheduled to place a capsule, containing books, newspapers and literature about Wright and the building in the footings of the new wing. Later, when the completed Hall of Justice is dedicated, a plaque will mark the location of the capsule. The building is due to be completed in 1968.

Also to be honored are Mrs. Norman B. Livermore of Ross and Fred F. Enemark of San

'Insanity' Testimony Jolts Trial

The court martial trying A/1c James O. Young for the first degree murder of a fellow airman at a Hamilton Air Force Base party was startled yesterday to hear a defense witness describe Young as insane at the time of the killing.

The disclosure immediately caused a 15-minute recess and the court martial was adjourned until 9 a.m. Monday.

Young is charged with the fatel stabbing of A/1c Robert M. Jennings during an angry argument at a Christmas Eve party at the base.

Shortly after the start of the defense case, Dr. John J. Preisinger Jr. of Mill Valley testified that Young's drunkenness at the time of the stabbing was "tantamount to insanity."

Lt. Col. Clarence D. Walters Jr., of Mather Air Force Base, prosecution attorney, immediately called for the recess. The court was adjourned without reconvening.

Preisinger had earlier testified Young was "not capable of deliberating such an act," and that he was "unable to premeditate it."

Lt. Col Arnold W. Johnson, chief of psychiatric services at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, also testified that "alcohol had impaired Young's ability to premeditate the act."

Marincello Petition Still Not Verified

The success of the petition calling the Marin County Board of Supervisors to either repeal the Marincello development ordinance or put it to popular vote was still in doubt today as a check of the 6,681 signatures continued.

John F. Musser Jr., assistant county clerk for elections, said today it was unlikely the job of checking would be completed until close to the deadline of midnight.

The petition must bear at least 6,187 verified signatures to be successful. This figure represents 10 per cent of votes cast in the 1962 general election.

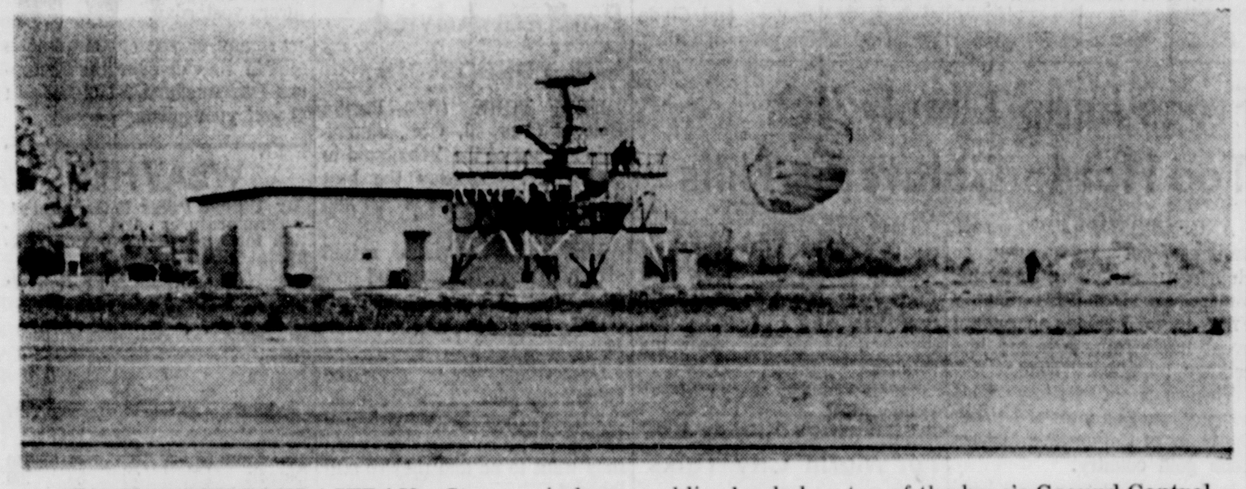

"There are too many signatures left unchecked to be able to say if the referendum will go through or not," Musser said at 11:30 a.m.

Petitions were organized by opponents to the Marincello project and, if successful, the referendum would leave the board with the choice of rescinding the ordinance or putting the issue on a ballot.

Marin's Draft Exams Stalled

The second in a series of tests to guide local draft boards in ruling on College of Marin student deferments was itself deferred today for a month. The exam papers didn't arrive on time.

The 180 students, who sat down at 8:30 a.m. in Olney Hall on the Kentfield campus to take the tests sponsored by the Selective Service System, were told to reregister for the June 24 examination.

Irwin P. Diamond, Dean of Students, said the exam papers should have arrived last night from Chicago. When they didn't, he put a call through to that city. A package was rushed to a Chicago airport, but the air freight was delayed.

Consultant To Study Need Of U.C. Campus In Marin

The University of California Board of Regents yesterday authorized a six-month study to look for an appropriate site for a new campus in San Francisco, Marin, Napa, Solano or Sonoma Counties.

The regents, meeting at Irvine in Southern California, hired Bechtel Corp. to conduct the search for a site for a new general campus.

The regents' action is the first step in implementing the university's long range growth plan, which the board approved in principle last February, President Clark Kerr said. Upon completion of the study, Bechtel will submit recommendations on possible sites to the regents.

As the growth plan indicated, President Kerr said, the Coordinating Council for Higher Education has concluded that a "definite ultimate need" exists for one new campus in the Bay Area and another in the greater Los Angeles area.

"The rapid rise in enrollment that is anticipated by the university for the late 1970's cannot be accommodated, even by fully utilizing existing campuses," President Kerr said.

Kerr said he expects the consultants to select three or four possible locations, rather than picking a single preferred site.

He said there has been, "curiosity and interest" as the result of suggestions that the campus be located within the city of San Francisco. However, he said city agencies had made no "firm" proposals.

Greyhound Strike Talks Pressed Over Weekend

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Federal mediators said yesterday that negotiations between Western Greyhound Lines and the Amalgamated Transit Union would continue through the weekend if necessary in an effort to settle a seven-day strike in 11 western states.

Negotiators "are working hard" on settling the dispute, mediators said.

The walkout last Sunday has tied up Greyhound service in California, Oregon, Washington, Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Wyoming and West Texas.

Some 5,000 employes are involved in the strike which has idled about 1,500 buses and left 100,000 passengers daily to find other means of transportation.

Redwood Decision Not Yet Reached

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Park Commission plans to take a stand at a meeting June 17 at Squaw Valley on the proposed Redwoods National Park.

The commission postponed, for a third time, yesterday action on a resolution endorsing President Johnson's plan for a 43-000-acre park.

Commission Chairman Alfred J. Atherton said the commissioners still have not decided if the park planned by the administration is big enough.

Fund Help Seen For Fast Transit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Alameda county Assemblyman Jeffery Cohelan said Friday he was "highly optimistic" that the Bay Area Rapid Transit District would receive financial aid—perhaps $80 million in the next five years—from the federal government.

An initial grant of $13 million might be granted next month, Cohelan and BART general manager B.R. Stokes told newsmen.

Bay Conservation Board Orders Pollution Study

A $45,000 study of how to set up a regional authority to preserve San Francisco Bay from fill and pollution was approved yesterday by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Dr. William F. Upton of San Rafael, one of 17 commissioners to vote for the study, said the group had tried unsuccessfully to get other agencies to join in the study.

Upton, a candidate for county supervisor, said, "Waiting for all relevant agencies to act might take so long we could lose our magnificent environment to excessive bay filling."

The Assn. of Bay Area Governments, assigned by the federal government as the bay's regional planning agency will have to approve the study before it begins.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—France will not have the benefit of "high performance" U.S.-made computers for its nuclear weapons program. The State Department acknowledged yesterday an export license for such electronic equipment was turned down this year and others may have been denied earlier.

Doctors Blast Abortion Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two San Francisco physicians accused of violating the state abortion law have been described as "two of the top obstetricians in town and in the state."

In addition, said Dr. George K. Herzog Jr., president of the San Francisco Medical Society, both men "have unassailable reputations and are highly esteemed in the profession."

The State Board of Medical Examiners yesterday filed noncriminal charges of unprofessional conduct against Dr. Seymour Smith and Dr. John P. Shively.

Dr. Smith, 63, said the women wanted to end their pregnancies because they had contracted German measles in the first months and feared their babies would be deformed.

Dr. Edmund Overstreet of the University of California Medical Center said a statewide defense fund will be raised to defend Smith and Shively. Earlier, the attorney general's office said some 40 San Francisco Bay Area physicians could be charged similarly.

Shively is chief of obstetrics at St. Luke's Hospital and Smith is a staff member at St. Francis Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Herzog said he has not performed an abortion, but added, "I'm sorry I haven't, because this is a distinguished company of doctors. They are humanitarians."

New Mystery In Mountain Case

SHADE GAP, Pa. (UPI) — State police today investigated "mysterious diggings" under the home of William D. Hollenbaugh, the deranged kidnaper of Peggy Ann Bradnick, to learn whether he was linked to the long disappearance of a six-year-old girl.

The girl Kathy Shea, disappeared from her home in Tyone, Pa., 45 miles northwest of here, March 18, 1965, while she was on her way to kindergarten.

Huntingdon County dist. atty. Warren Yocum said today he did not believe there was a connection between Hollenbaugh and the girl's disappearance.

Mrs. Mary Alice Shea, who still clings to a slender hope that Kathy may be found, placed little credence in the theory.

Peggy Ann, eager to return to school and resume the normal life of a Pennsylvania mountain girl, said Friday the man who kidnaped her and held her prisoner for seven days," treated me as well as he could."

Peggy Ann

Peggy Ann's prepared statement was read to newsmen by the Rev. Raymond Piper of the Shade Gap Evangelical United Brethren Church. He laid down strict ground rules for the news conference.

The rules precluded any questions pertaining to her seven day's captivity. The exclusive rights to that story have been sold to a national publication for more than $10,000.

The news conference came to an abrupt end when a reporter broke the rules and asked Peggy Ann a question about her ordeal. "All right, gentlemen, that ends the news conference," snapped the Rev. Mr. Piper.

As a result, little light was shed on what happened during the seven days.

Mother Battles Court Order

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — A court — appointed attorney says he will take to Superior Court a judge's order for a 21-year-old mother to be surgically sterilized as a condition of probation in a marijuana case.

The woman, Mrs. Nancy Hernandez, was arrested when police raided her apartment April 14. She was charged with being in a place marijuana was being used.

She pleaded guilty and was referred to the probation department, which she said told her she must undergo sterilization.

Her court-appointed attorney, Louis Renga, said he advised her to refuse. She was subsequently given a six-month sentence by Judge Frank P. Kearney of Santa Barbara Municipal Court, with sterilization a condition of probation.

The judge termed his order "nothing novel, legally, medically nor sociologically." The order was stayed until Monday.

Cross Set Ablaze Near Chicago

KENILWORTH, Ill. (AP)—An eight-foot wooden cross was set aflame last night in front of the only Negro-owned home in this fashionable North Shore suburb of Chicago.

Police attributed the work to pranksters. They said they knew of no Ku Klux Klan activity in the area.

The cross flared on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Calhoun. Calhoun, 46, is an attorney with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. His wife, Lillian, 42, is a reporter for the Chicago Sun-Times.

Mrs. Calhoun said she and her husband were away at the time and their oldest daughter, Laura, 14, minding their three children, was the only family member to see the cross.

Pickets Cause Fuss As Union Hears Johnson

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Anti-war demonstrators, waving placards and hoisting banners, tried unsuccessfully last night to upstage President Johnson's telephonic speech to the 20th annual constitutional convention of the United Auto Workers.

About 20 demonstartors, mostly students, slipped into the gallery of the Long Beach Arena, where some 6,000 delegates and visitors had crowded to hear Johnson's address and see Walter Reuther installed in his 11th term as UAW president.

As transmission of Johnson's speech began, the demonstrators produced a series of signs, some of which read:

"War is good business. Invest a son."

And, "Who voted for war?"

The incident caused a brief scuffle between demonstrators and several angry delegates who tried to seize the placards.

Distilling, although known to the ancients, was not applied to wine commercially until the 16th century when the brandy trade began.

LONG ODDS HIT LAS VEGAS

A sudden thunderstorm and winds up to 90 miles per hour slammed into a small, private airport outside Las Vegas, Nev., yesterday, destroying or damaging 30 light planes. Damage elsewhere in the Las Vegas valley was estimated at $500,00. (UPI Telephoto)

Mystery Witness Claims He Saw Union Death Car

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A mystery witness has identified painting contractor Max Ward as the driver of the car from which union official Dow Wilson was shot to death, according to a Grand Jury transcript.

The transcript also disclosed yesterday that an undercover policeman claimed he was negotiating still another killing when Ward was arrested in Sacramento.

Ward was one of five suspects indicted on charges of murder and conspiracy in the April 5 killing of Wilson on a San Francisco street. The Painters Union leader had been critical of the handling of the union's fringe benefit fund in Sacramento.

Ward and another suspect, Norman Call, were employer trustees of the fund.

The Grand Jury testimony showed that the mystery witness, who testified under the pseudonym of "Mr. Cruz", has been placed under 24-hour police protection.

Police said extreme precautions were being taken to protect "Mr. Cruz" because the triggerman in the Wilson killing was still at large and because the May 7 shotgun killing of Hayward union official Lloyd Green was also unsolved.

"Mr. Cruz" said he walked past the San Francisco Labor Temple about 1 a.m. on April 5 and saw a car parked across the street from an auto later identified as that of Wilson.

He said there were two men in the parked car as he passed it. One, he said, was in the driver's seat and the other was in the rear seat and appeared to be slouched down.

"The man in the driver's seat gave me the impression that perhaps he was looking for someone and he tilted over as if to recognize the person passing by," the witness told the Grand Jury.

"Mr. Cruz" said Ward was the driver.

He said that after he passed the parked car he heard shots and the auto sped off.

Donald Shierts, an intelligence officer for the Sacramento Police Department, told the Grand Jury that on May 11 he called Ward and posed as a thug looking for a "contract to kill."

Shierts said Ward showed interest and met him at a restaurant but said he could not make any decisions without contacting Call. The policeman quoted Ward as saying, "Norman Call is calling the shots. I am more or less going along for the ride."

Indicted besides Ward and Call were Carl M. Black, an Oakland accountant; Richard Rock of Mill Valley, a San Francisco tavern owner; and Clyde Simmond, an employe of Call.

Housewife Faces Shoplifting Charge

Dana Rosemary Garner, 39, of 338 Cardinal Court, Mill Valley, was booked at the county jail on a charge of petty theft yesterday after being arrested at the Emporium in the Northgate Shopping Center.

Mrs. Garner, who was accompanied by her 12-year-old daughter, was accused of taking a shirt and two pairs of pants valued at $21. She was released on $276 bail.

Hanoi Denies Border Zone Pact Breaking

TOKYO (AP) — North Viet Nam denied today reports that North Vietnamese troops crossed the 17th Parallel Thursday and attacked two military outposts south of the demilitarized zone.

Hanoi Radio, quoting the (North) Viet Nam News Agency, said the reports were "completely groundless."

Frogs Leap Limply: It's Too Hot In Calaveras Hills

ANGELS CAMP (UPI)—Frogs brought from as far away as Hungary were getting ready for tomorrow's Calavaras County Frog Jump Jubilee, an annual event made famous in the last century by Mark Twain.

Thousands of visitors were pouring into this town of 1,100 in the heart of California's Mother Lode gold country.

Both man and frog were hoping for cooler weather.

The temperature hit 90 yesterday and for a frog, that's lily pad-sitting weather.

Fifty-seven frogs were disqualified from the competition because they just wouldn't jump in the unseasonal heat.

But 100 frogs did make qualifying jumps.

Meanwhile, the competitors continued to arrive.

Frogs representing the governors of South Carolina and Colorado joined the nine gubernatorial frogs already in camp. Other governors were expected to send their entries later in the day.

Three frogs from Hungary arrived Friday. They were the winners of the U.S. Army frog jump in France. The frogs were imported for the event because the French frogs don't grow big enough.

Three Candidates Due For Marin City Talks

Two candidates for Congress and a representative for the incumbent will speak at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City tomorrow at 7:30 p.m., according to James Symons, pastor.

Phillip Drath, Thomas T. Storer and a spokesman for Representative Donald H. Clausen (R-First District) have been invited to speak. Symons said the meeting is sponsored by several southern Marin churches.

Sacramento Truce Not So Certain?

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The chairman of the powerful Senate Government Efficiency Committee says the constitutional revision-legislators' pay raise issue is far from settled.

Sen. Luther Gibson, D-Vallejo, said the measure, the key to a deadlock which has kept the Legislature in session longer than in any previous election year, still faces trouble in the Senate.

Gibson said Senate President Pro Tempore Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, may have been too optimistic when he announced Thursday that Senate-Assembly negotiators had reached a "tentative agreement" on a constitutional revision package.

He said he was far from satisfied with some parts of the proposed "compromise" and he hinted some other senators would not go along either.

The constitutional revision measure is currently in Gibson's Government Efficiency Committee.

If the Senate passes a constitutional revision, Assembly passage would be assured. The lower house is anxious to approve some sort of constitutional overhaul.

Burns said the "tentative agreement" called for revision of about one-third of the state's bulky Constitution along the lines suggested by a 60-member commission. The plan would permit the Legislature to set the salaries of its members and would authorize the lawmakers to meet in annual general sessions.

The constitutional revision measure is coupled with a bill increasing legislators' salaries from $6,000 to $17,500 a year under the terms of the "agreement." But the bill also includes stiff conflict of interest provisions intended to keep lawmakers from using their public offices for private gain.

Gibson said the conflict of interest provision was a major stumbling block.

He said the plan, as now proposed, would virtually prohibit lawyers in the Legislature from practicing their profession. He said many attorneys would have to retire from the Legislature if the proposal became law.

Two Britons Shove Off On Transatlantic Row

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Two hardy Englishmen pulled the first stroke on their oars this morning on a 3,000-mile trip to England.

Hundreds of well-wishers lined the shore as David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29, began the long row in their 15-foot craft, "Puffin."

They hope to make the trip in fewer than 55 days, breaking a 70-year-old record. They left the Long Creek marina shortly after 7 a.m. and were towed to the Virginia Beach ocean front.

They stopped about 400 yards offshore and were towed to the beach for a meeting with dignitaries and a final hot meal.

At least 300 persons lined the beach with cameras.

Asked if he had any misgivings about the trip, Johnstone replied: "Absolutely none. I'm looking forward to getting out there and meeting it all."

Hoare chimed in: "I'm straining at the bit right now."

They plan to ride the Gulf Stream current to the English shore and hope to row an average of 60 miles a day. The trip is expected to take 50 days.

Wolden Bribery Trial Drags On

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — All the testimony is in at the Superior Court bribery trial of Assessor Russell Wolden after 56-trial days but it may be June before there's a verdict.

Before recessing for the weekend prior to the start of closing arguments on Monday, the trial judge, Lewis Drucker, told the jurors yesterday.

"If any of you contemplate a trip to Hawaii over the Memorial Day weekend, I suggest you cancel your plans."

Mother Of Year Proffers Advice On Youngsters

NEW YORK (AP)—Bertha Holt of Creswell, Ore., America's Mother of the Year, said in New York yesterday the best way to bring up kids is "on and over your knee."

Mrs. Holt, 62, a widow, raised six children of her own and now is mother to eight Korean orphans ranging in age from 11 to 14.

Concerning "on or over the knee," she said, "I mean spanking them when they need it and sitting them on your lap when they want to be told they're still loved."

Named Mother of the Year by the American Mothers Committee, Mrs. Holt also was cited for operating an adoption service that has placed 3,500 Korean orphans with American families.

Sheila Kathleen Malone, 19, of 58 Piedmont Road, Larkspur, was charged with petty theft yesterday at the county jail after being arrested at the Value World department store in Larkspur in connection with the theft of various small items. She was released on $276 bail.

Scientists Leave War On Pollution

By FRED McGEHAN
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Nearly 100 of the government's top scientists are pulling out of the fight to clean up the nation's polluted waterways.

They are refusing to go along with a switch of anti-pollution activities from the Health, Education and Welfare department to the Interior department.

Although administrators were quick to deny it, the loss of the men probably means a delay in setting up federal standards for cleaning up rivers and lakes. Federal anti-pollution efforts are focused on establishing and then enforcing water quality standards.

Commissioner James M. Quigley of the federal Water Pollution Control Administration — the agency that was switched —admits "some key men" are being lost in the bureaucratic shuffle. But he claims the loss is not "irreparable."

A total of 96 water experts —all holding commissions in HEW's Public Health Service Corps—have chosen to retain their commissions rather than lose them in the switch to Interior.

Many of these men have long experience and want to retain liberal health and retirement benefits available through the corps.

Others are bright, younger biologists and sanitary engineers who are serving out their military obligations in the corps. A move to Interior would place them in the military draft market. These men are expected to shift into air pollution research.

Another 100 PHS officers are reported willing to resign their commissions and go to Interior, while 100 more are undecided.

Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall says he will "aggressively try to woo and win over some of the personnel waver-ing at the moment."

Udall plans to take water experts from other interior agencies and "move them in and out" of the pollution unit as needed. Observers, however, question whether these men have the skills to lay technical groundwork for water standards and research new ways of cleaning streams.

The importance of a strong technical staff — as distinguished from administrative and enforcement personnel — is emphasized by a July, 1967, deadline for setting federal water quality standards.

The 1965 federal anti-pollution bill places initial responsibility for forming standards with the states. If the states fail to draw guidelines — or draw too weak ones — the federal government must step in with its own criteria.

While there is doubt federal standards can be drawn by the 1967 deadline, Udall says his department will try.

Aside from the bureaucratic skirmishing, anti-pollution fighters are heartened by Udall's desire to wage a hard-hitting cleanup campaign.

The secretary has promised to devote a quarter of his time to the new agency and has told governors: "Please pick up the telephone and call me any time you feel our mutual efforts can advance the cause of pollution abatement in your state."

the problems they face."

His statement concluded:

"We are not in Viet Nam to dictate what form of government they should have. Our wish is to see them increasingly able to manage their own affairs with the participation of an ever broader share of the population. We regret any diversion from that task and from efforts to defeat the Communists' attempt to take over South Viet Nam."

POLLS DISCUSSED

Asked about public opinion polls which indicate that support for his handling of the Vietnamese situation has been slipping, Johnson said that worry and dissatisfaction were normal the longer American forces are involved and the greater the sacrifices made by this country.

He said that if anyone was worried about the course of events, "you can double that for the President."

He said he leads the parade of those who want to get out of Viet Nam — but only after achieving the objective of thwarting Communist ambitions.

Johnson parried most questions dealing with Viet Nam, saying further discussion by him would contribute nothing.

That was his response when he was asked to state his current attitude toward South Viet Nam's premier, Nguyen Cao Ky.

Atom Sub's Visit Worries Japan

YOKOSUKA, Japan (UPI) — Mayor Masayoshi Nagano said today he is "deeply worried" by reports that an American nuclear submarine will dock at the big U.S. Naval base here next week.

"I fear that the visit of a U.S. submarine to Yokosuka will cause needless disturbance . . . at a time when the Japanese people are concerned about the situation in Viet Nam," Nagano said in a statement issued at a Tokyo hospital where he is being treated for a hip injury.

National police headquarters has arranged to send 5,000 extra policemen to Yokosuka while the submarine is there to deal with protest demonstrations likely to be staged by Communists and other leftists.

northern prominces where military leaders of the 1st Corps are arrayed against him.

But in a fiery speech at the coastal town of Vung Tau south of Saigon, Ky vowed his troops will not leave Da Nang until "discipline and order are restored there."

There were reports in Saigon he had sent two more battalions—1,000 to 1,200 men—to join the six battalions already in Da Nang. The rebels in Da Nang itself were believed to number a few hundreds.

The war against the Communist Viet Cong, meanwhile, appeared almost at a standstill. There were no reports of major actions against the Communists although the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division using a new kind of warfare chased Viet Cong with helicopters through an elephant grass valley 275 miles north of Saigon, killing 130 in four days.

To Americans one of the most disturbing developments was the increasing bitterness between the two sides. In Da Nang, where the two sides previously had appeared embarrassed about the entire matter, a loyalist officer shot in cold blood a rebel captive brought before him.

In Saigon, where demonstration after demonstration swept the city in an effort to bring down the Ky regime, a Vietnamese officer referred to the Buddhist monks as "Communists in yellow robes." The Buddhists themselves were so inflamed a youth tried to disembowel himself in public to protest the government; his knife was dull and he failed to kill himself.

There was no accurate report of the number killed in the fighting in Da Nang but the casualties were believed to number several hundred wounded. The Buddhists have reported up to 25 dead; rebel Gen. Ton That Dinh, one of the ousted 1st Corps commanders, said 50 were killed by the government.

The U.S. warned rebellious Buddhists today it will "exercise its right of self-defense" if there are any further rebel attacks on U.S. installations here, reliable sources said.

Sources in Saigon said the warning of possible retaliation was sent to Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang in rebel-held Hue, 60 miles northwest of Da Nang.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Heat Of Passion And Murderers

Fifi's flirting with other men always made her husband jealous. Sam roughed her up, but Fifi went on her flirting ways, especially with one man. There was no evidence of wrong doing on her part. Sam finally caught up with them one day. He shot her admirer dead.

In court Sam pleaded innocent to a charge of murder. Sam claimed that his offense was manslaughter at most. Yet the court convicted him of second degree murder and sentenced him to prison for from five years to life.

Murder is the unlawful killing of a person "with malice aforethought." Manslaughter is a killing without malice, or in the heat of passion due to great provocation.

Jealousy alone was not enough to warrant a reduction of the charge to manslaugher, the court held. Sam was jealous of everyone who was friendly to his wife. On the day of the killing, Sam waited for Fifi and her friend. He charged up to her admirer. Containing his jealousy no longer Sam shot him dead.

The crime might have been manslaughter had the facts been a bit different. Had the killing been done in an impetuous impulse, a killing without time or chance to think or to cool off. But Sam had waited to do his killing.

The law makes no exception for the hot head. Instead the court looks to see if the killer's provocation would have been enough to provoke an average reasonable man. Just calling the person a dirty name, or making an unfriendly gesture, is not enough to excuse a killing; nor as a rule, is seeing one's property damaged.

Killing by poison, ambush, or by torture shows a planned killing that the law declares to be first degree murder.

Trained Reserve Not Likely To See Duty

By DONALD ZYLSTRA
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — the Army's Selected Reserve Force will finish its stepped-up training late this summer but there is still no official indication it will be called to duty.

The Pentagon continues to insist no reserve callup plans are afoot though there is a hunch among officers and enlisted men of the special force that they will be called to active duty.

The 150,000-man "Selected Reserve Force" of three divisions and six brigades, designated last summer to receive extra training and full equipment, is expected to be fully manned and equipped in July. But final training of the personnel won't be complete then—a change from original plans, occasioned by the strain of training new recruits for regular army units.

The training of other reserve volunteers is seriously lagging because of the priority loads on regular army training facilities.

The chief of Army reserve components, Lt. Gen. J. L. Throckmorton, has told the House military appropriations subcommittee that the backlog of untrained reservists is expected to reach 129,000 by July 1 and 139,000 one year later. This increase is expected to occur in spite of training scheduled for 130,250 reservist volunteers during the one year interval.

No easing of the strain on training facilities is in sight. The 1,234,000 ceiling on the size of the Army, set in the 1967 defense budget, has in fact been lifted.

"We anticipate there will be something higher than that—for which we will have to have more funds," Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff told the subcommittee in forecasting the first of many anticipated supplemental defense budget requests.

Johnson's earlier testimony before the committee indicated that he had favored a reserve callup but had been overruled by the White House and by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Johnson said the decision not to call the reserves was "not conditioned by . . . a lack of training or lack of equipment."

The Army's top general cited the prevailing White House view that the Southeast Asian conflict should not be widened.

"Actions should be avoided that arouse worldwide fears, that tend to give an impression of the United States as belligerent, truculent, and willing to commit aggression," Johnson said. "Such an impression could very well be created as a result of a Reserve callup."

"I think that, despite the fact that I have recommended that they should be called, I can appreciate the other point of view," Johnson said.

". . . This issue involves a judgment which I believe is beyond the military province," Johnson said. "Our recommendations are limited to the military actions which we believe are proper. When other considerations outweigh those that are peculiarly military, then I cannot quarrel with the final decision that is taken."

Johnson said even if the reserves had been called a year ago, the troop buildup in Viet Nam would not have been speeded up. Port, base and warehouse facilities, rather than available troops were the factors limiting the speed of the increase.

Senator Unhappy With Russ Snub

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson has asked the State Department for full details of Russia's refusal to permit a U.S. oceanographic research ship to visit Leningrad.

Magnuson, a Washington Democrat and chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said yesterday the visit of the Silas Bent originally had been approved by Soviet officials. But he added, the U.S. embassy was informed May 17 the ship would not be permitted in Leningrad on the ground it is a Naval ship.

The Silas Bent, America's newest and largest research ship, had been invited by Russian scientists. It was to have been berthed at Leningrad during the second International Oceanographic Congress May 30-June 9 in Moscow.

Retrial Decision Due Next Month In Eagle Case

A decision on whether Leroy Martinelli of Point Reyes Station must stand trial again for shooting two eagles on his ranch last year will be made June 8 at 10 a.m. in the U.S. District Court, San Francisco.

Martinelli's day-long trial on the federal offence of killing the protected birds resulted in a hung jury May 9 and the government was given 30 days in which to press the prosecution.

Judge William T. Sweigert will hear arguments from defence and prosecuting attorneys as to whether the case against Martinelli will go on or be dropped.

At his trial, the rancher testified the eagles were attacking new-born lambs.

Blaze Destroys Shed In Novato

A storage shed and its contents were completely destroyed by fire at 1720 Marion Avenue, Novato yesterday, despite the efforts of three young boys to extinguish the fire.

Clifford Bowen, 12, Dan Bowen, 8, and Mike Veronick, 9, were playing near the shed when they noticed smoke, and found hay inside the shed burning. They tried to put the fire out, but it spread, so they called Mrs. William Bowen who called the fire department, at 3:56 p.m.

The shed belonged to Harry Lumblad, and the contents, including lumber and paint, belonged to William Bowen. There was no estimate on the loss.

Spurrell said Davis, at various times during questioning, gave three explanations: That he had been in a fight in a San Francisco parking lot, that he had been attacked by two juveniles, that he had accidentally spilled hot coffee on himself and fallen.

Litter Group Reports Trash Production

NEW YORK (UPI) —Keep America Beautiful, the national litter prevention organization, reports that the average American annually produces about half a ton of trash.

Most of this rubbish finds its way into trash cans and public dumps, but enough of it ends up as litter on streets, highways and recreational areas to produce a $500 million-a-year problem, said Allen H. Seed Jr., KAB's executive vice president. That is the cost of picking up the litter. He said the Bureau of Public Roads estimated that up to 20 million cubic yards of litter were dumped on U.S. streets and highways alone last year.

SEW SIMPLE

Adjustable Pattern New In Pants Styles

By EUNICE FARMER

All the shorts I make bag in front. Please tell me what is wrong.—MRS. B.J.S.

DEAR MRS. B.J.S.:

The crotch seam was cut too low for you. The simplest way to alter a pattern to correct this is to make a fold in your pattern above the crotch seam in front and back. Add the amount you have taken out at the lower end of the legs or they will probably be too short. It's simple to make the crotch seam lower if you have cut it too high, but very difficult to make it higher after it has been cut.

Many of you have shouted for years, "Why don't they make a pants pattern that really fits?" Now they have great news for all of us, just in time for summer sewing.

If you haven't a perfect figure (and who has?) a master pattern maker and designer has finally come up with all the answers. This new pattern does not come in standard sizes. One pattern fits everyone from 32 to 44-inch hips. The instructions are very detailed and whether you have large hips, flat hips, short crotch, small waist or whatever, you can change this one pattern to fit you.

Also, this pattern makes 11 styles of pants from bell bottoms, hip huggers, etc., to classic Jamaica or Bermudas. I know it sounds too good to be true, but you'll find the extra expense you put into this new pattern will save time and dollars later. Ask for it at your pattern department. (It's not made by one of the popular pattern companies.) If you can't find it in your city, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Sew Simple, in care of the Independent-Journal and I will send you more information.

Some pattern envelopes come with a 6-inch measuring gauge printed along one edge. Cut it out and tape it (covering it completely) with dull transparent pressure tape so the zero mark is six inches from your machine needle. You can use it as a guide for feeding material squarely into your machine and it is a handy replacement for the ruler you never seem to be able to find when you want to check a short measurement.

This suggestion wins this week's tailor trix pressing board award for Mrs. George M. Fisher, Binghamton, N.Y.

Why are the collars on suits and coats cut differently from the collars on dresses? The dress pattern I am making gives instructions for cutting the collar and the collar facing on the same lengthwise grain. Will this collar roll as well as the collars with the facing cut on the bias? —MRS. M.J.

DEAR MRS. M.J.:

I don't think it is possible for any collar to roll well if the top collar and the facing are both cut with the center back on the fold, or lengthwise with the grain of the fabric. Cut the top collar as directed, then lay the center back of the collar on the bias grain. Be sure to add ⅝-inch seam allowance if the pattern was originally cut on the fold of fabric.

Cut your collar interfacing the same as the facing, with the center back on the bias. The two layers of bias fabric will roll to the contour of your neck. It's also important to make the top collar slightly larger so that the outer edges will not curl up and cause the facing to show at the outer edges.

Do I use 6, 7 or 9-inch zippers for shorts and slacks? I have patterns that give instructions for all three lengths.—MRS. W.H.

DEAR MRS. W.H.:

I would suggest either the 6 or 7-inch zippers for skirts, shorts or slacks. The 9-inch zipper is suggested for the teenage girl who usually has a very small waist in relation to her hips, and is careless about the way she takes her clothes off and on. You will find you are replacing fewer zippers if you use the longer length for such a girl.

If you haven't send for my free leaflet, "Bound Buttonholes," do so today. Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and mail it to Sew Simple, in care of the Independent-Journal. When you write, please enclose your favorite sewing tip. I need some new ones from my readers. Perhaps you will win a tailor trix pressing board for the best tip of the week.

Feet, Well Used Are Most Abused

Women spend billions on care of their faces. But sometimes the feet, the well-used, are the most abused.

One foot authority, Dr. William M. Scholl, tells why feet need just as much care. The human foot is "an engineering marvel" that contains one fourth of all the bones in the body, he said. In a lifetime, a person will walk more than 70,000 miles, carrying a load of from 100 pounds on up.

TOO SPECTACULAR

White House Curbs Luci's Party Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several prenuptial parties are being canceled to avoid making Luci Johnson's Aug. 6 wedding to Patrick L. Nugent spectacular, says the White House.

Reports indicate that 15 or 20 parties may be effected. But one hostess said a White House decision to play down the partying because of the Viet Nam situation also was a factor.

One of the canceled parties had been scheduled in Washington by Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Howar, friends of the Johnson family. They had planned a June 15 affair for 150 friends of the President's 18-year-old daughter.

But Mrs. Howar said Thursday, "My party is not going to take place."

"Mrs. Johnson has asked several friends who suggested having parties not to proceed because it was becoming more of a spectacular than Mrs. Johnson and Luci feel it ought to be," explaind Elizabeth Carpenter, press secretary for the First Lady.

THE PIECE DE RESISTANCE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It happened during the rush hour in a downtown restaurant.

A woman on a diet ordered a half grapefruit and sat down. Since the place was crowded, she was joined by a man whose tray was loaded with goodies, including three blueberry muffins.

After cleaning his plate, the man got up and departed, leaving one muffin untouched on the bread dish.

Unable to resist, the woman reached over, snatched the muffin and took a huge bite.

She looked up and there stood the man, a pat of butter in his hand and a hopeless look on his face.

Too many people drive by here and never give us a thought

Well, that's too bad because the ones who do give us a thought, and better yet turn off to take a good look, are almost unanimously surprised at the rich kind of life you can lease here in Shelter Bay Apartments.

We hear all the old words "Fantastic!" "Marvelous!" "How long has this been going on?" "Wait till I tell my husband (and/or wife) about this!" And they're mighty gladsome words to people who've put between three and four million dollars into luxury apartments at the water's edge.

So give us a thought, will you. Bring the family and come out to Shelter Bay Apartments and look the list over. It's an easy place to get to (directions below) and from the Golden Gate Bridge it takes about 20 minutes in a hot-rod or a Cadillac, or a Lincoln-Continental, or a rented Ford. So come today or tomorrow, will you, before too many people start thinking about us all at once. We'd hate to run out of merchandise.

DRAMA REVIEW

War Comes To Marin In Great 'Stalag 17'

By KARL BARRON

You enter Harlan Hall, College of Marin's tiny theater. Its walls are a drab grey, its north windows boarded with rough shutters. On the stage are bunks tiered three high and a table, the impediments of men cooped together in a close barrack life.

Quietly, one at a time, young men in shabby World War II uniform fragments drift in and climb into the bunks, pulling their blankets over them. The lights dim, go out. A searchlight's drifting beam filters through the shutters.

Now you are not watching — you are in Stalag 17, a German prison camp. Not a word has been spoken, but an atmosphere of almost unbearable tenseness has settled on the audience.

This is the opening of College of Marin Drama Department's production of "Stalag 17", by Donald Bevan and Edmund Trzcinski, which opened last night and will be presented again tonight, tomorrow, and next Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. The show was sold out before it opened.

Director James Dunn has crowned a season of good drama by making this final production of the year live up to his words in a program note ". . . war, in spite of motion pictures and television, brings about nothing in the lives of men but chaos."

His actors live their parts with such sincerity that we care deeply about what happens to them—the greatest tribute an audience can give to the people on stage.

The play, loaded with comedy despite its deadly seriousness, is based upon the authors' actual experience in Stalag 17.

The play demands 17 male actors, two of whom speak only German. This would tax the drama department of schools far larger than College of Marin, and presents a real directorial problem. If you'll pardon the pun, Dunn has done it.

Outstanding in the uniformly good cast are Lawrie Driscoll as Stosh, the belligerent infantryman who carries the main comedy load: Bart Braverman as Harry Shapiro; and Roger Lane as Marko.

Frank Silvey plays Sefton, the man who unmasks the informer, with a quietly restrained conviction. David Dukes is superb as Price, the "security man."

Kent Kay catches exactly the spirit of "honor" inherent in the character of Hoffman, who is beaten by S.S. Corporal Schultz. Schultz is portrayed with unfailing accent, by David McCauley, who gets just the right shading of the man who goes along with the winner.

Horney is played by James Land. He speaks not a word throughout the play, but etches a character of indelible sadness. Christopher Schuepbach, as the German-speaking S.S. Captain, is Teutonically correct, and very real. Ronald Teague (a native Welshman) gives an amusing portrait of the German guard.

Others contributing to the cast's total involvement are Milton Cooper, Jerry Kay, Stephen Hewett, Tom White, Eugene Babo, Larry Smith and Craig Cummins.

The setting is by Edward K. Schoon, who deserves bravos for his work in all four productions of the 1965-66 season.

ADVENTURE IN SCHOOL ROOM — Mrs. Marjorie Sutthoff, who teaches remedial reading classes in Sausalito Central School, uses projector in helping these youngsters to improve their reading. Her classes, taught in such small groups as this, are caught up to grade level as they learn the "adventure of reading," she says. When she retires next month, she will miss such pupils as (from left) Ronnie Bailey, Evelyn Webb, Gwen Hall, and Martin Coleman.

SHE'S RETIRING, BUT

No Knitting For Sausalito Remedial Reading Teacher

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Teacher Marjorie Sutthoff of Sausalito will retire in June and, for the moment, her plans include: No sitting and knitting, no retirement villages, but—remaining in Sausalito near her pupils and, more teaching.

The gray-haired, lively woman of Irish descent ("I was a Riley," says she) was a "late starter" in the world of teaching. She began 15 years ago and now wishes she had started much earlier.

Mrs. Sutthoff organized the remedial reading program in Sausalito district three years ago and, at its outset, taught at Central Manzanita and Bayside schools. Now there are three remedial teachers and Mrs. Sutthoff teaches only second and third grades at Central School.

"I like teaching slow learning children, which is something most teachers don't. I particularly like remedial reading because it is so needed and the children have responded wonderfully. They need this individual attention," said the teacher.

She said she has nine groups of pupils with two to five to a to a group, and teaches 35 pugroup, and teaches 35 pupils per day in 20 to 30-minute periods.

"There's quite a bit of improvement in these problems (reading) since I began three years ago," said she.

She reported that "children come up to me on the street and say, 'I remember you' and "I'm so glad I was in your fourth grade. You taught me to read.'"

"A funny thing happened at our 'open house,'" continued Mrs. Sutthoff. "A young boy who is either in eighth grade or high school came to my room and said, 'Oh, I remember you—AEIOU.' He meant that I had taught him the long and short sounds of the vowels."

She said she likes to see the light in a child's eyes when he says, "I can read."

Mrs. Sutthoff related that she tries to start at least a grade and maybe lower than a pupil's easy oral reading, then works up to try to get pupils to their grade level.

"I put them back to the point where they are very comfortable in their reading," she said.

She uses various methods, including phonics, auditory, visual and "comprehension."

One of the "greatest things," she said, is the control reader.

Demonstrating this machine, she projected film strips onto a screen. "It blips so it gives left to right training in eye movement," she explained.

"The more things you have that entertain them, the more delightful reading becomes to them. I use the tape recorder so they can hear themselves reading.

"They even say, 'We didn't read today,' which means they didn't read out of a book. There is a kind of competition among them."

Mrs. Sutthoff believes that emphasis should be placed on reading at an early time—kindergarten and first grade.

Born in Bellingham, Wash., Mrs. Sutthoff was educated in Canada until ready for college. She said she hadn't intended to teach but, having her teacher credential from the State of Washington, she came to "help out" when Manzanita School was placed on double sessions. "Then I stayed on. Now I'm sorry I didn't start sooner."

Sixty-five, the required retirement age, she said she plans to continue to work with children in her field in the county, probably on a part-time basis.

Mrs. Sutthoff's mother was a teacher. Her oldest son, Dr. John Sutthoff, is assistant to the president of Chico State College and a fulltime professor, teaching graduate courses for teacher training. Another son, Riley, teaches French and coaches track at St. Ignatius High School, San Francisco, and coaches cross-country for University of San Francisco.

Her daughter, Katherine Sutthoff, is a secretary in San Francisco. Her husband, John, died 11 years ago in an automobile accident.

She prefers to stay in Sausalito because of her pupils and her friends. "I don't want to go off into some retirement village," she said. "I still hope to work with children for the next few years. I'm not just going to sit and knit or watch TV."

Former Schools Trustee Files For Divorce

Alce Ann Cole, 52-year-old past president of Marin County Board of Education, has filed for separate maintenance in Marin Superior Court from her second husband.

She alleges that extreme cruelty by Theodore V. Cole, a fellow board member whom she wed in Santa Rosa on May 18, 1962, after his resignation, made her ill and nervous.

Mrs. Cole declared that all property, whether in either party's name or under their joint name, is hers. She asks for property and $100 monthly support.

She separated from Cole on May 9. There were no children. She divorced her first husband, geologist George Warren Rust, in September, 1960 on grounds of cruelty.

Property settlement for her then included the family home at 37 Rancheria Road, Kentfield. They had joint custody of their two grown children and had been married 22 years.

Santa Venetia Job Bids Opened

Page Construction Co. of Novato entered the low bid of $75,572 as bids were opened yesterday on construction of a four-classroom addition to Santa Venetia School in San Rafael.

Charles L. Condrotte, business manager for the San Rafael schools, said the low bid is within the district's budget for the project. Contract probably will be awarded at the district board meeting Tuesday.

Four other companies entered bids. They were Clifford D. Francis Co. of Santa Rosa, $44,940; Zoellner Construction Co. of Ross, $79,321; Filippo Construction Co. of San Rafael, $83,234; and DiGiorgio and Sons of San Rafael, $98,985.

Housewife Faces Battery Charge

Eileen M. Collette, 45, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a misdemeanor charge of battery on her husband, Roy B. Collette.

Plea entry was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

She allegedly injured Collette, 50, during an argument in their home, 75 Billou Street, San Rafael, on Thursday.

San Rafael Students Make Honors List

Two students from San Rafael were on the winter honor roll at Seattle University, the registrar has announced.

They are: Eric E. Bugna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Bugna of 45 La Vista Way, and Susan D. Denman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Denman of 19 Pine Street.

Soviets Battle Pollution, Too

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union loses "hundreds of millions of rubles a year" because of water pollution, Pravda said today.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper suggested stiff fines against factories which pollute rivers as one way of protecting the country's water resources.

The newspaper said caviar-producing sturgeon have been badly hit by pollution.

New Boys Club Plans To Hire Its First Aide

Board members of the newly organized Boy's Club of Southern Marin will consider selection of a full time executive director at the board's first meeting Monday at Sabella's restaurant, Mill Valley.

The dinner meeting will follow an inspection tour of the Boy's Club, a former maintenance building now being refurbished in Marin City. The tour will start at 6:30 p.m.

"The club has a tough row to hoe in order to open June 15, as planned," said organizer Raymond P. Delrich of Tiburon. Things are going well, however, he said.

The roof has been completely redone. Architect Karl Treffinger is working out floor plans; plumbing is to be done this weekend by Brabo Plumbing Co. and wiring next weekend under guidance of Bowman Electric Co. with skilled volunteers from Marin City. Wallboard, now being sought, will go in next, followed by furniture and equipment.

In addition to floor covering, club members seek arts and crafts equipment, games and books — both recreational and remedial.

Delrich said labor and materials have been contributed from all over the county and in San Francisco. The Belvedere Tennis Club has indicated interest in providing free tennis lessons and some persons have offered music lessons.

The club seeks $40,000 for capital improvements, staff and equipment, said Delrich.

Persons wishing to contribute may send funds to Box 954, Sausalito. Those wishing to work may turn out at 9 a.m. on Saturdays. During the week, they may call Richard N. Bale of Tiburon, Jesse Berry of Marin City or Delrich.

Applications for funds have been filed with several philanthropic organizations, Delrich related, and service clubs in Southern Marin have expressed interest in giving equipment.

The club will be for boys of ages seven to 17 initially.

Watts Bricks Thought Too Much Temptation

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Residents in the Watts district today were under orders of the City Council to clean up bricks and other debris on private property.

The council's order came Friday after Councilman John Gibson Jr. said it would "be wise to remove the bricks as they constitute a temptation to kids."

Frederick Kerr Heads Bay Welfare Council

Frederick D. Kerr of San Rafael has been named a vice president of the recently organized Bay Area Social Planning Council.

The new five-county council—covering Marin, Contra Costa, Alameda, San Francisco and San Mateo—was formed to coordinate the activities of local groups such as the Marin Council of Community Services, which will go out of existence.

Kerr will continue as president of the board of the Marin council during its temporary continuance to fulfill special grant projects committed for 1966.

He will also serve as chairman of the new Marin council (board) of the parent BASPC, with office at 2144 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

Recommendation that the new regional planning organization be formed came from a study last year by a survey committee headed by Emmett Solomon, president of Crocker-Citizens National Bank.

Kerr said the survey showed "there were so many social planning efforts being made in the five-county area that coordination was impossible and loss of effectiveness inevitable."

Kerr said that local efforts would benefit because "one strong Bay Area organization would provide a professional staff service that could not be duplicated in each county."

BASPC directors elected from Marin County are: San Rafael Schools Supt. Bert C. Corona, Dr. Price M. Cobbs, attorney Roger P. Garety, banker Burton R. Kirschner, Mrs. J. V. Hawley, and Mrs. Robert Kettenbach.

Convicted Motorist Faces Charge Of Perjury, Too

A felony charge of perjury was filed by the district attorney's office yesterday against Neal A. Clayton, 29, sentenced Thursday on a drunken driving conviction.

The complaint alleges Clayton, of 5410 Redwood Highway, Novato, denied under oath during his Marin Municipal Court trial that he was driver of the car involved.

Jerry Herman, deputy district attorney who prosecuted, said later testimony by the defendant's wife, Diana, 26, disclosed that only she and Clayton were in the vehicle, and that she was not the driver.

He said Clayton then admitted under direct questioning that he was the driver, and denied the earlier statement, recorded in the court reporter's transcript of the trial.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said the complaint was filed because "lying under oath will not be tolerated." Maximum penalty is one to 14 years in prison.

Clayton was fined $200, given 15 days in county jail, and placed on a year's probation by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. following the jury conviction April 22 for drunken driving in San Rafael last Dec. 17.

The car struck a street sign and tree at Green Way and Belle Avenue. Mrs. Clayton suffered a broken back and collarbone.

A Policeman's Lot Is—A College Life

By STEPHEN COOK

One day a week, a group of College of Marin men spend three hours firing pistols at man-sized silhouettes at the San Quentin Prison firearms range.

That night, another group watches a classmate disarm a criminal type approaching with a knife, while the instructor stresses: "This could happen to you."

The men are not training for a new type of interscholastic competition. Instead, they are candidates for the college's two-year degree in police science.

The college has offered courses for men aspiring to be police officers, and for seasoned officers seeking more training, since 1963. Daytime classes, though, were not offered until last spring and the fulltime police science course is still in its fledgling stage.

The course was certified last summer by the State Department of Justice's commission on peace officer standards and training. Graduates, therefore meet all state-required requirements for peace officers.

Organizing the program is Frank B. Warner, a retired special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who came to the college as a part-time instructor in police science in February, 1965, and was appointed coordinator of the program at the start of this semester.

As the course stands now, police science students are required to take courses in patrol procedures, the court system, traffic control, criminal evidence, juvenile law, defensive tactics, criminal law, criminal investigation, firearms, and applied psychology.

These courses account for 28 of the 62 units required for an associate of science degree at the college. The police science student's course of study is rounded out with required classes in English, civics, history, physical education, first aid, health education and speech, plus electives.

According to Warner, who had to hold a four-year college degree for service in the FBI, the two-year degree is enough to gain a man a job on any police force in the Bay Area—but just enough. "From what I've heard, most departments want a two-year college education," he said.

Warner foresees the day when a four-year degree will be required of most police officers. He thinks it is a good idea.

"The day of just sending a man out with a gun and a badge is gone," he said. "This is a transitional period, with laws being changed by the legislature and the courts. The officer must be aware of these changes. The more education a man has, the more capable he will be on the job."

Most of the police science courses are taught by either Warner or by working police officers.

Lt. William H. Porter of the California Highway Patrol teaches criminal investigation. Another CHP officer, James P. Cahill, teaches traffic control.

Daniel L. Thomas of the Novato police department provides the weekly instruction in firearms. Lt. Walter Garratt of the Berkeley police force teaches criminal law and criminal evidence. The only instructor not connected with law enforcement is James McGowan, a college physical education instructor, who gives the class in defensive tactics.

According to Warner, there are 97 men now taking police science courses during the day and evening sessions at the college. Of these, 68 are police science majors. Thirty-one of them are now employed as police or correctional officers, he said.

About 50 of the state's 80 junior colleges now have two-year courses in police science, Warner said, "and eventually, I think we will have developed a manpower pool for police departments throughout the state to draw on."

Belvedere Tycoon's Mansion Is Bought

The Belvedere mansion built by Stewart Hopps has been bought by Dr. Michael Scriven, a visiting professor of philosophy at the University of California, who paid $110,000 of the total $160,000 purchase price in cash.

The deed was recorded yesterday in Scriven's name in the county recorder's office. Negotiations are continuing on the house furnishings, which include a large library, as the federal government has tax liens on the furnishings. The purchase was handled by William S. Johnson, a Tiburon realty broker, and the Cal-Marin Title Co. of San Rafael.

New Superintendent Selection Is Slated

Sausalito School District trustees will hear a seventh and eighth grade program review by Robert D. Thomson, Richardson Bay School principal, at an 8 p.m. meeting Monday in the district office.

The board is to name a new school superintendent, and discuss the fiscal 1967 budget and the building study of the Committee of 100.

Directors of United States Borax and Chemical Corp. have declared a quarterly divident of 25 cents per share of the 4,228,145 common shares outstanding which compares with 20 cents paid in previous quarters since June 1962.

Personnel Board Changes Ideas On Probation Time

The Marin County Personnel Commission yesterday agreed to seek changes in probationary periods for county employees through a change in rules rather than an ordinance, if that method would be legal.

County Personnel Director Robert D. Elliott told the commission he is no longer urging a change from six months to a year for all new employees, but "the change was indicated for some classification." He cited sheriff's deputies, probation officers and juvenile hall counselors.

The commission expects to make its recommendation at its next meeting at 9:30 a.m. June 24.

Absent yesterday was Margaret Lucas.

Trustees To Discuss Physical Fitness

YOU CAN LIVE RENT FREE for the next 30 years in a brand new home in . . .

A $20,000, 30 year mortgage at 6% calls for monthly payments of $119.92. Over 30 years you pay out $43,170.19, of which $23,181.19 is tax deductible interest.

But, you end up with a home fully paid for, whereas if you rent you have NOTHING. Best of all, in 30 years your home will be worth more than it cost, if the creeping inflation prevails that we have had since 1776.

The day 14,000 BUNNIES jumped right out of the I-J

Amazing readership brings amazing response to CORTE MADERA SHOPPING CENTER

Pre-Easter

"COLOR THE BUNNY" CONTEST

CMC MERCHANTS SWAMPED WITH 14,000 ENTRIES, SWAMPED WITH KIDS, FAMILIES—AND SALES!

All 14,000 entries brought in in person to Corte Madera Shopping Center

Youngsters colored the bunny on front page of CMC Section in I-J, April 5

"By far the greatest newspaper response in our experience."

HOWARD STUCKEY, Manager
Montgomery-Ward, Corte
Madera Shopping Center

They say bunnies can multiply. But readership of the Independent-Journal multiplies both bunnies—and sales. Witness: When Corte Madera Center merchants offered a Kiddies Coloring Contest on the front page of a special CMC Easter Sale section in the I-J, THINGS HAPPENED! More than 14,000 youngsters (with families) brought their entries IN PERSON to Corte Madera Center. Judges were swamped, stores were jammed! All due, as merchants said, to the intensive readership of the Independent-Journal . . . Marin's best-read, best-selling newspaper. Bunnies or merchandise . . . the I-J makes things JUMP.

1/3 OF THE 42,000 I-J SUBSCRIBER FAMILIES ENTERED THE CONTEST

WHAT THE MERCHANTS SAID:

"The response was amazing to all of the merchants at Corte Madera Center. More than 14,000 entries poured in—all from reading the Independent-Journal."

DON WALKER, Smith's Clothiers

"We realized that each entry represented a copy of the I-J of April 5th. Our CMC cover, with the Easter Bunny, had to be clipped from the Independent-Journal—no other way of entering the contest."

M. J. DAOUST, Harmony Music

"The kids and families came in droves since entries had to be brought in in person. It just proved again that the I-J is read throughout the county."

HARRY KRAMAR, Kramar's Shoes

POOR, HAPPY JUDGES FIND HOW I-J CAN MULTIPLY BUNNIES

A FIRST IN NAVY AVIATION

The aircraft carrier Bennington, off the California coast yesterday, was the scene of the first verticle landing and takeoff of a full-sized transport plane. The XC-142-A V/STOL four-engine transport, its wings tilted skyward, climbed and descended in a series of tests; with its wings swung horizontal the plane is capable of 400-miles-per-hour speeds. All three armed services may use the transport if its tests are successful. (AP Wirephoto)

Politico Tells Sportsmen Bay Now 'A Garbage Dump'

Assemblyman Pearce Young, D-Napa and Solano, warned Marin Rod and Gun Club members last night that San Francisco Bay "has become a garbage dump."

"We have idly watched as some of our best land disappeared under the subdivider's bulldozer to be replaced with an esthetic wasteland of signs, billboards, wires and poles, and junkyards."

He urged a conservation program giving "more weight to recreational values" and establishing "minimum aesthetic standards in the developments of our great urban centers."

Young reviewed his own legislative work in the field of conservation, including Senate Bill 23, which would establish a National Redwood Road Committee to work out a scenic road and trails system.

Young said his bill to provide a means of undergrounding utility wires and poles has passed both houses. He predicted Gov. Edmund G. Brown may sign the bill into law Wednesday during his visit to Marin to lay the Hall of Justice cornerstone at Civic Center.

On firearm control, Assemblyman Young said sportsmen should be able to practice their sport without hindrance by the state.

However, Young does support "reasonable limitations" such as the laws enacted by the Legislature in 1965. One bill prohibits a minor from having a concealable weapon unless he has written consent of his parent or guardian. Another restricts possession of firearms by a person who has been involuntarily confined in a mental institution.

"I am sure that those of you who are experts with weapons cannot disagree with the legislative intent behind these bills," said Young.

San Quentin's Guards Foil Escape Try

Two San Quentin Prison inmates were foiled yesterday in an attempt to escape by hiding in the prison garbage truck.

The two 25-year-old inmates, past partners in crime and in a successful escape from another California prison in 1964, were Odell Clarence Haston and Donald Wayne McDowell.

Both are serving a series of sentences ranging from six months to life for crimes that include armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon, prison escape and, in Haston's case, kidnaping. McDowell has been at San Quentin since Feb. 11 and Haston since March 18.

They were seen concealing themselves in the refuse in the truck at 9:30 a.m. by Correctional Officer Joseph R. Rose of the prison's special security squad. They were permitted to ride as far as the truck gate at the west end of the prison, where they were removed.

The driver of the truck, a civilian employee, was unaware of the escape attempt. A third prisoner was reported under suspicion of helping Haston and McDowell into the truck, according to Associate Warden James W. L. Park.

Crash Hurts Seaman

William J. Alford, 45, a merchant seaman of 55 Wallace Way, San Rafael, suffered a cut nose and possible chest injury at 1:55 a.m. today when his car ran off the Lucas Valley Road near the Highway 101 overpass and hit a telephone pole. He was reported in fair condition at Marin General Hospital.

Culture Spreading, Art Symposium Told

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —A renaissance of the arts is stirring in California and a two-day symposium opened in San Francisco today to give more impetus to the movement.

The program was planned to provide "ideas and techniques to make living culture a reality" in California communities.

Sponsors were the California Arts Commission and the University of California Medical Center's office of "Continuing Education in the Health Sciences."

At a news conference yesterday afternoon, speakers noted that, traditionally, opera, ballet and symphony companies were supported, largely, by a small minority of wealthy patrons. But now, in many California communities, the financial base has been broadened a great deal.

Many new orchestras, theater groups, museums and art galleries are opening in communities throughout the state. The problem, as seen by symposium members, is to make them easily accessible to every person who wants to participate.

The conference opening today was titled "Creative Arts: the Living Culture of California."

One of the morning speakers was Franklin C. McPeak, public relations director for McClatchy newspapers, Sacramento.

Finnish Strike Cuts 'Hot Line'

HELSINKI (UPI) —A week-old communications strike which broke the "hot line" teletype link between Washington and Moscow for several hours yesterday ended today.

A settlement was reached shortly after midnight, and the striking postal, telephone and radio engineers returned to work at 6 a.m. (midnight Friday, EDT). They had left automatic equipment operating when they walked out, but did nothing to maintain it. There were numerous breakdowns during the strike.

The "hot line," which crosses Finland, went out Friday. Russian engineers rerouted it. Finnish authorities announced the line had been restored.

Crewmen Missing As Dredge Ship Sinks

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Ten crewmen were missing today after a dredge ship sank in heavy seas off eastern Australia.

Two bodies washed ashore and four men were plucked from the water by rescue helicopters after the 746-ton dredge W.D. Atlas went down last night 20 miles south of Jervis Bay.

Marinites Set For Mexican Volunteer Jobs

Seven students from Dominican College and a San Rafael housewife will go to Mexico this summer with the Amigos Anonymous program to work on community development projects in villages in Michoacan and Guanajuato.

Students on the program, now in its fifth year, pay their own way and spend about two and a half months helping villagers set up health, education and building programs.

Lydia Haran, head of Amigos Anonymous for Marin County, will be going for the fourth year this summer. Lydia, 20, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory A. Haran of San Rafael.

Cavan Holliday, 20, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Holliday of San Rafael, will be going on her first trip, as will Madelon Walsh, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Walsh of Greenbrae.

Also making their first trip are Patricia Shiffler, 19, of Merced, Patricia Vaio, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Vaio of San Anselmo, Vicki Presson, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Presson of San Rafael, and Setsuko Nakayasu, of Japan.

Mrs. Flora Mancebo of 29 Vendola Drive, San Rafael, will make her second trip this summer. Last summer she brought a Mexican student, Berta Garcia, back to spend the year in San Rafael.

Projects are sponsored by donations to Amigos Anonymous, Box 3008, Berkeley.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Emphysema Treatment Really Means Starting 20 Years Before Need

VAN DELLEN

Emphysema can be obviated but I doubt if our suggestions will ever be taken seriously enough to make it possible. Most of the research on this pulmonary disorder has been done during the end stage of the disease when the victim is disabled by a chronic cough, wheezing, and shortness of breath.

True prevention means going back 20 to 30 years when the lungs are first subjected to abuse from smoking, air pollution, and respiratory infection. Avoid these and the chance of becoming a respiratory cripple is practically nil.

IN ITS EARLY stages, the disease can be halted by avoiding all respiratory irritants, exposure to inclement weather, sudden temperature changes, and chest infections. The influenza vaccine helps to immunize against one of the great offenders of emphysema.

The regular use of antibiotics does the same. Fresh air, sunshine, and adequate nutrition build up resistance.

THE EMPHYSEMATOUS person should stop smoking and treat every respiratory infection immediately. There are many drugs that dilate the bronchi.

These inhalants are most helpful because they reduce the bronchial spasm and obstruction that are so disabling. The blockage prevents stagnant air from being exhaled and encourages dilation and loss of elasticity of the air sacs.

Special breathing exercises also help to force the stale air out of the lungs. Lie on the back and practice pushing out the abdomen during inhalation (which forces the diaphragm down).

PULL IN THE abdomen during expiration to force up the diaphragm and empty the lungs. This should be done for 30 minutes twice a day. It helps to place a weighted bag on the abdomen.

Exercise increases walking capacity and is best done by inhaling oxygen from a three-pound cylinder that is carried while the individual walks or climbs stairs. This should be done for 10 or more minutes twice a day.

Liquefying agents aid in bringing up plugs of mucus. Now and then it is necessary to wash out the lungs (broncholavage) to eliminate obstructive encrustations. Surgery is helpful when the emphysema is confined to a single lobe.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addresed envelope accompanies request)

DURATION OF SHINGLES

Mrs. A. S. writes: How long do shingles usually last?

REPLY

The lesions usually subside within a few weeks but occasionally neuralgic pain persists for months or years. This complication usually occurs in older persons. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on shingles.

MENOPAUSE

Mrs. P. writes: Can a woman become pregnant during the change of life?

REPLY

Yes. The menopause is of indefinite length and it is difficult to tell, therefore, when sterility occurs.

PRESSURE AND WINE

J. V. writes: Will drinking a glass of wine every day raise low blood pressure?

REPLY

Wine does not affect the blood pressure in this way unless it overstimulates or excites the individual.

INFANT BALDNESS

Mrs. G. W. writes: My baby was born with a full head of hair, two inches long. Now, at 3 months, she is losing it all. Will a new growth begin?

REPLY

Yes. I have never heard of a child who remained bald.

Marin Biologists To Show Film Of Cruise Off Baja California

Color slides and a film taken on a 10-day cruise off the Baja California Coast by members of the College of Marin's marine laboratory will be shown at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Bolinas Community Center.

Highlights of the program will be still and action pictures of killer whales sporting in the coastal waters, gray whales breeding in Magdelena Bay and elephant seals and stellar sea lions on the volcanic San Benitos islands.

The film was taken by Steven Hopper, a technician in the college's audio visual department. Most of the color slides were the work of Noel Nelson, biology and zoology teacher at the college. Alfonzo Molina, instructor in botany and biology will narrate.

The three men were guests on the January cruise of Edward W. Scripps' 65-foot Norwegian trawler Betty Jean, berthed at Corinthian Yacht Club.

Ron Hunt Making A Career Out Of Wrecking Giants

By RON BERGMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Second baseman Ron Hunt of the New York Mets started today with a .326 batting average because he's had to face some second division clubs along the way.

Poor fellow. That .326 average, good as it looks, indicates somebody is getting him out. For sure it isn't the San Francisco Giants.

Hunt has gotten 11 hits in his last 17 official trips against the National League leaders for an average of .647.

"That's not as good as a thousand," Hunt pointed out last night before anyone got the idea everything was peaches and cream. "The season is still young."

Hunt once again had personally demolished the Giants by driving in five Mets' runs in their 7-5 victory. This performance was in full view of Gen. William D. Eckert, commissioner of baseball, who, Giants fans would agree, should order an investigation into the matter.

Hunt came to the plate in the eighth inning against ace Giants reliever Lindy McDaniel with the score tied 4-4 and two men on base.

Hunt picked on a hanging curve and stroked it for a three-homer over the left-center field fence with all the inevitability of sunrise. This went well with a two-run single Hunt hit in the Mets' three-run sixth inning, another single that started New York to a first-inning run and another trip where the ball hit him instead of the other way around.

His perfect night meant that Hunt had gotten on base 13 out of the last 15 times he's come to the plate against San Francisco.

"If anyone could explain why a player hits against a certain club or a certain pitcher or why a pitcher pitches well against a certain club, he could make a million dollars without ever getting off his backside," said Hunt.

Besides handing the Giants their fifth defeat in their last six games, Hunt's hitting nullified a power display by Jim Hart. The San Francisco third baseman homered twice with the bases empty and teammate Ollie Brown solo homered once.

Before Hart's sixth-inning blast, the previous San Francisco extra base hit had been a Hart homer Sunday in New York. In between there were 29 singles.

Dennis Ribant faced only one batter—Willie Mays—in the ninth and struck him out, ending the game. The victory went to Dick Selma, who relieved Jack Fisher, and who needed help himself from Gordon Richardson and Ribant.

Gen. Eckert planned to make his second visit to Candlestick Park today, this time with American President Joe Cronin, to help honor San Franciscan Lefty O'Doul, former high-average hitting major leaguer and popular Pacific Coast League manager in the city.

Who's On First? Giants Find Two Men Who Can Do The Job

HANLEY

"Who's on first?" was the needling inquiry put to Herman Franks repeatedly during the recent Giant road trip.

To his credit the manager of the Giants only exploded verbally a couple of times. There was no Orlando Cepeda to put on first when Willie McCovey aggravated what had been a slight muscle pull and Stretch had to be sidelined more than a week. The Bull had been traded to St. Louis for Ray Sadecki.

The night McCovey tore a thigh muscle in Piittsburgh, a Pirate righthander Steve Blass was on the mound. So it was only logical on that occasion that Len Gabrielson would be shifted from left field to first with Don Landrum taking Gabe's place in left.

BUT WHAT would Franks do for a first baseman when a southpaw was pitching against the Giants? Gabrielson, a left-hand swinger, has more than his share of troubles with southpaw stuff. A southpaw was on the mound for the Pirates the next night. Who was on first for the Giants? Jim Davenport, the all-around utility hand who now has played all infield positions for the Giants.

It was Davenport's pro debut as a first baseman and he did a very creditable job with the finger glove he has used at third base, short and second.

A COUPLE of nights later in New York, the Mets took the Giants into a 17-inning affair bebore bowing 5-4 to a 17th inning homer by Davenport. Such extra-inning sessions deplete benches. In the eighth inning Franks used his last reserve man, Bob Barton in a pinch role for Gabrielson because a Met southpaw named Gordon Richardson then was on the mound for the Mets.

Davenport couldn't be pressed into first base duty in that overtime game because he was playing short. Hal Lanier had been lifted in the seventh inning for a pinch hitter.

SO NOW who would be on first? The problem didn't give Franks a bit of trouble. He just kept Barton in the lineup as catcher and moved Tom Haller to first base. It was the No. 1 Giant catcher's debut there, too. Haller played flawlessly at first for the final 10 innings after catching the first seven.

Thus, since the Cepeda trade two emergency first basemen behind McCovey and Gabrielson have been discovered on the Giant team. Of course, there's another one in Willie Mayes but Franks has no intention of shifting Willie from centerfield—at least not at the moment.

"MAYBE THREE or four years from now—if and when the wearing business of chasing flies in right and left center begins to slow him down," said Franks. "But that's a long way in the future so don't go making any headline out of it now."

Playing first base would add a couple of years to Willie's longevity—after he does begin to slow up as he inevitably must with the years piling up on him. Three or four more years as a centerfielder and one or two as a first baseman would give Willie the time he needs to catch Babe Ruth's all-time homer mark of 714.

RUNDOWN—Marin Catholic High School catcher John Komo chases Novato's Gary Dinkel to make a crucial putout in yesterday's game at Greenbrae. Wildcats Finish With 8-4 Record

Marin Catholic High School, which had won only one varsity sports championship in the history of the Marin Athletic League, captured at least a tie for the 1966 baseball title yesterday by upsetting Novato, 3-1 on the Marin diamond in Greenbrae.

Brian King's fine three-hit pitching gave Coach Gary Hughes' Wildcats a final 8-4 won-lost record, one half game ahead of Tamalpais, San Rafael and Novato, each with a 7-4 mark.

Marin can do no less than a tie for the title when the league race ends next Tuesday with Novato against San Rafael, Tam against Drake and Terra Linda against Redwood. See page 24 for stories on Tam's 2-1 win over San Rafael and Terra Linda's 5-4 win over Drake yesterday.

Marin Catholic's only previous MAL varsity title was in baseball about five years ago.

KOMO SCORES

After two were down in the first inning yesterday, Marin Catholic went ahead when catcher John Komo singled, then came around to score on a single by shortstop Bob Lombardi after stealing second base. The 'Cats came back with a tally in each of the next two innings with singles by Bob Bianchini, King, and a bases loaded walk to Tony Quadros in the second; in the third, Lombardi stole second after smacking a single and scored on Bob Nelson's base hit.

Novato's lone score came in the seventh inning.

King, who fanned six while walking just one, pitched 6⅓ strong innings before Wildcat ace Ben Burch came on to get the last two outs, earning the save.

Hornet starter Chuck Ashworth was yanked in the third frame and relieved by Wayne Jones, who whiffed three and walked one. Ashworth notched two strikeouts and issued one walk before leaving.

Marin Catholic had nine safeties and left seven stranded on base as compared to three left on base for the Hornets.

Karras Gets 7-Year Pact

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — One result of the latest player war developing between the National Football League and the American Football League would seem to be long-term contracts for stars.

Alex Karras, the Detroit Lions' massive defensive tackle, lent credence to that theory yesterday when he landed what is perhaps the longest player contract in NFL history, signing with the Lions for seven more seasons.

The interesting point was that Karras, upon signing, said he had turned down "a very attractive offer" to play for the Miami Dolphins of the AFL.

There had been a report that Karras and two Lion teammates, linebacker Wayne Walker and receiver Gail Cogdill, were bing wooed by the Dolphins, but it was denied by officials of the new AFL team.

To keep the talent intact, more and more pro clubs are likely to hand out term contracts. The procedure up to now has been for a player to sign for one year, with a clause in the contract that binds the man to the same team for the second year. Now the owners probably will stretch the point and grant contracts for two years and up.

THREE YEARS

The current imbroglio started when Pete Gogolak, the Hungarian-born placekicker, signed with the New York Giants of the NFL after playing out his option with Buffalo of the AFL. Gogolak reportedly signed for three years at $32,000 a year.

Ralph Wilson, owner of the Buffalo club and president of the AFL, said, "We would like to see Gogolak's contract, as far as the Giants are concerned, rescinded."

However, there is little chance of any such action by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"If the contract is in order from the standpoint of eligibility for the NFL, it will not be disapproved," Rozelle said.

When the NFL ended its spring meetings yesterday at Washington, Rozelle took notice of reports that players on the Giants and the Lions have been approached by representatives of AFL clubs.

FURTHER INFO

"I have heard reports of contacts made by AFL club representatives with certain players now under contract with NFL teams," Rozelle said. "I will have further information on this when our club presidents and I return home. If there are legal ramifications to such contacts, they would be explored by the NFL club involved."

The Giants said center Greg Larson, halfback Steve Thurlow and receiver Bob Crespino had been approached by San Diego and fullback Tucker Frederickson by Houston of the AFL. However, Frederickson said his talks with Don Klosterman, general manager of Houston, concerned only players still at Auburn, his alma mater, and nothing was mentioned about Frederickson playing with the Oilers.

Reports that George Wilson, former Detroit coach and now coach for Miami in the AFL, had approached Lion players was denied.

Wilson claimed Karras and Walker had just dropped into his office because "they're friends and were here on vacation." He said he also had visits from Washington players. Wilson was an assistant coach at Washington last season.

While there were stories of AFL teams contacting NFL players, the cases of two former San Diego stars who became free agents still were open. Neither of the big defensive linmen, Earl Faison or Ernie Ladd, had signed. Detroit holds NFL draft rights to Faison and the Chicago Bears drafted Ladd.

Devlin Faces Jinx In Colonial Event

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Bruce Devlin, the world traveler from Australia, led the $110,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament into its third round today, boasting a three-stroke bulge over Gene Littler. But he probably is giving great thought to a jinx that has followed the tour this year.

No player has led a tournament from start to finish, and only three times in the 20-year history of Colonial has it been done. And it has been 11 years since that trick was turned here.

But Devlin, with hot iron play, swept over the 7,123-yard Colonial Country Club course in two-under-par 68 yesterday for a 36-hole total of 135, and figured a pair of 71s the rest of the way would bag him first money of $21,000. He thinks 277 will win the 72-hole tournament.

Devlin was stopped on the 10th hole when lightning struck the course yesterday and had to wait 18 minutes before play was resumed. But it didn't bother him a bit, and he returned to get a par on the 10th hole and go on for a birdie on 13.

There was a little rain but it didn't hamper anybody, and there were eight sub-par rounds topped by 67s by Gay Brewer and R. H. Sikes.

Whereas the tournament was led by three foreign golfers in the first round — Devlin on top with 67 and Peter Thomson and Bob Charles tied for second with 68—the second round yesterday saw Devlin increase his lead, but Thomson drop to a tie for fourth and Charles fall to a tie for ninth.

Thomson, the Australian holder of the British Open crown, took a double bogey on the 15th hole to soar to a 72 for 140. Charles, the New Zealander, slumped to a 74 for 142.

Littler fired a 69 to take over second place with 138 and Al Geiberger laid down a similar score to edge into third with 139.

Devlin came here after 52 hours in the air going to Honolulu, Sydney, Singapore, Rome, Fort Worth. He got a crick in Fort Worth. He got acrick in the neck but had doctors work on it this week. He was feeling fine yesterday.

Torres 7-5 Choice Over Thornton In Title Fight

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jose Torres, who promised to be a fighting champion when he dethroned Willie Pastrano 14 months ago, makes the first defense of his light heavyweight title tonight against Wayne Thornton in outdoor Shea Stadium.

Although he has had only one fight since stopping Pastrano in the ninth round, the 30-year-old New Yorker is a 7-5 favorite over the body bombing, 26-year-old challenger from Fresno, Calif.

"I'm going right after him and he knows it," said Thornton, the No. 1 contender. "I've been waiting a long time for this chance and I'm not going to blow it now. I'm confident I'll beat him and I think I've got a real good chance to take him out.

"He'll have his hands high in that peek-a-boo defense of his but I'll go to his body early and he'll get those gloves down. Then I'll go for his head."

"This fight won't go over six rounds," Torres said. "I will have no excuse if I lose but I'm not going to lose."

The 15-rounder is scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m., PDT.

It will be telecast via a special network to about 40 cities (KTVU, Channel 2). New York will be blacked out of the television.

The promoters, Harold Conrad and Al Bolan of Combat, Inc., hope for a late sale that will bring out 30,000 customers and produce a gate of $250,000.

After rain earlier in the week, the skies cleared yesterday and the forecast was for fair today. In addition to the weather, the promoters had to worry about the effect of the telecast of the London Cassius Clay-Harry Cooper heavyweight title fight.

Torres has been guaranteed $75,000 and 40 per cent of all receipts. Thornton has been guaranteed $25,000 and 20 per cent of receipts over $200,000.

Thornton, who has kept busy battling heavyweights, has won six straight bouts in the last 17 months. He has stopped his last four foes, including heavyweights Dave Furch and Eddie Land last March. His record is 37-7-1, including 25 knockouts. He has been stopped once, back in 1959.

Torres, after battering Pastrano on March 1965, had only one fight. That was a 10-round decision over heavyweight Tom McNeeley at San Juan, Puerto Rico, on July 31.

The Puerto Rican native suffered an injury to his pancreas in that fight and was hospitalized for several weeks. He was permitted extra time to recuperate by both the New York Athletic Commission and the World Boxing Association.

When he recovered Torres sought to make his first defense against either middleweight Joey Archer or semi-retired Gregorio Peralta of Argentina. Both boxing bodies insisted he fight Thornton.

Scoring will be by the rounds system. The referee and two judges will be named at fight time.

COMMISSIONER IN S.F.

Eckert Says Oakland Must Wait For A Team

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Gen. William D. Eckert, commissioner of baseball, will visit the Oakland Coliseum to personally see whether it is suitable for a major league team.

Eckert was in San Francisco today to watch the game between the New York Mets and San Francisco Giants.

In his first visit as commissioner to San Francisco, Eckert said last night that he would go to Oakland, but not on this trip. The 50,000-seat stadium is now under construction and should be ready for the next season of the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League.

Oakland civic leaders want an American League baseball team and hope either a franchise shift or expansion can bring it to the city across San Francisco Bay.

Eckert emphasized that no definite expansion plans have been made although "attention has been focused on four more teams—two for each league."

He declined to predict any expansion dates, but he said it should come within eight or ten years. He said Oakland should not expect a team within the next two years.

"Expansion should take place in an orderly manner," Eckert said.

Tam Nips San Rafael In Hectic Marin League Race

Indians Tie Bulldogs, Novato For 2nd Place

Rightfielder Leroy Barrow only got one hit yesterday, but it happened to be a two-run fourth inning double which gave the Tamalpais Indians a 2-1 victory over San Rafael High School in Marin Athletic League action at Albert Park, San Rafael.

The defeat knocked the Bulldogs out of an undisputed MAL title, giving them a 7-4 record, the same as Tam and Novato, all one-half game behind Marin Catholic.

Indian hurler Ron Gilliam pitched a three-hitter, fanning seven and walking three, and San Rafael's Bill Joost, who had pitched 19⅔ scoreless innings going into yesterday's game, whiffed two while walking three.

Second baseman Mike Einstein led the Indians' seven-hit attack with two safeties in three at-bats. And Rocky Shone, San Rafael catcher, provided the game's only other extra-base hit with a double in the first.

Terra Linda Nips Drake In Closie

With one game remaining on its regular Marin Athletic League schedule, Terra Linda High School's baseball team increased its record to 5-6, edging Drake, 5-4, yesterday on the Drake diamond in San Anselmo.

Paul Lee, rightfielder, provided the Trojans the backbreaking blow with a bases loaded triple in the third after the Pirates had grabbed a 1-0 edge in the first frame.

Both chuckers, Terra Linda's Ed Beckley and Drake's Bob Tobin, went the distance, each fanning seven and giving up six hits. Beckley walked two while Tobin issued three free passes.

It was Lee and shortstop Fred Daniel sparking the Trojans at the plate, each with two hits in four trips.

Montgomery High of Santa Rosa won top team honors, with Tam and Hogan tying for the number two spot.

Some of the meet's highlights:

Tam's Ken Blasingame broke his own school record in the 120 high hurdles, winning in 14.5; Mitchell Howard ran his best time ever for the Indians in that same event, posting a 14.9; Indian Honor Jackson racked up two seconds with a 19.8 in the 180 lows and a 22-7¼ in the long jump, the latter being his best ever in that event.

Redwood's Tom Cooke notched a second in the 440, 52.3, while teammate Jeff Hicks lost out in a "jump-off" and finished second in the pole vault, 12-7.

For Drake High School, speedster Dean Lazzarini was awarded a second in the 100-yard dash, 9.8, in a very, very, close race which he almost got the nod on; and Doug Manuel pushed the shot 54-6½, also winning a second. Lazzarini did not run the 220.

Marin Catholic's big Gary Wittenmeier took a second in the discus, 154-8; Tam's Mark Theiss placed fourth in the 220, 23.2; and Terra Linda's Bob Bunnell whipped through the two mile run in 9:56.0, though it was only good enough for a fourth against some of the toughest competitors in Northern California.

The competition will be even tougher next Saturday when the first five thinclads in each varsity and Class B event compete in the North Coast Section finals at Edwards Field, Berkeley. The trials are slated for 9:30 a.m. and the finals begin at 1 p.m.

Tam Coach Bruce Grant announced that his Class B team broke four school records in the meet: Steve Ellis placing fourth with a 1:28.3 in the 660; Malcolm Collier erasing his own school mark with a second place 3:13.8 in the 1320; Reg Walker jumping 21-4¼ in the long jump, third place; and Tam's 440-yard relay team winning with a 44.4.

Tam's Alan Lee, hit by the flu bug, nevertheless won the 100 in 10.0, and places second in the 220, 22.6.

San Rafael got a good performance from Dale Anderson in the discus, and Drake's Ron Piombo and Dan Murphy both held their own in the shot put and pole vault respectively. Murphy was the only Marin entrant placing in the pole vault.

REDS WIN AGAIN, BUCS TOP L.A., ASTROS BOW

By MIKE RATHET

Headaches?

Ron Hunt probably gave Herman Franks another one but Milt Pappas' probably cleared one of Don Heffner's.

Hunt, the New York Mets' scrappy second baseman, continued to shell Franks' pitching staff last night, collecting two singles and a homer and driving in five runs in a 7-5 victory over San Francisco that sent the Giants down to their fifth loss in the last six games.

Hunt gave Franks a headache in New York last weekend when he collected eight hits in 14 trips to the plate as the Mets took two out of three from San Francisco and snapped the Giants' winning streak at 12.

The scene has shifted to San Francisco this weekend, but Hunt picked up where he left off, reaching base every time he batted. And he slugged the key blow, a three-run homer in the eighth inning that broke a 4-4 tie.

At Cincinnati, Pappas showed up at the ball park with a headache, so Heffner tapped Joey Jay to start for the Reds. He worked like an aspirin tablet on Heffner, probably pitching himself back into the starting rotation in a 5-3 victory over St. Louis.

Jay had to leave in the eighth inning when he ran out of steam, but through seven innings he checked St. Louis on four hits and struck out 10 in a strong effort that got the Reds started on the way to their fifth straight victory and ninth in 10 games.

Elsewhere Mack Jones hit two homers in a five-homer attack that gave Atlanta a 12-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh belted Los Angeles 7-3 and Philadelphia edged Houston 6-5 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Cleveland nipped the Chicago White Sox 3-2, Boston blanked Kansas City 3-0, Washington downed California 6-5, the New York Yankees edged Minnesota 2-1 and Baltimore belted Detroit 8-4 before the Tigers turned the tables for a 9-5 nightcap victory.

The Reds collected all their runs on homers, Johnny Edwards hitting a three-run shot in the fifth inning and Tommy Helms and Deron Johnson collecting solo homers in the fifth and sixth, respectively. Bill McCool preserved Jay's fourth victory against two defeats, ending the Cardinals' eighth inning rally by striking out Jerry Buchek.

Jones, who has been out of the line-up because of a shoulder operation, hit a solo homer in the second inning and connected with a man on in the seventh. Hank Aaron hit his 14th homer and Joe Torre and Felipe Alou each tagged their ninth in support of Denny Lemaster. Ernie Banks supplied the Cubs' runs with a pair of homers.

The Pirates put it out of reach against the Dodgers by belting Don Sutton for five first inning runs. Willie Stargell's two-run double was the big blow. Roberto Clemente, Donn Clendenon and Bill Mazeroski each singled in one run during the uprising. Jeff Torborg accounted for two Dodger runs with a homer.

The Astros built a 5-1 lead with the help of homers by Felix Mantilla and John Bateman, but the Phillies tied it in the eighth with a four-run rally capped by Johnny Callison's two-run single. In the 10th, pinch hitter Harvey Kuenn doubled and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Cookie Rojas.

Hardtop Races At Vallejo, Petaluma Tracks Tonight

There will be hardtop racing tonight at Petaluma and Vallejo, with 50 to 60 cars expected to compete at each location.

At Vallejo Speedway will be the Bay Cities Racing Assn. action, opening with time trials at 7:30 and heat racing at 8:30. Mill Valley's George Nunez won the final heat and semi-main last Saturday and will be trying to repeat tonight. In six Saturday night shows on the Vallejo oval, no driver has been able to repeat as a main event winner.

The story is about the same at the Petaluma Fairgrounds where different drivers have won the main event of all the four previous cards. Time trials start at 7 o'clock in Petaluma, with racing following at 8.

In drag racing, Neil Anderson of San Rafael will be trying to duplicate last week's win when action resumes tonight at the Vaca Valley Drag Strip near Vacaville.

Anderson won the trophy in Class DSP with a speed of 103 miles per hour and elapsed time of 13.40 seconds. Today's time trials begin at 4 p.m., followed by eliminations at 9:30.

Meanwhile, Marin Catholic's junior varsity baseballers assured themselves of at least a tie for the mythical J.V. league flag with Craig Creighton fanning seven in a 14-4 triumph over Novato's jayvees.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

26 EDITORIAL PAGE Sat., May 21, 1966 San Rafael, Calif.

The Editor's Notebook

Marin History Display Is Good News For Newcomer

COUNTY LIBRARIAN Virginia Keating's offer to display Marin historical materials at the county library in the Civic Center is indeed welcome.

In less than two decades the population of Marin has multiplied more than five-fold. This means that more than four-fifths of our people are "new" in varying degrees. Local history tends to become lost in the face of such an onslaught of immigration.

It was no surprise when the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission recently experienced difficulty in trying to run down some details of local history. The number of Marin residents familiar with local history is small, and the number diminishes every year. New arrivals seem to need to be around most of a decade before they develop much interest in local history. Most never do.

MISS KEATING'S OFFER to display pictures and other materials of historical interest is indeed welcome because it will enable many newcomers to get their first easy exposure to Marin's colorful history.

The Marin Historical Society's museum in Boyd Park, San Rafael, has served this function long and well, but it has never attracted the number of visitors it deserves. It is conceivable that the county library "exposure" could whet the appetite of many, leading to an increase in the number of visitors to the museum.

STARTING WITH THE INDIANS as Sir Francis Drake found them when he paid white man's first visit to our area nearly 300 years ago, the history of Marin is fascinating.

It is unfortunate that the place in history of our Coast Miwok Indians has been demeaned. "Diggers," our teachers scornfully say all-too-often to our students. Yes, in some seasons our Indians did subsist largely on the abundant (and delicious) sealife that abounded along Marin's shores—and still does in some places.

The Coast Miwoks, like their neighbors the Pomos around Bodega Bay were accomplished basket weavers. A visit to the California Indian Museum in Sacramento will impress this indelibly on the viewer. They did have an organized society suited to their needs. Their handling of both juvenile and adult delinquency problems was much superior to ours, of course.

AFTER DRAKE, CAME Cermeno, Ayala and the others, each providing another most interesting chapter in our local history.

The mission, the royal grants, the coming of saw mills, the 49ers, the paper mill, the explosive factory, the ferry boats, the railroads, the wineries, the breweries, and the spas all provide more interesting and in some instances exciting chapters. Marin even had an important part in the events leading to the Bear Flag Republic which preceded transfer of California from Mexico to the United States.

IT IS A PITY that there exists no single one-volume book which embraces our colorful history.

It is a pity that so few of our historical sites are identified and marked.

It is a pity that organizations like the Marin Visitors Bureau have done so little to push the collection and preservation of historical data. It would be of immense interest to visitors, if only a visitor could know about the great events that took place here and could be led to sites where those events are commemorated.

If Mrs. Keating's project at the County Library is to produce maximum benefits for Marin, it must motivate individuals and groups (like the Visitors Bureau) to "get off the dime" on locating, identifying, marking and mapping Marin's historic points of interest, especially those of interest to visitors.

WAY TO THE ALTAR MARRED BY ACCIDENT

It was a rough road to romance for a young man and his fiance as they drove to the Pittsburgh courthouse for a marriage license.

At a traffic light he put his car into reverse, nearly hitting a policeman and a pedestrian. He went into forward gear and knocked down another policeman.

The officer fired at the departing car, which went out of control and struck two parked autos.

The man was charged with driving without a license, not having an owner's card, failure to stop at a policeman's command, plus assault and battery.

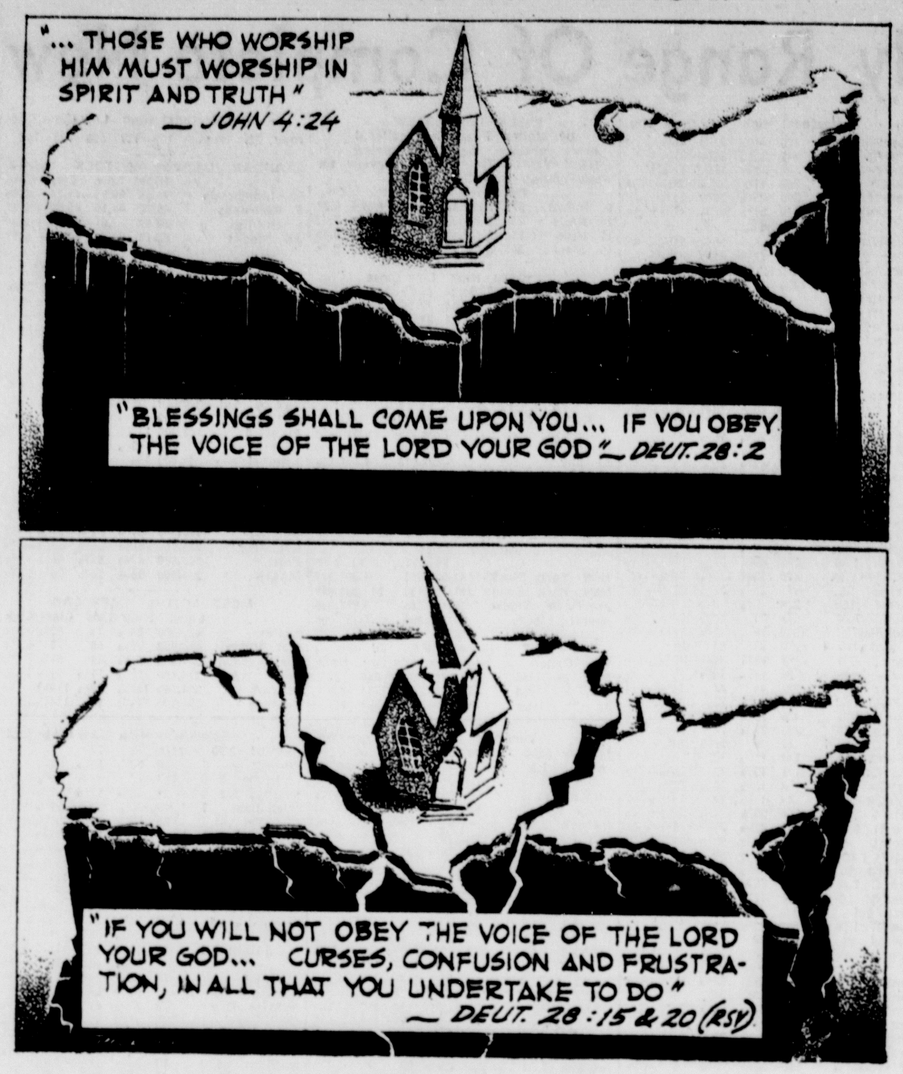

Some marriages get off to an equally unfavorable start. This happens when partners have an inadequate grasp of the unity and lifelong nature of marriage. Or they may fail to understand that it is decreed by God for mature, self-sacrificing persons.

If you are well informed about the spiritual, moral and economic aspects of matrimony, you can promote personal happiness and the welfare of society by patiently explaining these factors to others.

"They are no longer two, but one flesh. What therefore God has joined together, let no man put asunder." (Mark 10:8, 9)

Give me the quiet courage, Holy Spirit, to strengthen the love and self-giving of married life.

Teacher Applauded For Smoker Project

Editor, Independent-Journal:

A salute to Miss Dorothy Wall, 5th-6th grade teacher at the MacPhail School for originating the single most effective anti-cigarette smoking program in California.

She inspired her class to research and dramatize the dangers of smoking by playing the roles of doctors, scientists, afflicted patients, tobacco and ad men, ex-smokers, and even the surgeon general. On their own time the students contacted our local heart, cancer, chest and medical organizations. They even set up experiments and equipment.

The program has been taped and will be used to instruct other teachers of their potential power in this area. Miss Wall's students, now staunchly anti-cigarette, will be written up in the California Inter-Agency Council's Bulletin where their accomplishment may excite others to repeat it.

Incidentally many students have asked why cigarette vending machines are permitted in Marin General Hospital, wondering whether the hospital was short of patients.

ABAG Compared To Huxley's New Book

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Concerning your May 12 editorial approval of ABAG:

Again, I quote from Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World Re-visited."

"We know that life in a huge modern city is anonymous—less than fully human. Therefore, if you wish to avoid the spiritual improverishment of individuals and whale societies, leave the metropolis and revive the small country community, or alternatively humanize the metropolis by creating within its network of mechanical organization the urban equivalent of small country communities in which individuals can meet and cooperate as complete persons, not as the mere embodiments of specialized functions."

Further: ". . . a majority of tomorrow's voters do not believe that government of the people, by the people is possible, and would be perfectly content to live in the style to which the boom has accustomed them, ruled from above by an oligarchy of assorted experts (you, too?). Perhaps the forces that now menace freedom are too strong to be resisted for very long. It is still our duty to do whatever we can to resist them."

Personal note: And I shall miss the sounds of the little city councils and the local school boards haranguing far into the night. This, to me, is the vital music of a free society.

Marijuana's Link To Assassinations

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Let those who would legalize marijuana take note:

New World experience with this plant, cannabis sativa, is short and little documented. However, the Oriental variety, cannabis indica or hashish, figures in Arabic literature and folklore dating back hundreds of years. The Old Man of the Mountains, a legendary figure of terror, kept a gang of killers for hire who were known as hemp eaters, "hashishin." From this comes our English word "assassin."

This drug apparently operates by depressing or distorting the moral faculties, or judgment, while leaving unimpaired the perception and motor responses (unlike alcohol). Herein lies its danger.

Not habituating- Not physically harmful? Perhaps not to those using it. But what of those around them? Does not society deserve protection against those who profiteer from these dangerous attractive "dream drugs"? What protection are they receiving?

The 1965 Marin Grand Jury report states that in that year, 19 persons pleaded guilty to possession or sale of marijuana. Some involved multiple offenses; some as much as 4 to 6 pounds of marijuana. Yet only two were sentenced: one to 30 days, one to 90. Seventeen received probation or a suspended sentence.

Has this situation continued in 1966? The schools say this is a law enforcement problem, but what steps have the district attorney and the courts taken?

When Mr. Abercrombie, a county probation officer, can write a public letter defending the use of marijuana—and do so unchallenged—to whom can we look for protection?

We must have effective help to keep our children from being recruited into the Old Man of the Mountain's mindless group of "hashishin."

Professor Gets Reply On Orchestra Attack

Editor, Independent-Journal:

This is written in regard to Professor Kolitsch's letter of May 11th.

Due to the fact that the Marin Youth Orchestra is made up of young musicians with limited repetoires, I feel that the professor is unjustified in considering our performance of May 1 a display of "hogwash." Some of the musical selections were above the range of ability of some of the members, but I urge the professor to take into consideration the fact that this is a youth orchestra.

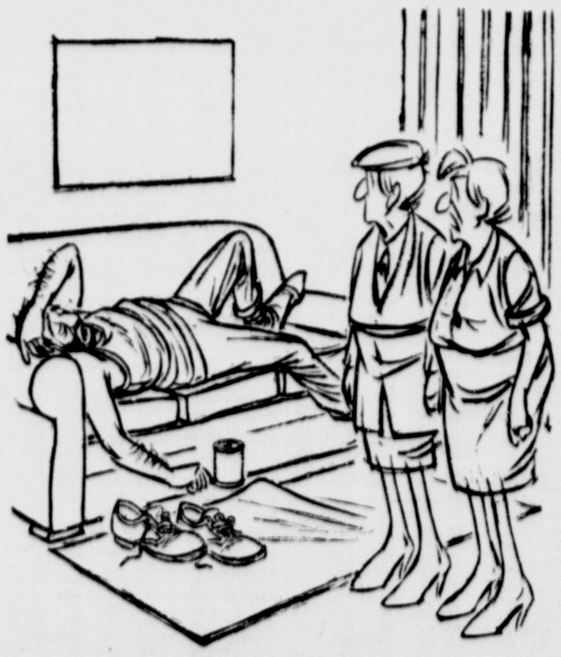

The professor feels that there is a show of neglect and disinterest on the part of the musical education systems in our schools, but, if this were the case, we would not have the opportunities of playing under such excellent instructors. I consider myself very fortunate to be able to play under the direction of Hugo Rinaldi of San Rafael High School and Gordon Lowe of Terra Linda High School. Professor Kolitsch is mistaken if he thinks that these two men are the least bit negligent about their work. They are both very well known for the accomplishments of the musical groups they direct.

Professor Kolitsch is supporting a good cause, that of keeping musical education in the school curriculum. But, at the same time, he is defeating his own purpose by discouraging young musicians and destroying their confidence. I consider it very poor judgment on his part to express his opinion of musical education at the expense of our orchestra. I feel his method of gaining support by ridiculing the attempts of our orchestra unjust and inconsiderate.

New Foreign Policy Expert Not Frozen Into Any Single Groove

WASHINGTON — If President Lyndon B. Johnson and Secretary Dean Rusk were intent upon a "rigid" foreign policy, stuck in the grooves of the past, they never in the world would have named Zbigniew Brzezinski to the State Department's Policy Planning Council.

THERE IS an ungrooved thinker. He is hawk, dove, anti-aggressionist, cooperator, creative initiator, and an unprofessorial intellectual — all in one.

Sounds like an inconsistent fellow. He is not inconsistent at all. He is hawk when it comes to standing firm in Viet Nam. He is dove when it comes to expanding trade with the Communist nations of Eastern Europe and trying to get the Soviet Union to join with the U.S. to bring all of Europe East and West, into closer unity.

Prof. Brzezinski is consistent in that he knows that one line of policy is needed to contain violence in Southeast Asia and a different line is needed to further closer ties between Eastern and Western Europe.

AS THE director of the Research Institute on Communist Affairs at Columbia University, Prof. Brzezinski understands the important differences in the spectrum of Communist nations and is aware that there must be similar spectrum in U.S. policy.

What makes the Brzezinski appointment such a good one is that he is not a planner who grasps at empty policies which have nice labels. Just because something worked in one place doesn't mean that it will work somewhere else—unless the conditions are the same.

Brzezinski makes these points with great clarity in an article he wrote for the current New Leader before he moved to State.

Senator Fulbright and Morse and some others suggest that "an agreement between the U.S. and China to neutralize Southeast Asia" would be just dandy. Would it work? This is what Prof. Brzezinski says:

IN THIS revolutionary age, neutralization as a method of resolving cold war tensions works only in a context of mutual restraint, stable external balance of power, and firm internal political stability. These conditions could not be achived after World War II in Central Europe, where the West and the Soviet Union had irreconcilable objectives, and they do not exist today in Asia."

But isn't the substantial neutralization of Yugoslavia a good precedent for trying it in Southeast Asia? Brzezinski says it isn't, because a "neutral" Yugoslavia rests on the presence of Soviet power in Central Europe and Western power in Greece and Italy.

ANOTHER REASON cited by Brzezinski why neutralization is unsatisfactory in Southeast Asia today is that it assumes a withdrawal of American power "in return for a similar withdrawal on China's part." China's power presence is determined by its geography and could not be carried out.

But what of the fall-back proposal which Sen. Fulbright has advocated, namely, that the U.S. retire to "easily defensible bases somewhat like Guantanamo and Gibraltar"? The answer is that the U.S. exercises no influence on Cuban affairs from Guantanamo. Nor do the British on Spain from Gibraltar.

THESE ARE the reason Professor Brzezinski stresses that neutralism is rarely a workable "shortcut in the difficult and probably lengthy process of creating international stability."

The White House and the State Department will find Brzezinski a good man to have around.

Negro Is 'Somebody' To Dixie Politician

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, Jr.

An 81-year-old man, the grandchild of slaves, recently emerged from a Lowndes County, Ala., voting booth after casting his ballot and said: "It felt good to me . . . It made me think I was sort of somebody."

AND HE IS somebody. He is an American citizen exercising the most precious right of a free man, the right to elect public officials who will represent him and be responsible to him. This is a right few people have in this world, and it is a right long denied Negro citizens in the Deep South. So this man is really "a somebody", he is someone who took part in the making of history.

For that is the significance of the surge in Negro voting in the South that is taking place this spring. Who wins or loses is of transient importance; what is of lasting importance is that thanks to the Voting Rights Law of 1965, the steadfastness of the present administration and the determination of the federal registrars who registered Negroes, and the courage of thousands of Deep South Negroes, democracy is no longer a stranger to parts of America.

Although Alabama's governor or governoress, as the case may be, won the Democratic Primary, Negroes made substantial gains. Some Negro candidates made excellent showings, either winning local posts or forcing segregationists into runoffs. They showed their political muscle and the potential which exists for informed leadership and the kind of power at the polls which wins concessions from politicians.

SOME OF THESE concessions became apparent during the election race. Pictures in national newspapers showed a segregationist candidate putting some coins in civil rights group's collection plate at a rally. The racist sheriff of Selma, took off his "Never" button and tempered his remarks concerning Negroes. Even Governor and Mrs. Wallace finally exhibited enough mastery of the English language to at long last pronounce the "e" in "Negro".

But the influence on white Southern politicians was even more profound. The hundreds of thousands of Negro voters added to the rolls since last August have given new hope to Southern maderates and have encouraged the professional politicians in the South to rethink previous positions.

ALL OVER the South, respectable white moderates who either abdicated their responsibility in the violent racist aura of the early 1960's or who were defeated for office, are back again in public life. People like Brooks Hays, the Congressman who lost his seat after urging peaceful desegregation in Little Rock in 1958, is running for Gov. Faubus' office. Old "New Dealers" and young "New Frontiersmen" are hoping that the new climate created by the growth of the Negro vote wil put them back in office.

Thus, the "second Reconstruction" is taking root in the South. Negroes voted in all Southern states in the decade following the Civil War, and some also served as governors and legislators. These governments were responsible for such steps as free public education and other important social legislation. Negroes played a lesser role in the years following 1877 but they still voted and managed to make their cause heard. With the coming of "white supremacy" in the 1890's and the enactment of Jim Crow laws, they lost their rights until the passage of the recent Civil Rights law. Now the South is again turning to its Negro citizens,

FORTUNE TELLERS RULE VIET NAM

Americans Startled At Soothsayers' Power Over Military, Governmental Actions

SAIGON (UPI) —Americans in recent years have stood by half-amused, half-aghast, watching their Vietnamese allies make momentous decisions on the advice of sooth-sayers.

Military campaigns have been launched or canceled, political stands taken or abandoned, all because the wife of some Vietnamese general was told by an aged and respected fortune teller that it was the propitious thing to do.

But now the shoe is on the other foot and the Vietnamese are quietly amused by the spectacle of American hand-wringing, and political sooth-saying over the possible outcome of promised national elections.

What if the electronics produce a neutralist government that asks the United States to get out?

These questions have been posed a hundred times a day by American officials, ever since the ruling military junta gave in to Buddhist demands for an elected national assembly.

But these questions evoke only polite smiles from most Vietnamese.

In three to five months time, the generals who have ruled South Viet Nam since last June are pledged to hold elections and then surrender power to a government chosen by the elected assemblymen.

To many here, this is a near-impossible task simply from the standpoint of the physical and security arrangements.

"How can a meaningful election be held, when the government can't send troops, much less erect election booths in a large portion of the country," ask many Americans.

To the Vietnamese, this situation poses no great difficulty, since they have already decided that Communist and neutralist elements should be barred from the elections in any case.

Moreover, they point to last May's provincial and city elections, in which more than 70 per cent of the registered electorate took part in the balloting. The fact that fewer than 50 per cent of the people judged eligible bothered to register causes no concern among the Vietnamese.

Considering that electioneering was banned, that few among the generally unenthusiastic Vietnamese had any idea of what the candidates stood for, that the elections were restricted to city dwellers and those few rural peasants judged to be in secure villages, a turnout of 3.5 million voters out of a possible 9.5 million, or 37 per cent, wasn't thought to be such a poor turnout.

If the candidates are permitted to campaign, if the elections are opened to a greater number of the electorate and if the government permits any Vietnamese to stand for election instead of reserving the right to veto a candidate, most Vietnamese believe the turnout will be even better in the promised national elections.

Rather than ponder the dark possibility that a neutralist government will emerge from the national elections and the Americans will be asked to get out, the Buddhist leaders who spearheaded the struggle movement for national elections prefer to take a rosier view.

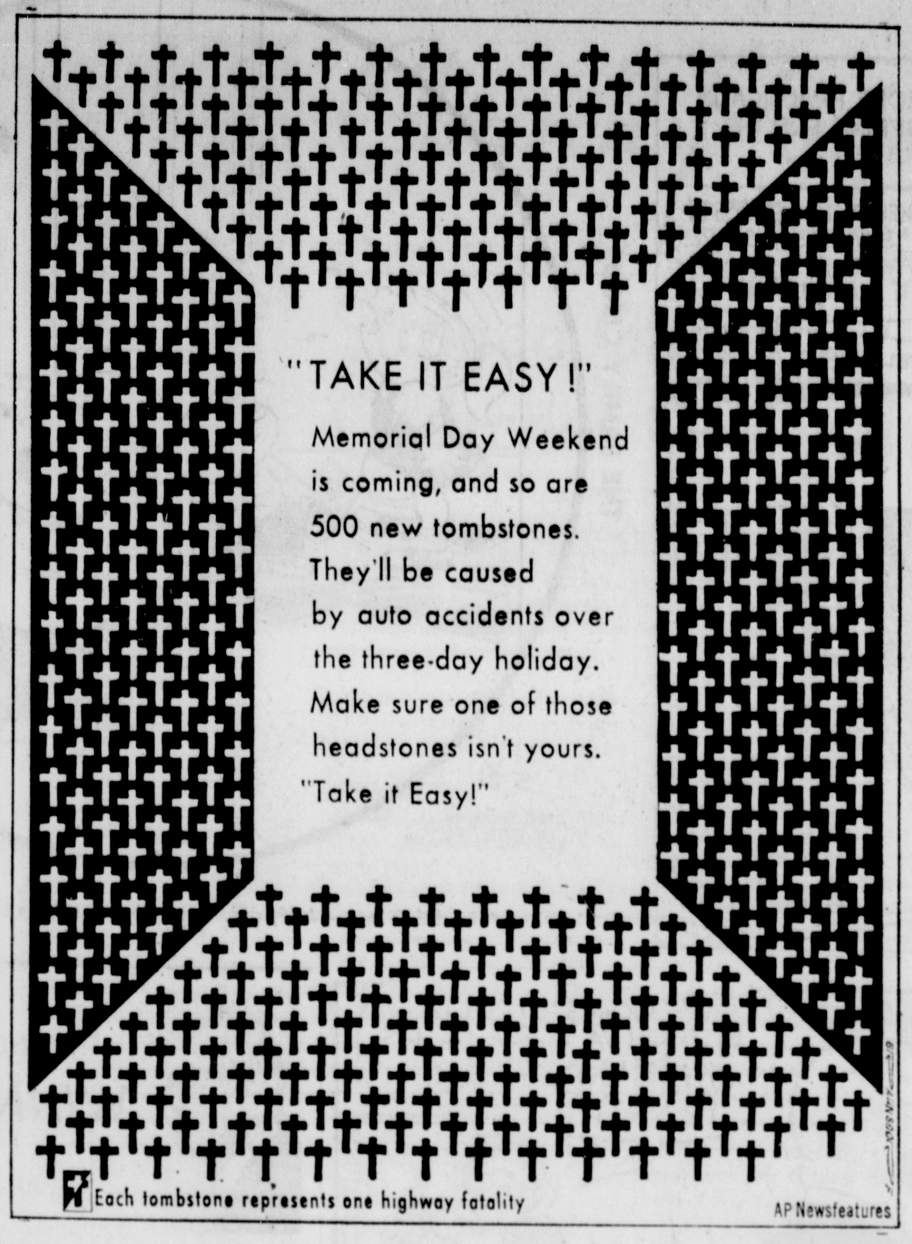

With an elected, popular government, the government's war against Communist subversion will be a simpler task, hence the war will be won quicker and with less bloodshed, argue the Buddhists.

Moreover Premier Nguyen Cao Ky voiced the position of many Vietnamese military men recently when he declared:

"If the elected government does not meet the real needs of the situation" i.e., if it is not sufficiently anti - Communist, Ky said, "I will not hesitate to overthrow it."

Fully confident that Ky means just what he said, and that many other generals feel the same way, the Vietnamese just don't see how any government with neutralist tendencies could survive the wrath of the armed forces.

Thus it is that the bulk of the Vietnamese are simply not concerned over the outcome of the national elections, and are somewhat amused by the obvious anxiety of Americans both here and at home.

Bloody Statistics Presage Memorial Day Traffic Toll

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
A.P. Newsfeature Writer

Such is the exquisite art of present-day statistics, it is now possible to say that on a certain weekend not far away, auto accidents will kill between 460 and 540 Americans. That means kill immediately.

Actually, the weekend will cost the lives of 620 to 720 Americans, fatally injured in auto accidents. At the same time, between 22,000 and 25,000 Americans will receive disabling injuries in auto accidents.

It's the Memorial Day Weekend that we are talking about, of course, and the prediction (they shy away from that word) is by the National Safety Council.

But whether you call it a prediction, or a forecast, or an estimate, or whatever, it will come very close to the truth.

Auto accidents and auto safety are very "in" right now. They have resulted in best-sellers, stock market plunges, Congressional hearings, acute uncomfortableness in the region of Detroit, and innumerable barroom arguments (none just before driving, one hopes.)

And still, between 460 and 540 Americans will be killed in auto accidents on Memorial Day weekend.

The appalling fact is that everyone knows this, and yet it will still happen. Not to you, of course, but perhaps to someone you know. Should all car owners then lock the garage on Friday night, and refuse to go near the car until Tuesday morning?

No, the better way might be to subtract one person, yourself, from the statistics. You are an excellent driver, your car is in top condition. You've taken the National Driver's Test on television, maybe twice, and passed with top grades. You know all about turnpike fatigue, and making that "one for the road" coffee. You never run a light, or pass on the right. And you know enough to watch out for the other fellow, because he does.

Still, the accidents happen. Statistically, the National Safety Council says they happen in this pattern: car and pedestrian(s) 17.8 per cent of all accidents; two motor vehicles 38.9 per cent; other collisions—car with fixed object, 11.2 per cent; non-collision, such as running off the road, overturning, or falling out of a car, 32.1 per cent.

The lore of driving is full of "don'ts." So just in time for Memorial Day, 1966, here's one "do:" "Take it easy."

This Week In The World

The fragile political truce between the Saigon government and Viet Nam's militant Buddhists suddenly — and to Washington's great concern — came apart at the seams. As if Communists weren't enough, South Viet Nam had a potential civil war on its hands.

The new political crisis blew up at the start of the week when Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. — determined to put down rebel troops — sent his paratroopers and marines into Da Nang, the port city of 160,000.

The nation's leading monk, Thich Tri Quang, telephoned an ultimation from Hue, a Buddhist center 400 miles north of Saigon, for relay to Ky's military government: Resign or more blood will flow.

In Washington caution prevailed. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said only that the political factions in South Viet Nam would be doing better by concentrating on the war against the Communists, reminding them that the internal turmoil was causing restiveness among the American people.

The boiling South Viet Nam pot was sure to stir up more criticism of the administration's policies there — criticism which obviously has already got under President Johnson's skin.

In Chicago for a Democratic party fund raising dinner, he took aim at administration critics, attacking them as "Nervous Nellies." He called for an end to criticism, asking those in his audience to pledge support.

Around The World, Around The Clock

WASHINGTON—At first Washington appeared to be pooh-poohing Red China's latest nuclear blast. Only 130 kilotons of yield, said State Department press officer Robert McCloskey on May 11. Nine days later, however, the government disclosed the blast May 9 was considerably more powerful — at least in the 200 kiloton range, equivalent to 200,000 tons of TNT.

CAPE KENNEDY—Everything was in perfect order Tuesday. Everything was, as they say in space circles, go. But the Atlas missile launched from Cape Kennedy went out of control. And that scrubbed the follow-up launch of Gemini astronauts Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan.

The Atlas was to have placed an Agena target rocket in orbit with which the astronauts were to rendezvous. The Gemini 9 launch was rescheduled for the end of the month.

Morse's Anti-War Stand Faces Oregon Voter Test

By JERRY TIPPENS
Advance News Service

PORTLAND, ORE. — President Johnson and the No. 1 critic of his Viet Nam policy, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., will clash by proxy in Oregon's Democratic primary next Tuesday.

The U.S. Senate race in Morse's home state will put the Viet Nam war issue to a test among voters on a statewide scale. Rep. Robert Duncan, in Johnson's corner, is opposed by Howard Morgan, the outspoken Senator's hand-picked hopeful.

They are vying for nomination to the post being vacated by Democrat Maurine Neuberger.

Duncan, 46, a two-term congressman, and Morgan, 52, a former member of the Federal Power Commission, were political allies until the Viet Nam war split the nest. Duncan, the "hawk," is a firm advocate of administration policy. Morgan, the "dove," is in the Morse flock.

They offer a clear choice on the only significant difference between them and both are waging their campaigns on that one issue—Viet Nam.

Duncan regards the 1966 election as a referendum on American foreign policy since World War II.

"The administration must be backed," he contends. "This country's policy of containment worked against Russian communism and it can work against Chinese communism as well."

"Duncan is talking now like (Barry) Goldwater did nine months before the election," Morgan responds. "This is a mistake Johnson did not make until 90 days after he was safely elected."

The congressman's support of the war prompted Morse to break a long-standing pledge against taking part in primary campaigns. Grumbling that Duncan was "a Johnson 'yes-man'," Morse persuaded the hard-hitting Morgan to enter the race.

Morgan promptly accused his foe of being a "blind follower" and declared, "No man should hold the people's Senate seat who has already surrendered his independence of judgment to another authority."

Morse has swung into the campaign as if it were his own.

No Democrat who supports the Johnson policy has a chance of getting elected in Oregon, he contends.

Later, he went a step further. Morse said that if Duncan is nominated he will vote for Republican Mark Hatfield, who is leaving the governorship to run for the Senate.

"Hatfield will walk through him like tissue paper, and have my vote in the process," the Senator said.

But Duncan, who wrapped them all up as presenting the "Morse-Hatfield-Morgan position," had a ready answer. "The Governor may find a little barbed wire in the tissue paper," Duncan said.

Hatfield has shown signs recently that he fears Duncan may be right.

The Republican governor has tried to free himself of Morse's embrace.

A few months ago Hatfield looked unbeatable for the Senate.

Then, Hatfield assumed the stance of a dove. Public opinion polls, contrary to Morse's assessment, indicate that a huge majority of the Oregon people favor American Military action in Viet Nam.

Duncan, who had been little known outside of his southwest Oregon district, grew to statewide stature as the congressman who supported the war effort. Hatfield, despite his protests, was compared to Morse.

Duncan is campaigning more against Hatfield now that he is against Morgan, despite the finest efforts of Senator Morse, who makes frequent trips home to stand beside his chosen candidate.

Morse accused Duncan of voting to cut domestic programs because of the cost of the war; he raised money for Morgan in New York; and he helped to import a California actor, "The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," Robert Vaughn, for a campaign appearance.

A darling of labor even when he was a Republican, Morse called the Oregon AFL-CIO endorsement of Duncan "inexcusable."

But, Duncan knows that there is a prominent suspicion in Oregon that while Morse may be personally popular in the polling booth, he seems unable to transfer his influence with the voter to any other candidate.

A Weekly Page Of Background Information

THE SACRAMENTO SCENE

State Legislature Remains Tied In Knots As Primary Vote Nears

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The California Legislature completed the 15th week of its 1966 sessions and, with the June 7 primary election just over two weeks away, still was not ready to adjourn.

The lawmakers returned to their districts to campaign for a three-and-one-half day weekend with no certainty over whether action on a budget and other matters could be completed by May 27 or whether they'd have to recess the session and take up the battle again after the primary election.

Agreement on a version of a budget for 1966-67 of about $4.6 billion appeared in the offing although, in the State Assembly, there may be quite a fight on it. The budget debate could cause another showdown between Democrats supporting Gov. Edmund G. Brown against a coalition of Democrats headed by Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh and the Republicans.

Much time was being consumed in the Assembly over SB3-Collier, the "implied consent" bill which could result in six-month suspension of any driver who refused to submit to a chemical sobriety test.

Visible opposition to the bill is being spearheaded by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, which was hearing the bill. However, a number of members who voted for the bill in the Senate or who would vote in favor of it in the Assembly are not at all happy with the bill.

There's a chance the bill might be lost in some of the last minute shuffle when the session finally gets around to adjournment and, if this should take place, there would be little sorrow among the lawmakers.

The State Senate, in what some say was the first such occurrence of this century, failed to have a quorum of 21 members present on May 18 and was not able to conduct business.

On the following day, the Assembly just barely had a majority of the members present but adjourned for the day without handling any other than routine business. The short houses were further indications the members were restless and wanted to return to the campaign.

Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson, who has two prominent Democratic opponents against him in his bid for a third term, has called on fellow members of his party to halt their "cannibalistic campaigns."

In a plea closely resembling the "11th commandment" of the Republicans—an agreement that GOP candidates should attack Democrats and not each other—Anderson said he feared the Democrats might be building up for defeats in November.

Anderson's concern came, no doubt, from the fact that Governor Brown, himself, and Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch all have vigorous Democratic opponents who are leveling steady blasts at the incumbents.

A rare, friendly meeting of the heads of the two parties in the state took place as Robert L. Coate, Democratic State Central Committee chairman, and Dr. Gaylord B. Parkinson, Republican State Central Committee chairman, joined in a press conference to plug their joint "Good Citizenship Program."

The plan involves getting larger firms to encourage their employes to make financial contributions for political parties or candidates, and to have various candidates speak to them. Five firms started such programs in 1964 and employees of four of them contributed in excess of $348,000 in 1964.

The party chiefs hope the program might be expanded to 40 more firms this year and that, eventually, half the money needed for all campaigns in the state might be raised in this manner.

Election results in the June 7 primary should be available earlier than ever before. Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan said the semi-official returns probably will be handled by a computer.

Jordan said the registration for the primary—7,855,102—is higher than for any previous general or primary election except the November, 1964, voting. Meanwhile, Jordan has received a legal opinion that, even though most polls close at 7 p.m., no voting results can be announced before 8 p.m.

An exception would be that any precinct which had counted all its votes could make them public immediately.

No legislative hearings about the situation at the Berkeley campus of the University of California appear to be in the offing.

Sen. Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, president pro tempore, said he had serious reservations about holding legislative hearings in the heat of an election campaign. Burns made the statement to Ronald Reagan, GOP candidate for governor, in answer to a telegram from Reagan urging such hearings.

W. Willard Wirtz, U.S. Secretary of Labor, has approved the importing of 1,000 Mexican braceros to work in the strawberry harvest in the Salinas area but, so far, has not approved use of any braceros in the asparagus harvest in the San Joaquin Valley.

However, the State Department of Corrections revealed it has been screening some 2,000 prisoners to find some who might be suitable for work in the asparagus fields. About 100 such convicts—generally those about ready for release from prison—were at work already, with more expected to follow them shortly.

The invasion of urban development into farm areas has shown up in State Department of Agriculture statistics for 1965. Three urban counties—Los Angeles, Orange and Santa Clara, dropped in the rankings among counties for agricultural production.

The first five counties in terms of total production for the year were Fresno, Kern, Tulare, San Joaquin and Riverside, in that order. The average farm in the state in 1965 was 424 acres with a value of $222,600.

Fee Plagues State Aides —It's Illegal

SACRAMENTO (CNS — The state resources agency has a $65 question.

It's a pretty long and involved story but it has to do with a receptionist on the first floor of the resources building who also happens to be a notary public and who has been charging a $1 fee for notarizing affidavits. No one is too sure whether the fee was charged improperly but, in the past year, she's collected $65 in fees and no one knows what to do with the money.

The main call for her notary work apparently has come from sportsmen who lost their hunting or fishing licenses. In order to get a new license, they must present a notarized affidavit that their old license was unexpired and was lost. The new license then is issued for $1.

The practice was interrupted recently when one fisherman came for a replacement license and objected to paying the $1 notary fee. Generally, notaries who are state employees are not permitted to charge fees when notarizing statements for the public. In the case of the receptionist at the resources agency, she reportedly was going by a rule which prohibited the notarizing of statements without a fee.

School Board Officials Get Bad Money News

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO — (CNS) — An opinion of the attorney general affecting liability of school board members can cost California taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars.

The same opinion may jeopardize the purposes of the $275 million school bond issue before the people June 7.

The statements were made by Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction with regard to the opinion holding school board members personally liable for damage suffered from structural defects in schools constructed prior to adoption of the Field (earthquake) act in 1933.

Dr. Rafferty declared he intends to bring the opinion before the state supreme court immediately to secure a ruling on the opinion in a friendly suit, which he said would need to be instituted by a taxpayer.

Potentiality for astronomical costs to the taxpayers results not from damages (there have been none for more than 30 years), but from the fact that most of the schools in California constructed prior to 1933 do not conform to the requirements of the Field Act.

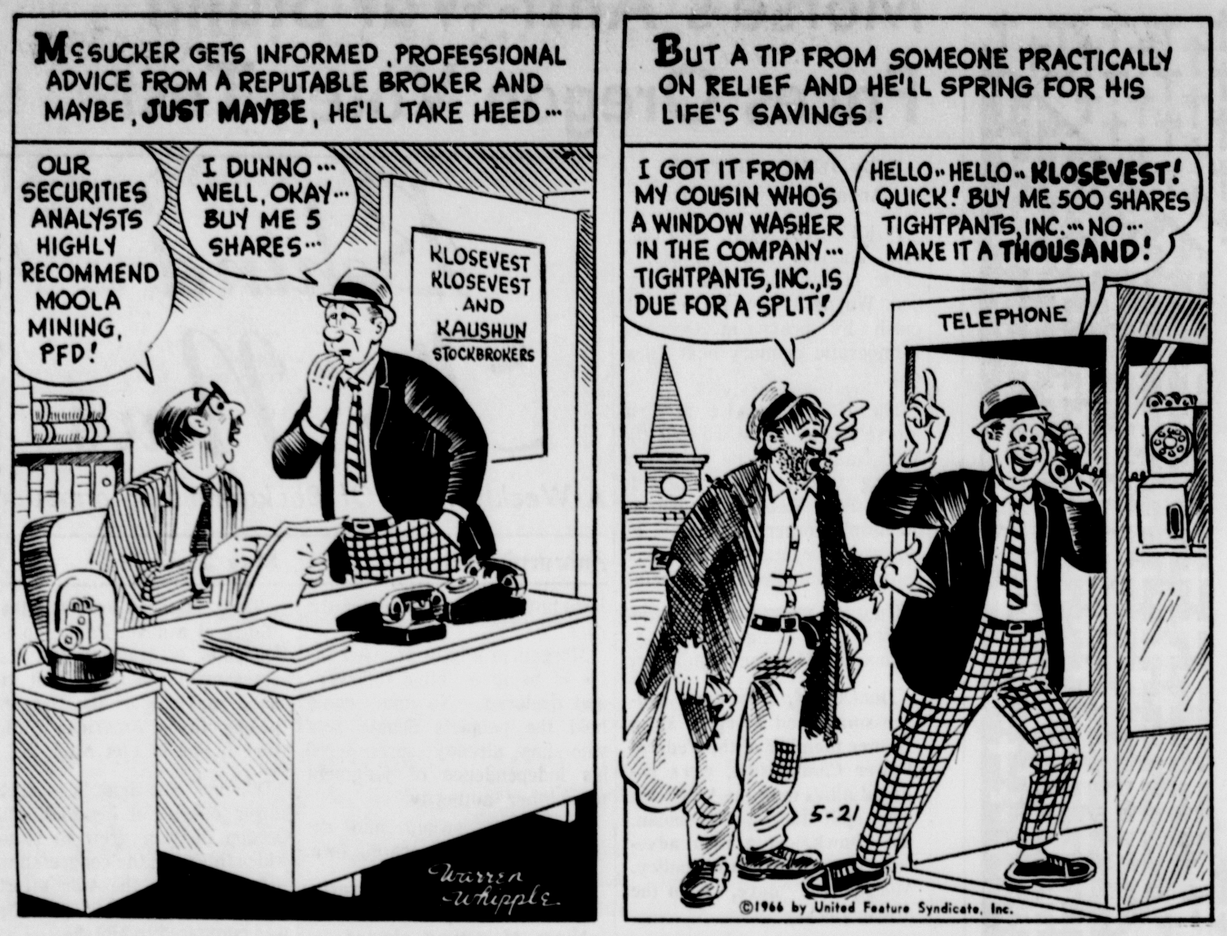

"If we have to pull these down and build new schools in their place, there isn't enough money in the state to accomplish the job," said Dr. Rafferty.

Dr. Rafferty announced the department of education is notifying all school districts in California of the opinion, and asking the districts to send it estimates of the number of structures built before the Field Act, and the approximate amount it would cost to replace them.

One "out" for school board members as far as personal liability is concerned was discussed by Paul Hoyenga, executive officer of the state allocation board, which decides on loans to school districts for new classrooms.

He said boards can call a bond election to replace pre-Field schools and if the bond issue fails, funds would not be available, a situation in which personal liability would be wiped out. However, the school district would continue to be liable in case of damage.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Bath Coup Seldom Deception, But Often Play Overpowers Opponent

The Bath Coup sometimes wins a trick by deception. An opponent who has opened the king of a suit may foolishly continue the suit when you play low from A-J-x.

More often, the Bath Coup deceives nobody but gains a trick by forcing the opening leader to shift to a different suit.

Opening lead — ♣ K

West opens the king of clubs, and South executes the Bath Coup by playing a low club.

If West is naive, he will lead another club on the assumption that his partner must hold the ace or jack of clubs. South then gets a trick with the jack as well as with the ace of clubs.

SWITCH SUIT

More often than not West will know what is going on when his partner plays the deuce on the first trick. West switches to a diamond instead of continuing the clubs.

Now South has time to make the contract.

He steps up with the ace of diamonds (a finesse would lose the time right back to the defenders), draws two rounds of trumps and leads a spade to the king. East takes the next spade with the ace and returns a club.

TAKES ACE

South takes the ace of clubs and gets to dummy with a trump to discard the jack of clubs on the last spade. South gives up one diamond, one spade, and one club, making the game.

South loses the contract if he wins the first club trick. East returns a club when in with the ace of spades, and West takes two club tricks at once.

South must surely lose a diamond and a spade, so that the loss of two club tricks dooms the contract.

More Women Going To Medical College

NEW YORK (UPI) —Since 1930, the proportion of women accepted by medical schools has increased from 4.5 to 9.1 per cent of enrolled students, the Association of American Medical Colleges reports.

Probably, the association noted, more women are likely to choose careers in medicine because of "growing shortages of medical personnel and the increasing roles in medicine compatible with the accepted roles imposed on women by our culture."

Stained Glass For Churches Of Marin

By PAT PERRY

John Lukas started making stained glass windows 20 years ago because he was attracted by their colors. Today he finds the windows are becoming more popular — "there's a need for color in the world today."

Churches are swinging away from the austere, contemporary designs of recent decades, he finds, and are rediscovering the richness and warmth that stained glass windows have given to churches for a thousand years.

Lukas makes his windows in a studio perched high on a hill overlooking the freeway in Daly City. He's currently working on a series of windows for the Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

Other Marin county churches wearing his windows are St. Isabella's Roman Catholic Church in Terra Linda and the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection in San Rafael. He's made windows, too, for San Rafael Joe's and for Zack's by the Bay in Sausalito.

The technique of making stained glass windows has changed little since they were first recorded at Rheims Cathedral in the 9th Century.

Today Lukas and glazier Larry Hall use the same methods that craftsmen have always used, with just a few contributions from modern technology.

To begin, Lukas draws intricate scale designs of the window, sometimes taking as long as a month. He then transfers his ideas to a full size charcoal cartoon, hanging vast sheets of paper on the studio walls, climbing a ladder to reach the top. Then he makes a giant jigsaw of paper sections to be used as guides in cutting out the glass.

The Church Art Glass Studio is lined with thousands of sheets of colored glass, shipped from factories on the East Coast, France, Germany and England. There is a tremendous range in colors, from pale ivory to rich purples and vivid scarlets. This is one difference that modern technology has made in the craft, Lukas explained. He keeps 300 different colors in stock; centuries ago craftsmen were restricted to a pallette of perhaps a dozen colors.

The glass is cut by hand with a hard steel wheel, another change. Diamonds once were used, and the earliest glaziers used a hot iron.

Lukas assembles the pieces of glass into the complete picture and paints in features on figures and shading. Then the glass picture is fired, fusing glass and paint together.

Glazier John Hall takes over at this point, assembling the glass sections with long strips of soft pure lead. The completed window is waterproofed, steel supporting bars placed across the back, and Hall and Lukas go to install it in the building for which it was ordered.

Working in a medium in which light is everything makes each assignment different. Separate shades of the same color glass have to be used to counteract altered light or, as Hall explains, "you have to make a window in a south wall read the same as one in a north wall."

A neighboring building or an overhanging tree can alter the tone of a window, says Lukas, and a rich ruby glass can turn quite black if the light is poor.

In his 20 years in the business, Lukas has made windows for churches of all denominations. He made a series of 24-foot-high windows for the Greek Orthodox church in San Francisco recently, and is currently working on windows for the Armenian church in the city.

Designing and making stained glass windows may be an ancient craft, but it isn't a vanishing art, according to Lukas, who finds plenty of competition for orders in the Bay Area. Both he and Hall served four-year apprenticeships at the beginning of their careers, and hope business will increase so that they'll be able to take on an apprentice.

It's an immensely satisfying profession, Lukas believes. He's creating works of art which will last for generations, perhaps centuries.

"You look at the finished window, you see its richness and color in the place for which it was intended. That's the kicks."

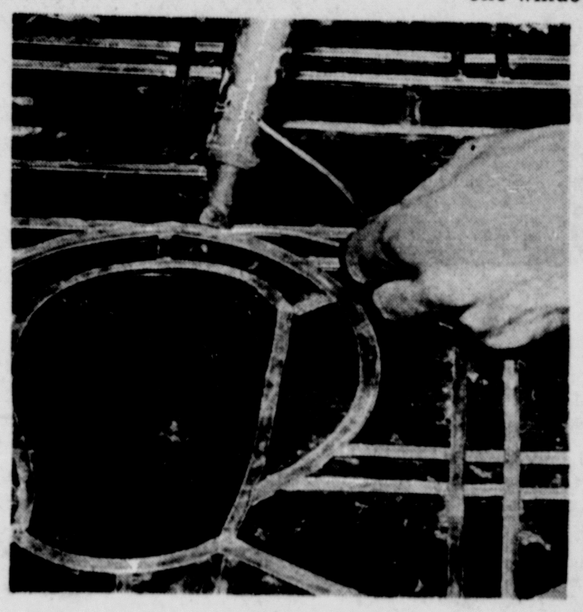

GLASS PAINT—Using a technique first used by artists in the Middle Ages, and called "grisaille," John Lukas paints features and shading on glass, following a cartoon design (photo at right). It isn't a true paint, which would not be transparent, but is made of ground glass mixed with oxides. After the painting is completed, the entire window will go into a kiln to fuse paint with glass.

FULL SIZE CARTOON — John Lukas works on a sketch for one of a series of stained glass windows for the Methodist Church of Mill Valley. He draws the charcoal cartoon only after a detailed scale drawing of the picture has been executed. It sometimes takes a month to design one window.

LEAD GLAZING—The hands of glazier Larry Hall secure each cut piece of colored glass with H-shaped strips of pure lead. The lead serves not only to accentuate the design of a stained glass window, but also to structurally reinforce the completed window.

UNCHANGED METHODS—The technique of making stained glass windows has remained virtually the same since they were first made in the 9th Century. This is one of the minor differences—an electric soldering iron is used to join the strips of lead after the assembly is complete. Craftsmen in former centuries used fire-heated soldering irons for the same job. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

Lucas Valley Has Seen Fast-Paced Changes

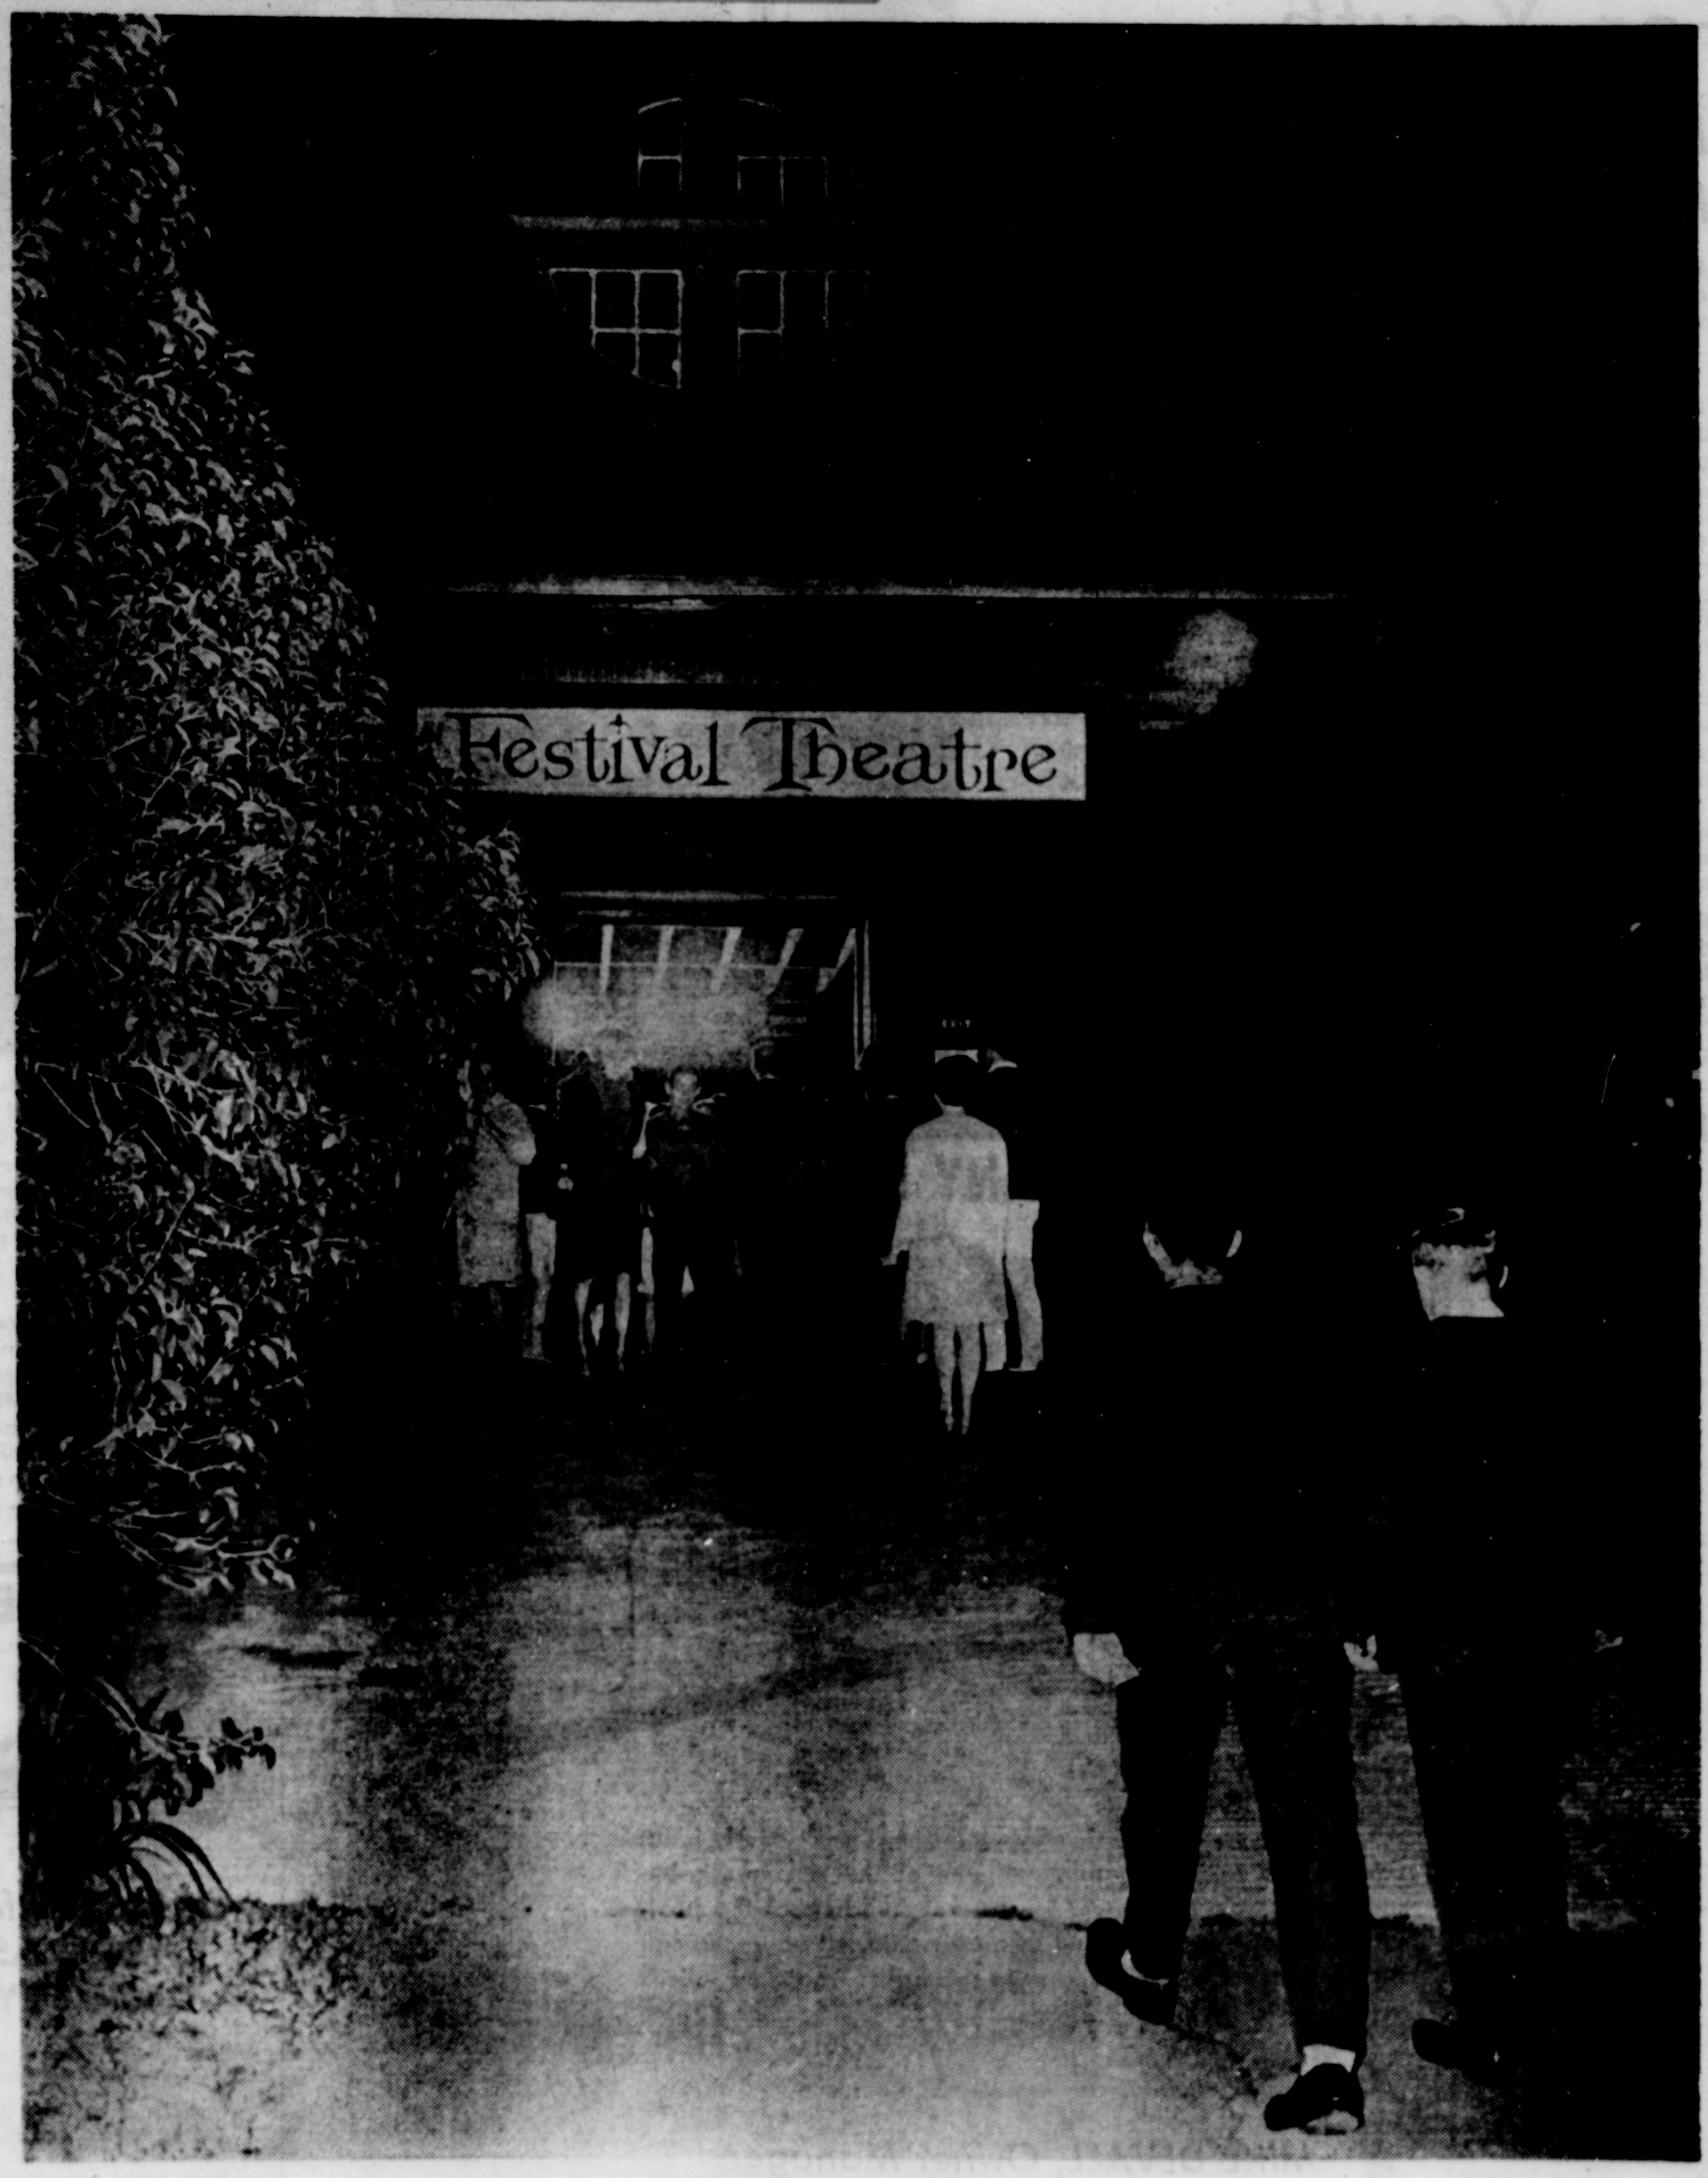

The rapid growth of central Marin County is illustrated graphically in these two aerial photographs of Lucas Valley taken more than 10 years apart. In the recent view above, the residential areas of Terra Linda (left) and Marinwood have sprung up among the tree-covered hills where sheep were grazing in 1954 when the picture below was taken. Among innovations since that time are the drive-in motion picture theater east of Highway 101 and the beginnings of the Northgate Industrial Park. Lucas Valley Road, which in 1954 trailed off into the valley—empty except for the former county hospital—now is busy with traffic bound for the growing housing complexes of that area.

A Cultural Experience For Youth

Federal Grant Facilitates Festival Theater Program

For the vast majority of Americans, even those dwelling in cities, a live professional performance of a play, an opera, a symphony, or a ballet is an altogether uncommon experience.
—Rockefeller Report on the Performing Arts

Marin County is the scene of a cultural phenomenon attracting national attention.

Not content simply to join the anguished cries which characterize today's thinking about "the American cultural desert," and "what's the matter with kids today?" the office of the Marin County superintendent of schools and the Festival Theater of San Anselmo have joined forces to do something about both.

Their joint program is known to those who are dealing with it as, simply, "Title III" (an abbreviation for Title III of the Federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act).

THROUGH IT almost 1,700 Marin County secondary school students have found, and have been encouraged to articulate, a new awareness of the world, their own society and something called "the theater experience."

What is Title III?

To Newsweek magazine it is something that in its original submission "weighed in at 32 pounds." To educators and administrators from as far away as Texas, Wisconsin, North Carolina, Delaware and Florida, it is a very serious matter, as evidenced by their requests to study its organization and implementation in Marin County.

TITLE III IS, in Marin County, a program which seeks to remedy, by initiative and concerted action, the cultural lack the Rockefeller Report pinpoints.

It seeks to make live performances of professional caliber available to secondary school students, and to provide a supporting context which makes at-

The importance of this aim and the validity of the joint desire of Festival Theater and Marin County to realize it received a vote of confidence when, under the provisions of the Title III act, the program was awarded a sustaining federal grant of $48,400.

THE PROGRAM was predicated upon the existence of a theater of professional stature which possessed the personnel and technical facilities to implement the project. It was further based upon the fact that the Festival Theater, out of its own belief in the need for such a program, had been working in the educational area since 1964.

As jointly conceived by the office of County Schools Supt. Virgil S. Hollis and the administrative and artistic staffs of Festival Theater, Marin's Title III project consists of four major parts:

1. Actual attendance at the performance:

For many, this is a "first." For all, as a result of the greater understanding which advance preparation fosters, it is a heightened experience in the importance of theater and its particular gift for interpersonal communication. In a time that seems each day to reduce our opportunities for concern with each other, theater can be a rare and wonderful thing—a place where that concern can be expressed in a framework that is by nature a sharing between human beings.

2. Moderated discussions immediately following the performances:

These discussions provide an opportunity to meet the complete company whose cooperative efforts have just been viewed. They afford a chance to meet directors and staff members, as well as actors, and to discuss the contributions of each.

3. Classroom visits by teams of actors from each production:

These visits provide an intimate and relaxed reference for preparatory or post-show discussions. They offer students the time and opportunity to express and discuss their concerns and curiosities with the same actors whom they will see, or have seen, on the stage.

4. Supplementary study guides on the productions to be seen:

This material consists of a detailed, printed booklet, containing material on the playwright, the play, critical response to prior productions, the technical aspects of the present production—in short, on the many artistic attitudes which combine to produce an evening in the theater. These study syllabi have now, through the courtesy and concern of Marin bookstores and libraries, been made available to the general public throughout the county. They are also sent, upon request, to libraries and schools outside the county.

A recent letter from an English teacher in Oregon is a case in point. "Wish it were possible to bring my English classes to your production," she write, "but time and money prevent our attending." Enclosing was a request for the production's study guide.

THERE ARE also workshop and apprentice programs being developed in connection with the theater's summer programming, and the actual production of an original revue written and produced by high school members of the theater's Young Actors' Company.

Initially, the grant covers attendance at the fourth, fifth, and sixth productions in the theater's current seven production season. Students have already seen Festival Theater's production of Arthur Miller's Critics' Circle Award winning "All My Sons" and the Voices Unlimited production of Norman Corwin's "The World of Carl Sandburg."

The current production, "My Mother, My Father and Me," a biting, satiric comedy of life in America today by Lillian Hellman, is the West Coast premiere (and possibly the first production outside New York) of the newest work by one of America's AWAITING THE START of the show, the teen-agers, seated along with the evening's regular audience, have time to examine the theater and the play's setting, to read the program, and, in general, to familiarize themselves with the physical facilities for the production.

INTERMISSION time offers the student members of the Festival Theater audience an opportunity to grab a soft drink and to "talk over" what they have witnessed on the stage. (Photos by Ken Edler, Dandelet Photographs)

Closing Cultural Gap

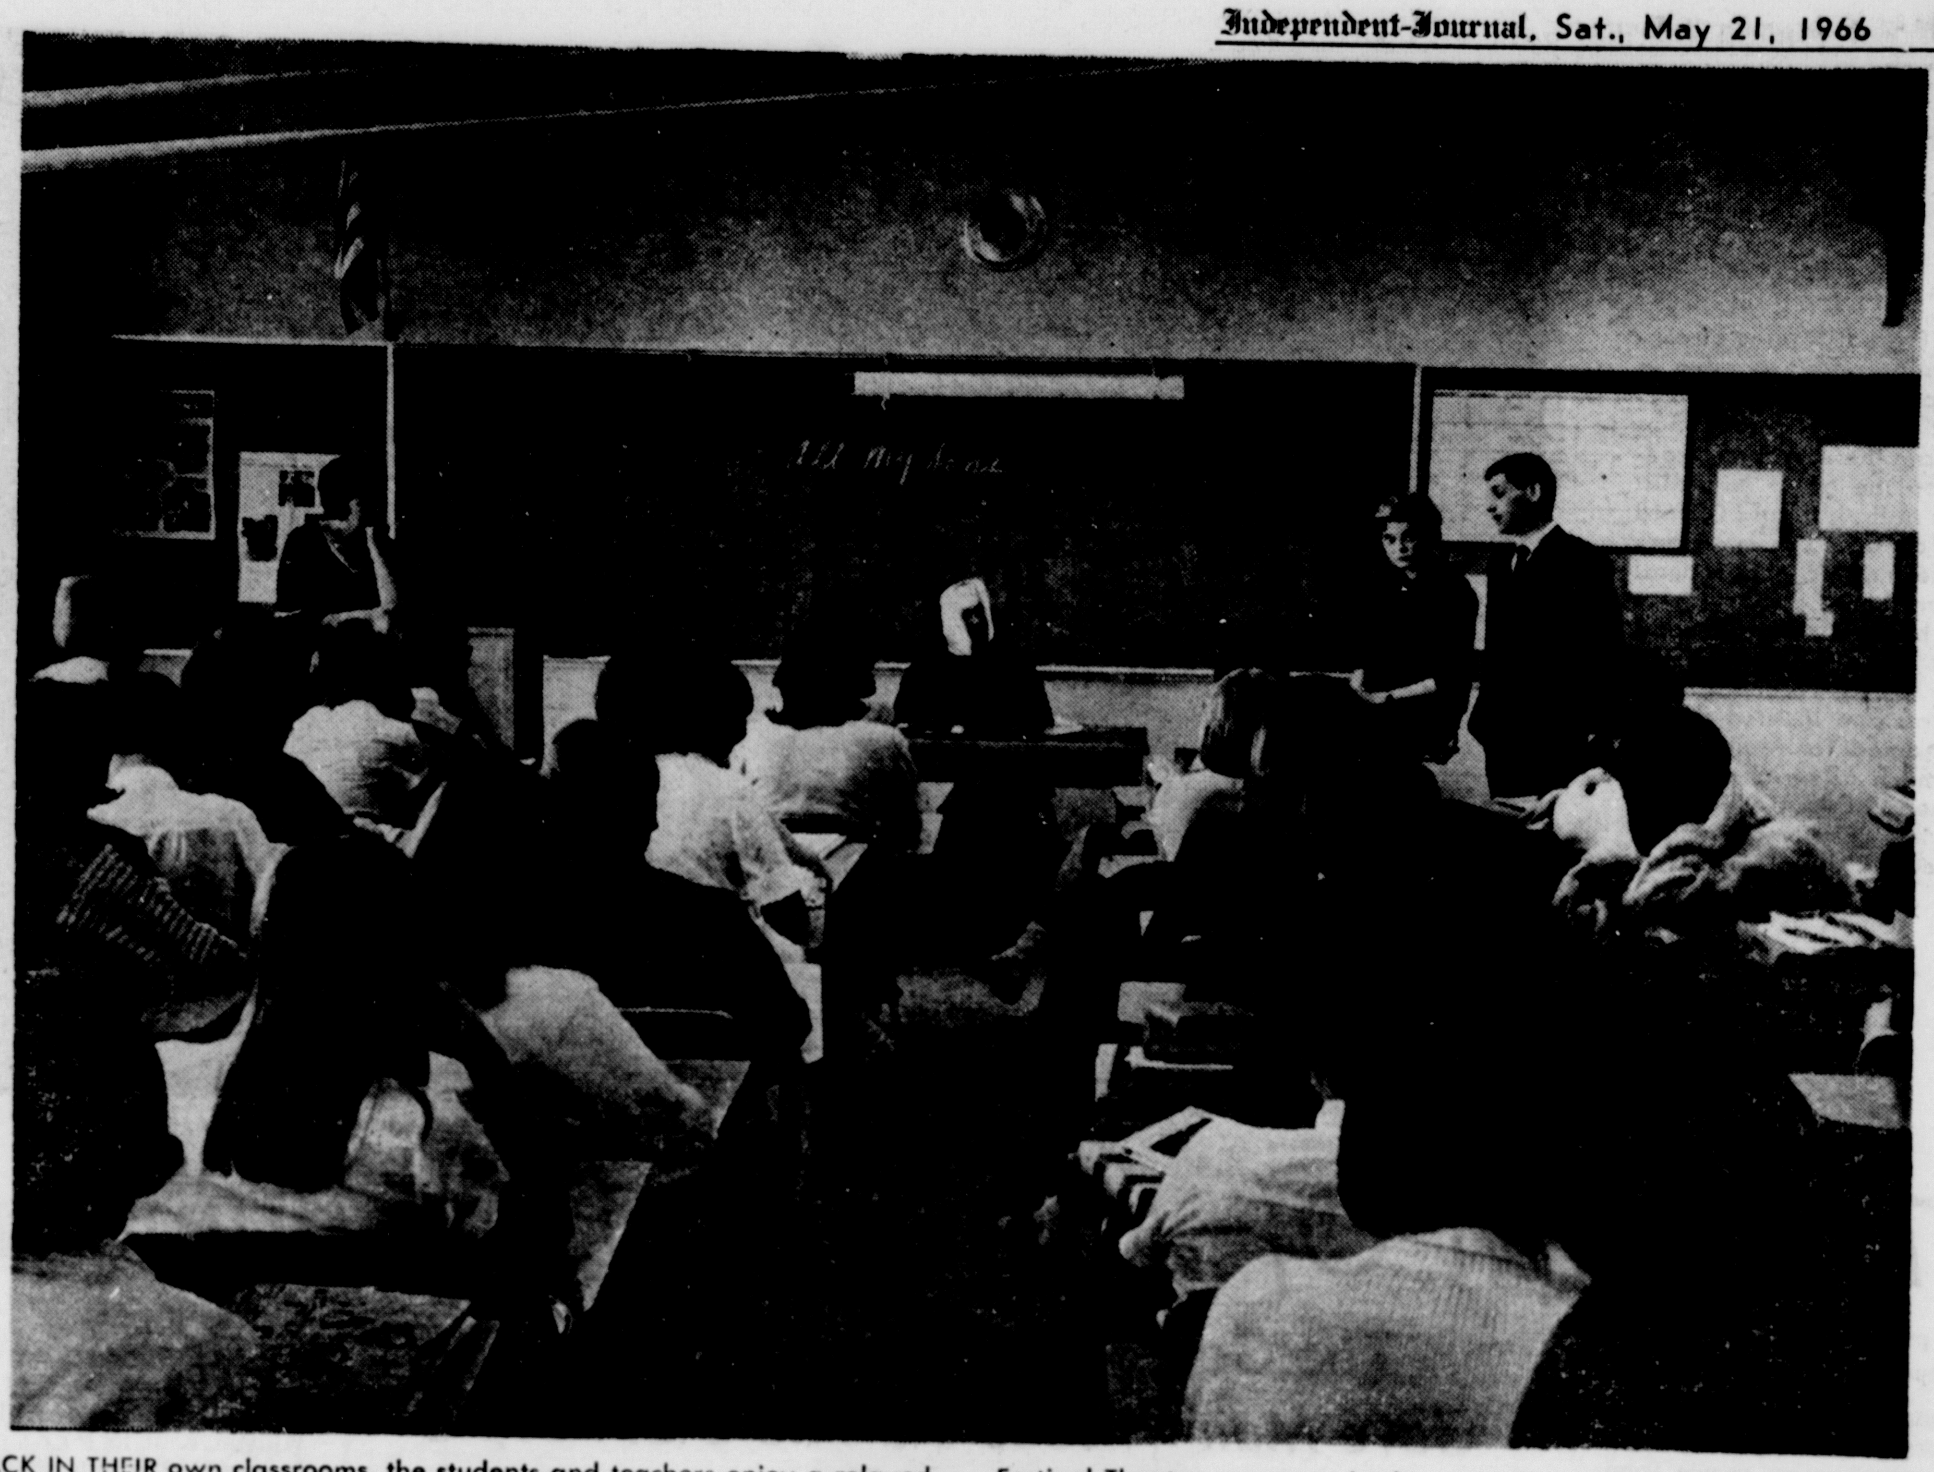

IMMEDIATELY AFTER the performance, a moderated discussion is conducted between audience members and the entire company of the Festival Theater production. Questions, reactions, confusions are all aired in what becomes a two-way learning experience, for both spectators and the performers. Speaking here is Elizabeth Berryhill, artistic director of the theater.

BACK IN THEIR own classrooms, the students and teachers enjoy a relaxed and more informal discussion of the play with two representatives of the Festival Theater company—in this case, Carol Brumm and Dale Moffitt. By now, the teen-agers have had ample time to digest what they have seen and to exchange reactions. Thus new questions have arisen in their minds.

Special Program Adds Meaning To The Viewing Of The Drama

most distinguished playwrights.

THUS FAR, students attending the theater under the Title III program have received an introduction to two of America's greatest literary figures—one a major playwright, the other our foremost poet-philosopher. They have considered, judged, and involved themselves with ethical and moral considerations imperative to an understanding of our times. And, most importantly, many have participated for the first time in "the theater experience."

The range of response is best illustrated by comments from the students themselves.

A student from a private school excitedly told her companion, "This is the best play they ever made us go to."

A YOUNG LADY from a Catholic high school said, "I guess I didn't understand. I was one of those who just went in, sat down, and said, 'Entertain me.' "

A Novato High School student said simply, of the Keller family in "All My Sons": "They were like my family," and began to cry.

And thus awareness, both of self and others, begins to develop. This is the communicative potential in live theater.

Another dimension, one unforseen by either the theater or the county, has emerged as a result of this unique program. The theater also has noted the number of parents who say, "I'd like a seat. I want to see what they are seeing."

AND AT LEAST one parent, it was noted, remained quietly in the background through the post-show discussion as well.

Title III, then, has come to have a meaning of accomplishment to the members of the Festival Theater company that is second only to the play itself.

"With these young people in the audience," one trouper says, "you seem to have a special incentive to strive for excellence. Your performance may have effects that last well beyond the present—if you can make the proper impression and create an impact."

THREE great figures of conservation posed together in a monument to their foresight when Congressman William Kent, center, conducted the great naturalist John Muir, left, and Gifford Pinchot, conservation's spokesman in the federal government, on a visit to his beloved Muir Woods. Kent was the donor of the Muir Woods National Monument, and insisted that it be named for Muir whom he much admired. Pinchot, as head of the U.S. Forestry Service, greatly aided and expedited the project.

The Birth Of A National Monument

The Generosity Of William Kent Gave Muir Woods To The U.S. People

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

What brings more than 600,000 visitors to Marin County in a year, representing people from all parts of the world?

The answer is Muir Woods National Monument.

Kings and queens, heads of many nations, ambassadors and other dignitaries, stage and screen stars and tourists, who come west to attend conventions, cross the bay to gaze at the beauty and marvel at the size of the gigantic redwoods.

The register shows sightseers and students from about 80 countries visit Muir Woods.

THE FULL STORY of how the national monument came into being is known only to a few.

The late Congressman William Kent and his wife owned a vast acreage that extended over Mount Tamalpais to Stinson Beach. In December of 1907, the North Coast Water Co. began condemnation proceeding for 47 acres, a part of the present monument site, for reservoir land for Sausalito. Kent had bought the area from Tamalpais Land and Water Co. for $45,000 in 1905.

Kent immediately went into action. When he bought the property, he wanted to give the land with its magnificent stand of redwoods and Douglas firs to the United States to preserve it for future generations to enjoy.

AT THAT TIME there was no federal law allowing the government to accept such a gift, but one was passed in 1906.

Kent went to F.E. Olmstead, a United States forest service inspector, who conferred with Gifford Pinchot, head of the United States Forestry Service and one of President Theodore Roosevelt's ablest advisers in conservation programs. Muir Woods was deeded to the United States government by Mr. and Mrs. Kent in 1907.

Kent wrote to James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior, when the deed to the property was submitted: "This property is well worthy of being considered a monument and has a surpassing scenic interest.

"THIS TRACT, containing 295 acres, is all heavily wooded with virgin timber, chiefly with redwood and Douglas fir.

"In the opinion of experts it is a wilderness park such as accessible to no other great city in the world and should be preserved forever for public use and enjoyment.

"After having traveled over a large part of the open country in the United States, I consider this tract with its magnificent trees and scenic vistas worthy of national attention."

UP TO 1907 Muir Woods wa almost inaccessible except to hikers. In that year a branch line was connected with the Mt. Tamalpais Railway, "the crookedest railroad in the world," taking passengers to Muir Woods. The branch line was built from Mesa to Muir Woods, a distance of 2.88 miles.

The railway up and down the mountain was known at first as the Mill Valley and Mt. Tamalpais Railway. This was the realization of the dream of Sidney B. Cushing who was the first president of the railroad's board of directors and its first manager. Cushing, like William Kent, loved the mountain and wanted others to enjoy the scenic vistas to the utmost.

Also Cushing had been reared on the mountainside. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. John J. Cushing, homesteaded land in what became known as Blithedale in Mill Valley. Blithedale was the name of the family home.

AFTER THE branch line was built, the name of the railroad was changed to Mt. Tamalpais and Muir Woods Railway. The Muir Woods National Monument was created officially in the proclamation of President Theodore Roosevelt on Jan. 3, 1908.

Subsequently the original grant by the Kents to the government was increased by parcels of land given by the Kents and the mountain railway. Few people know that the land for the spectacular outdoor amphitheater, where the traditional mountain play is presented each year (a 1966 production is scheduled for tomorrow at 2 p.m.) was given by the Kents to the Mountain Play Assn. as a memorial to Sidney B. Cushing.

The reason why Muir Woods was not named for Kent is explained by the letter written by William Kent to President Roosevelt. The latter had insisted that the new national monument should be named Kent Woods.

IN A PERSONAL note to the President, Kent explained why he did not wish the honor. He wrote: "So many millions of better people have died forgotten, that to stencil one's own name on a benefaction seems to carry with it an implication of mundane immortality as being something purchasable.

"I have five good husky boys that I am trying to bring up to a knowledge of democracy and to a realizing sense of the rights of the 'other fellow,' doctrines which you, sir, have taught with more vigor and effect than any man in my time. If these boys cannot keep the name of Kent alive, I am willing that it should be forgotten."

Kent was successful in his efforts to have the national monument named for John Muir, explorer, naturalist and writer for whom Kent had the deepest admiration.

JOHN MUIR, who was born in Scotland, migrated with his family to America in 1849. The family settled on a Wisconsin farm. After four years at the University of Wisconsin, young Muir set out in 1864 to wander in the wildernesses of Canada and the United States.

Hiking through California and the Sierra Nevada, Muir was struck by the grandeur of the magnificent mountain range and soon afterward began his crusade for forest conservation. Constantly he wrote articles on conservation and importuned authorities to take action to preserve natural beauty.

Muir devoted his life to the cause in which he believed so ardently, and he came to know many national figures, among them William Kent. The two men shared a common interest, and a deep friendship developed from this.

WHEN GIFFORD Pinchot came west on an inspection trip, he called upon Kent and said he would like to view Muir Woods. Immediately Kent contacted his friend, John Muir, and the three had a wonderful visit. During this historic gathering a picture was taken at the first Muir Woods Tavern.

The enlarged picture of the trio, now displayed at the museum of the Marin County Historical Society at the entrance to Boyd Park, San Rafael, is reproduced with this article. The picture was given to the society by the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. Kent.

John Muir, William Kent, Gifford Pinchot and President Theodore Roosevelt are gone—but there is an everlasting memorial to them and their endeavors in Muir Woods National Monument. And to the man who made this possible there is an inconspicuous memorial in the woods, a small bronze plaque attached to a granite boulder. It is set at the base of Kent's favorite tree in the park, not a redwood but a Douglas fir.

DURING THE years the visitors have enjoyed the splendor of the cathedral of redwoods. Who can say how many lovers have wandered through this marvel of nature? Several marriages have taken place there, the young couples feeling closer to God there than within the portals of a man-made building.

I talked with Bruce W. Shaw of the National Park Service, who is superintendent of the national monument and lives there. He has five permanent staffers. He said the tallest redwood is 240 feet high and 17 feet in diameter.

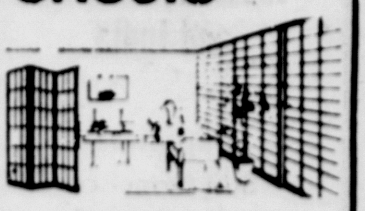

In addition to the grandeur of the trees, Muir Woods is noted for various odd growths, such as burls and albino shoots, on some redwoods. Large root burls look Planning a Pool?

Anthony builds more pools than the fifteen largest single pool builders combined!*

Why do more people choose Anthony? Why do more people recommend Anthony? They like the service. They like the exclusive accessories Anthony makes; such as better diving boards, heaters, automatic cleaners, and many other things.

They like the proof of security Anthony offers, with an annually audited financial report that tells them about Anthony's $2.9-million net worth and $1-million-plus cash in the bank. They know by this that they have freedom from worries.

They believe Phil Anthony's slogan, "If you haven't received service from Anthony, you haven't asked for it."

Why take a chance? Call the best and the biggest for your pool. The price is right.

*In 1965 in all of Southern California, where more pools are built, building permits show that Anthony built more pools than the next fifteen largest single pool builders combined. (By single pool builders we refer to those who are not a group of franchised builders.) Anthony also built more pools than all franchised builders combined.

THE MUIR WOODS STORY

Great Trees Have Inspired Millions

like boulders at the bases of trees and you will note the variety of shapes and sizes of smaller burls.

DELIGHTING THE eye is the variety of ferns growing in Muir Woods, among these the western swordfern, lady fern, western bracken and giant chainfern.

Another natural attraction in the woods is the western azalea, which grows along Redwood Creek. The tall shrub blossoms through June and July. There are several other varieties of wild flowers including trilliums and red beadily.

All around is animal life. Many deer are in the woods. However, they generally come out into the open in the early morning or late evening, except in the fall, when the animals find that feed is scarce on the hillsides. Then they come down to the valley.

RACCOONS AND bobcats are seen sometimes. Birds of many varieties perch in the treetops.

What amazed me was that the salmon and trout fight their way up the rapids of Redwood Creek to the spawning beds during the winter storms. I have read how these fish, driven by the terrific urge for reproduction, swim up stream to spawn and come back, beaten, battered and dying, having fulfilled their purpose. I had always thought of this life drama taking place in rivers, but I did not realize it happened so close to home.

During the summer and fall, the rainbow trout and small salmon can be seen clearly in the pools in the creek.

MANY PEOPLE have communed with nature at Muir Woods and have gained inspiration there. One was Joseph B. Strauss, the engineer who designed and built the Golden Gate Bridge. He put into the structure graceful curves and tall, commanding towers symbolizing the height of the redwoods and the arches of its branches. Before the bridge was completed, Strauss wrote his tribute to "The Redwoods":

"Here, sown by the Creator's hand, in serried ranks the redwoods stand; no other clime is honored so, no other land their glory know.

"The greatest of earth's living forms, tall conquerors that laugh at storms; their challenge still unanswered rings, through 50 centuries of kings. . .

"So shall they live, when ends our day, when our crude citadels decay; for brief the years allotted man, but infinite perennials' span.

"This is their temple, vaulted high, and here we pause with reverent eye, with silent tongue and awe-struck soul; for here we sense life's proper goal;

"To be like these, straight, true and fine, to make our world, like theirs, a shrine; sink down, oh, traveler, on your knees, God stands before you in these trees."

Profile Of A Marinite

Politics, Business And Sports Are All Part Of Dan Allen's Background

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Daniel Allen is a man who got his first taste of local politics in Marin City, later was voted councilman and mayor of Larkspur, then resigned his seat and lost at the polls when he tried to win it back.

Allen, who will turn 62 next Tuesday, also has the distinction of being one of three men to play on both the East and West teams in the annual Shrine football game in San Francisco.

Born in Andover, Mass., Allen went to elementary and high school in that eastern city, then earned his PhB degree at Yale University where he was quite an athlete, playing varsity football and running track for two years.

IT WAS AFTER he had been graduated from Yale when he played in his first Shrine football game.

He was helping coach the frosh football team then, and the rules for the East-West game were different. Even coaches could play in those days. When he represented Yale on the East team on New Year's Day of 1927, it was only the second Shrine game ever played.

But more important than the game itself; it was Allen's first look at the West Coast, and he decided then and there to remain here.

HE LANDED A job with Shell Oil Co. and went through an executive training course in Wilmington, Los Angeles County, a year later moving to Martinez for six months and then to the San Francisco Shell office in 1928.

Still very much in football shape, the ex-Yale fullback joined the Olympic Club in San Francisco and played on the gridiron in his spare time for two years. Quite a star, Allen was named to the Shrine game again in 1929, this time representing the Olympic Club on the West roster.

(The only other men who played on both sides in the classic are Lloyd Yoder and Gus Farwick.)

AND BECAUSE of football, Allen met the woman who was to become his wife. It was after the Olympic Club had completed an undefeated season and polished off the schedule with a trip to Hawaii to take on the "town team" there. On the trip back to the West Coast, he met Madeline Frick on the boat, and it turned into more than just a friendship.

The Frick family lived in Woodside, but had a summer home in Inverness. The home has since been converted to the Episcopal Church of Inverness. It was there that Dan and Madeline were wed.

They lived in San Francisco until August of 1930, moving to Woodside, just west of Palo Alto. While there, Dan enrolled in the Stanford University business school for two quarters.

THAT WAS followed by a six-month tour of Europe by the Allens, and then one quarter in Stanford's law school for Dan. "Then I ran out of money," Allen smiled.

The period from 1932 to 1938 was the dark part of Allen's life. The time when jobs and money were scarce, Dan tried everything, from selling hearing aids, insurance and vacuum cleaners to even working in gas stations. "It was really a rough go during these times," said Allen, willing to skip over those six years.

From 1938 to '40 Allen taught at the Tamalpais School for Boys and then moved to Pasadena where he taught in '40 and '41. Then it was back to the North Bay Area, selling hearing aids in Santa Rosa, and then to Marin City, with the Allens living in a federal housing project while Dan worked at a wartime job at Marinship.

HE WAS WITH the Army Corps of Engineers real estate division from 1945 to '48, retiring at the young age of 44.

"It was a fascinating experience living in Marin City," said Allen. "The Negro population there wasn't too large in 1942, and there was no segregation whatsoever."

Allen served as one of 12 persons on the Tenants Council in Marin City. Although it was a recommending body rather than a law-making council, it was Allen's start in politics on the local level.

Because of "good investments in oil land in Southern California," Allen was able to retire in 1948 and purchase his spacious home in Larkspur, at 215 West Baltimore Avenue, where he and his wife live today. Their two children are away, Craig W. employed at IBM and living in Oakland, and Coralie a sophomore at Cornell University.

ALLEN FIRST successfully ran for a seat on the Larkspur City Council in 1956, and ran for reelection in 1960, along with two other incumbants, Albert E. Heston and Orrin Gray. After a stormy city battle over the resignation of Fire Chief John Raggio, Larkspur voters turned back Heston and Gray and Allen slipped in by a slim four-vote margin over Jane Epidendio. (Allen had lost by 12 votes after the regular ballot, but when the absentee ballots were counted, it left him on top by four.)

In 1963, Allen retired from the council because of poor health and a planned trip he and his wife made through Europe.

But this year he wanted to get back in the fire of local politics and was a nominee in the Larkspur City Council elections. He ran fourth with 438 votes, behind Neil R. Brixon (617), Alfred Malvino (593) and William G. Fleckles (581). Brixon and Malvino won the two open spots, and Allen had beaten two of the six candidates.

BRIXON, AN incumbent, and Allen served on the same council, "so I wasn't really disappointed when I lost," said Allen. "At least Brixon was elected."

Allen was appointed to the Larkspur City Library Board by the city council just a few weeks after the municipal elections.

Allen's latest venture now is helping in the formation of a Larkspur-Corte Madera Historical Society.

"We're trying to collect historical material to keep in touch with the cities' history," said Allen. Still trying to get more members interested, Allen declared, "I've been trying to get something like this started for the past five years."

ALLEN SPENDS a good part of his free time adding to his oldtime record collection which dates back to Thomas Edison's time. He estimates he has about 50,000 records and 15 old-fashioned phonographs.

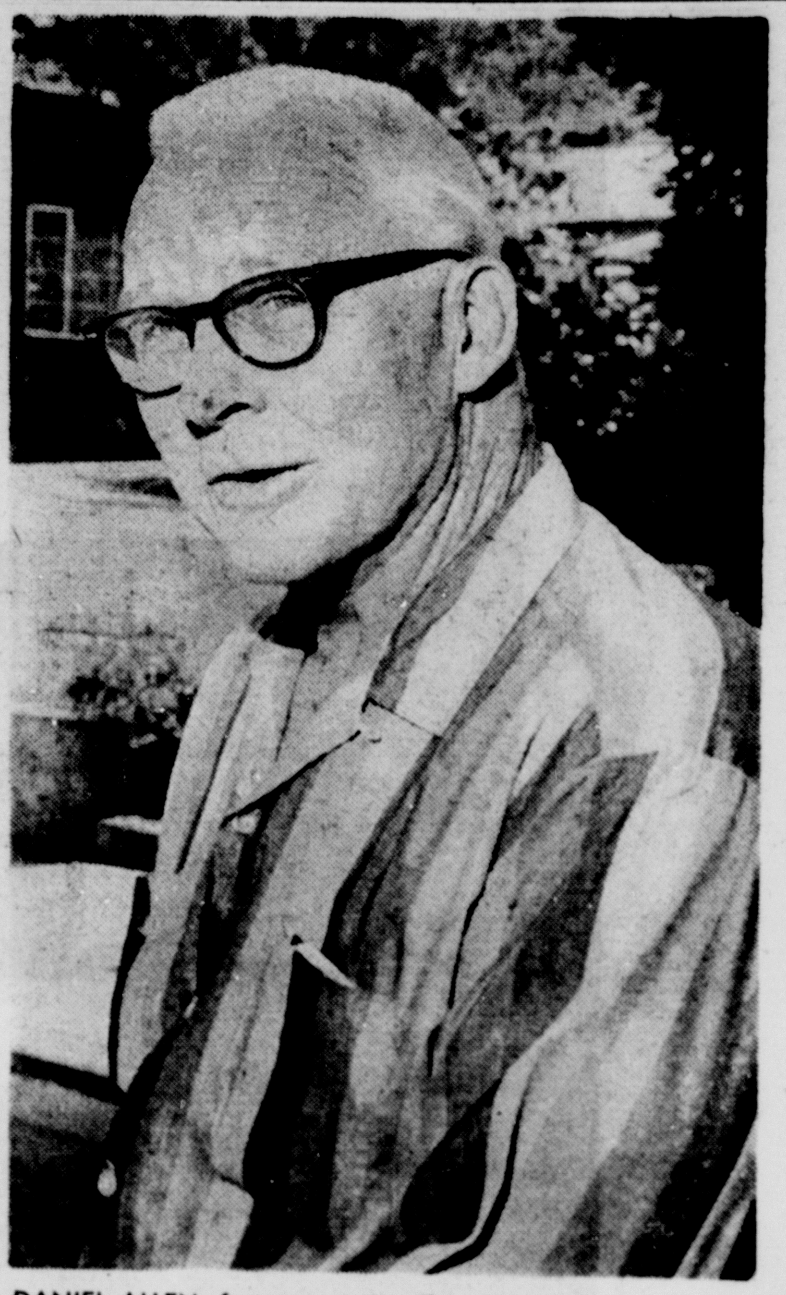

He started the hobby in 1948 when he retired from the Corps of Engineers, "just to keep busy." When there's a rummage sale anywhere in Marin County, you'll be sure to find Allen browsing around, looking for old records.

"It's a living remembrance of those old times," says Allen in explaining his fascination with the hobby.

Among the old records is one of William Jennings Bryan discussing "The Labor Question," dated 1908. Another is a 1915 Panama-Pacific International Exposition souvenir record of Woodrow Wilson's daughter, Margaret, singing the "Star Spangled Banner." Also in the collection are a bunch of Will Rogers oldies.

ALLEN AND HIS wife are also active in square dancing circles, members of the Mill Wheelers Square Dancing Club for the past 12 years.

Allen is also a member of the Larkspur Lions Club.

DANIEL ALLEN, former mayor of Larkspur, maintains an active interest in the civic affairs of the community in which he has resided since 1948.

A DELIGHTFUL swimming pool reflects the pleasing lines of a group of Harbor Village townhouses at Larkspur and Canal streets in San Rafael. The 34-unit project is now in its final stages of construction.

Modern Version Of Row Housing

"Townhouses are just 'little houses'," explains Jean H. Bell, resident sales manager for the new Harbor Village development at Canal and Larkspur streets in San Rafael, and offer owner-occupants the prime advantages of both house and apartment dwelling.

The new townhouse development, totalling 34 units, is in its final stages of construction, with both two bedroom ($19,950) and three-bedroom ($22,950) homes available.

Already, Bell says, the halfway mark has been passed in sales.

Designed by architect Gordon A. Phillips of San Rafael for Red Hill Properties Co., with Bell Associates as exclusive sales agent, the project currently has two furnished models open for public inspection from noon to 5 p.m. daily.

The office unit at 309 Canal Street has been furnished by Scandinavian Designs, with bathroom decoration items from Modern Eve. On display are oil paintings by Von Heim.

Each townhouse is two floors with enclosed garage in front. Bedrooms and one bath are on the upper floor.

The townhouses, Bell explains, are bought and sold in the same manner as the normal tract home with title conveyed by grant deed. However, land is held in common ownership by the 34 owners who grant an exclusive easement to each townhouse owner for the land under his own building.

The townhouse plan represents an updating and vast improvement of the old row housing idea, Bell adds.

Some of Harbor Village's attractions:

A central recreation area surrounded by the buildings that features a 46-foot, free-form, heated swimming pool with large deck and lawns.

A private patio for each townhouse reached through sliding glass doors from the living room.

Draperies and wall-to-wall continuous filament nylon carpeting in all townhouses.

Private "mud rooms."

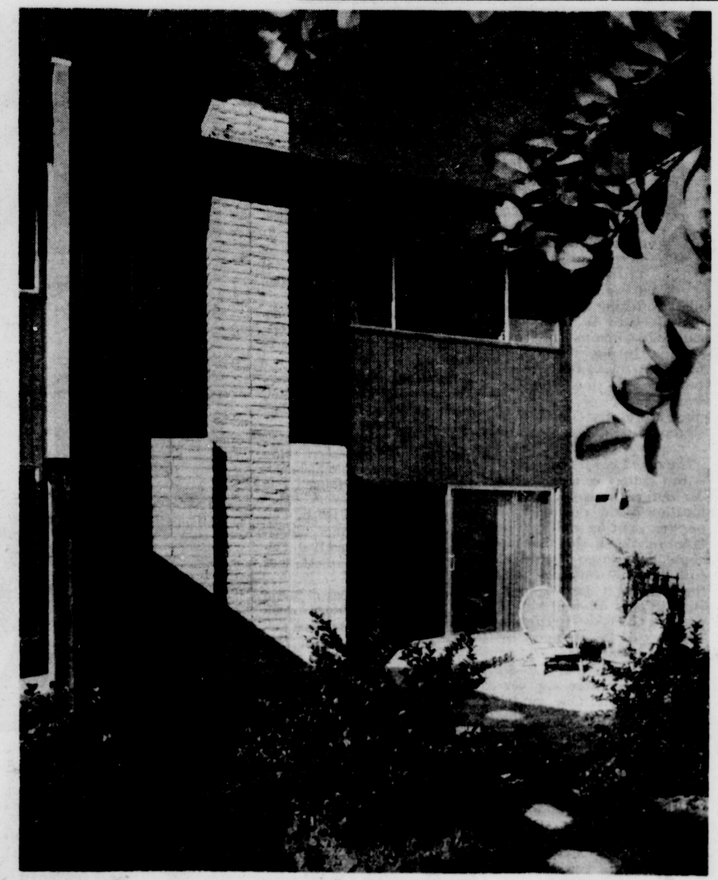

Luxury-size master bedrooms (18 by 13 feet) plus a private dressing area with built-in vanity and lavatory.

The townhouse concept is growing rapidly in popularity, Bell says, and the Harbor Village development provides a striking example why.

THE CLEAN, simple lines of modern architecture that characterize the Harbor Village Townhouses are easy and restful to live with. As one faces the townhouse private patio and living area beyond (with swimming pool behind the viewer), it is easy to project the relaxed outdoor way-of-life which the development has been designed to foster. Gordon A. Phillips of San Rafael is the architect. (Photos by Don Meacham)

THE HARBOR VILLAGER reaches the front door of his home by an exposed aggregate walk that runs beside the garage. Each hospitable entrance is tastefully screened from the next-door neighbor to provide privacy. Durable marine plywood siding has been stained in quiet, "earthy" tones that compliment the simplicity of the architectural lines. Each townhouse is two-stories high, with the enclosed garage to the front for easy access.

INSIDE THIS MODEL townhouse, the visitor is greeted by natural wood-paneled walls, blazing fireplace and an easy grouping of comfortable chairs, all of which suggest intimacy and good fellowship for the occupants of this corner of the spacious living room. Two model townhouse units in Harbor Village are currently open for public inspection. Both two and three-bedroom units, with two baths, are available, and prices begin at $19,950 for the former, $22,950 for the latter.

THIS LIVING AREA in a furnished model townhouse at Harbor Village captures the feeling of outdoor-living, with its floor-to-ceiling glass walls that frame a handsome slump block fireplace. The cheery blaze in the fireplace can be enjoyed even from the dining ell and the kitchen. Such items as the draperies and wall-to-wall carpeting, as well as the electric kitchen appliances are included in the townhouses. The furnishings here are from Scandinavian Designs. Red Hill Properties Co. is the developer.

LEAR JET 8 TRACK STEREO . . . A few months ago I reported on the new Lear Jet 8 track stereo cartridge system being developed for car stereo use. It's here! This new system uses a continuous play cartridge 4" wide by 5½" deep by ¾" high. This cartridge contains 8 tracks of sound. During stereo playback, two tracks at a time are being used; thus, the cartridge makes 4 passes to play all of its contents in stereo.

The new Lear Jet car radio is the same size as existing car radios; however, at the location of the pushbuttons on the existing radios, the Lear Jet has a slot that accepts the stereo cartridge. Just plug the cartridge into the slot and it starts to play. It will play all four stereo passes then will repeat. Tracks can be changed by pushing a button.

There are three car versions available. One model includes standard AM radio. Another model soon to be available will include only FM radio. A third model made for under dash mount includes only the cartridge stereo player without any radio. This model can be used without disturbing existing car radios.

Already a library of stereo tapes numbering over 400 is available. Within a few months several thousand will be available. Most major record manufacturers have made their record libraries available for the cartridges.

A forth unit allows playing the 8 track stereo cartridges on your home music system. This unit is a small compact device that plugs into the phono input of a TV, or a spare input of the component system, or into the phono or tape input of a radio console. Plug in an 8 track stereo tape cartridge and you have continuous music. The cost of the home cartridge deck is only $79.95. We have one playing in our window. Visit us and listen to the newest in stereo. Look over our very large selection of Lear Jet 8 track stereo cartridges. The library includes most of the currently favorite artists and selections. Prices of stereo 8 track cartridges is from $4.98 to $8.98. Now you can have stereo music for your car, and you can use it at home also.

On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER

Some imports from Great Britain:

MICHAEL TIPPETT: Piano Concerto; Piano Sonato No. 2 —John Ogdon, piano/Philharmonia Orchestra/Colin Davis—Odeon Stereo ASD 621:

Tippett is rapidly gaining acceptance in other parts of the world as one of the leading British composers now living, an acceptance he has had in his own country for some time. A few of his works have been released in the U. S. on London Records, but these two piano works are not among those.

The concerto was composed 10 years ago and its ideas originated in Tippett's opera "The Midsummer Marriage." It is linear and lyrical, yet frequently borders on dissonance.

The shorter sonata is a dynamic and sharply atonal work in parts, and requires longer study for full appreciation.

RACHMANINOFF: Symphonic Dances; BIZET: Jeux d'Enfants; LUTOSLAWSKI: Variations on a theme of Paganini—Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, two pianos—Odeon Stereo ASD 614:

More and more of the larger record shops are now featuring imported discs such as these.

They contain much music which has been previously unavailable in this country. Many, such as this one, are in both stereo and mono. Prices are usually a dollar or so more than the U. S. equivalent, due to importation costs.

This stereodisc contains the only two-piano version of the "Symphonic Dances," usually heard in the orchestral version. It is a clearer statement of the music than the Orchestral version. The performance of Jeux d'Enfants is the finest I have ever heard on records.

Vronsky & Babin have long been identified with superb two piano music, and their great skills are shown perfectly in this lp. The short Paganini variations by the Polish composer who has recently received attention in the West are not among his greatest works, but provide dazzling music to show off the two piano style.

Stereo is well - spaced and piano sound is extremely natural and true.

A SHOWING of 250 pieces of student art work is currently under way in room 61, Art Building, Kentfield, as the College of Marin art department conducts a spring exhibition The exhibit will be open tonight from 7 to 10 o'clock, and tomorrow from 1 to 5 p.m. Above, Wilma Cliff of San Rafael works on a portrait of student model Mardianne Kato of Mill Valley as part of her advanced painting class instruction.

My love you'll never know.

Some Help In Planning Your Vacation

By DON KEOWN

Vacation planning time is upon us, and one source of assistance for the undecided is the handbook on the subject.

A new addition, "Vacations, U.S.A.: Getting the Most for Your Travel Dollar," is the product of Michael Frome, travel editor for the Kiplinger services.

Frome has confined himself to the domestic scene. But otherwise, he has placed no limitations upon his material, roaming over all the many facets of vacationing. And therein, it seems, lies the weakness of his book.

It is another attempt to cover too large a field in too few pages. The many sub-topics must, by necessity, be passed over with what sometimes seems little more than perfunctory attention.

For the most part, the book breaks down into listings of samplings—of attractions, methods of transportation, equipment, accommodations, planning techniques, etc.

The reader planning to heed the admonition to "see the USA" and keep his dollars at home in 1966 will almost assuredly pick up at least a few ideas of worth from Frome's book. To do so, he will have to wade through a great deal more than is already familiar or irrelevant. Whether those suggestions he does glean are worth his time and the price of the book will be largely a matter of chance.

The more experienced traveler, knowledgeable in the sights and the facilities of his own country, will be less likely, however, to recover his investment than the novice tourist with little first-hand experience with the attractions of the 50 states.

VACATIONS, U.S.A. by Michael Frome, The Kiplinger Washington Editors (distributed by C. S. Hammond & Co.), 149 pages, $4.95.

1966 GUIDE TO AIR TRAVEL BARGAINS by Jim Woodman, Pocket Books Inc., 160 pages, softcover, $1.95.

ALSO NEW, and a more practical travel aid because it does concentrate its attentions upon a less general field of interest, is "1966 Guide to Air Travel Bargains: World-Wide and USA" by Jim Woodman.

Woodman is concerned only with airliner transportation. And his guide is directed at uncovering for prospective passengers those little-known flights and arrangements that will save them fare. There is special attention paid to tour packages sponsored by the air companies that Woodman regards as outstanding.

Woodman, however, has compromised the objectivity of his report by including paid advertising from a number of his subjects.

It is late in the year for this kind of planning for 1966, but if your air trip arrangements have not yet solidified, you might well benefit substantially from a study of the information and ideas presented by Woodman, who must be one of the world's most experienced international flight patrons.

Even if his recommendations come too late to help you in '66, they might still suggest some money-saving tactics that can be employed, to a more limited extent, in 1967 or later.

AND WHILE on the subject of travel guides, the eight regional editions of "Fodor Shell Guides to the U.S.A." including the Pacific Coast book are off the presses and are being sold in bookstores as well as through Shell service stations.

Published by Fodor Modern Guides Inc. and David McKay Co. Inc., the West Coast edition covers California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho and Alaska with a wealth of local detail, including routes, sights, accommodations, festivals, historic background, etc.

The softcover book sells for $1.95, and would be a most useful companion for a trip up or down the coast.

SUBJECTS THAT range from the treatment of snakebite to the selection of proper clothing for the trail are covered in "Nature and the Camper," a handbook stressing safety for the outdoorsman, compiled by Mary V. and A. William Hood with art by Don Perceval. The paperback manual, published by The Ward Ritchie Press of Los Angeles, sells for $1.95. It is tailored to fit the needs of westerners, and is small enough to accompany the hiker or sportsman while in the wilds.

THE SALE of Charlie Brown books is one of the most fantastic episodes in recent publishing history. The antics of Peanuts and the other Charles M. Schulz-created cartoon characters find a ready market, whether they be new or old, in hard or soft cover.

The latest collection under the title "You Need Help, Charlie Brown," has been published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston Inc. as a $1 paperback, and includes strips of 1964 and 1965 vintage. We've seen them all before. And still we can't suppress the chuckles and the laughs, all the while realizing that Schulz is making some pretty serious points about today's society.

NEWEST Sunset Travel Book from Lane Book Co. is "Islands of the South Pacific" by Mary Benton Smith ($1.95). Prepared under the direction of Frederic M. Rea, publisher of Pacific Travel News, it offers facts, maps and photos on Polynesia, Melanesia and Micronesia with special attention to such tourist and commercial interest spots at Tahiti, Fiji, American Somoa, Guam and New Caledonia.

FAWCETT has republished as a 95-cent Crest paperback a personal favorite of mine, Weldon Hill's novel, "The Long Summer of George Adams." It is my nominee as an example of plotting and writing excellence, and is unbeatable in providing the flavor of life in a small town along the Southwest-Midwest border.

Sleuths & Suspense

MONKS' COURT by Katherine Wigmore Eyre, Appleton-Century, 338 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The Gothic novel of romance and suspense is not a genre that encourages originality of plot, but instead relies heavily upon the author's ability to create and utilize atmosphere.

Katherine Wigmore Eyre, however, is so slavish in her adherence to all the cliches of plot and character that no amount of atmosphere will save her "Monks' Court."

An American girl in London chances to witness a scene that proves to be the preamble to murder. Her glimpse of him was brief, but nevertheless she finds herself fascinated by the darkly handsome man. Through a decidedly improbable coincidence, she succeeds in tracing him to his remote and decaying country home. There she stays while she struggles with her conscience and with her feelings for the enigmatic Sir Hugh.

A long series of developments, all of them entirely predictable, finally lead to a denouement that is so trite as to quelch the last embers of interest in even the most devoted readers of Gothic fiction.

This San Franciscan did far better in her earlier books. Certainly, she can do no worse in novels yet to come.

Reading For Juniors

Some new reading for the juniors:

"Bears Live Here" is a photographically illustrated life history of the black bear by Irmengarde Eberle (Doubleday, $3.25) that is comprehensible for the 3 to 9-year-olds. The emphasis is upon the cubs, most appealing to children who prefer their characters, animals or people, in their own age bracket. The book makes excellent reading that is as informative as it is entertaining. The photos are superb.

A book packed with entertainment for beginning readers and for those who must be read to is "The Merry Adventures of Little Brown Bear" by Elizabeth Upham (Platt & Munk, $2.95). This is an animal storybook in the old tradition, with lots of excitement for the little ones to share with the bear child, an especially fetching character, and his friends and family. Watercolor illustrations by Marjorie Hartwell are delightful, yet kept secondary to Miss Upham's storylines, so that there is no question but what this is a book for reading, not just for looking. It's the kind that wins a special place in the child's affections.

In "The Restless Rabbit," written and illustrated by Robert E. Sargent (McGraw-Hill, $2.75) a creature that hops wants to hop even higher—to be a kangaroo. A mouse invites him to find a pocket so that he can be one of them and collect things. Collecting rocks proves the wrong thing and the rabbit learns that to be someone else, something other than what you are, is difficult and a waste of time. So the rabbit, the mouse and their bird friend go sailing. That's much better. A good read-along book.

A whole series of fun gardening projects for boys and girls are suggested by the delightful "The Indoor and Outdoor Grow-It-Book" of Samm Sinclair Baker (Random House, $2.95). From a miniature indoor orchard to growing your own salad, from making candy from violets to drying flowers, there's a wealth of wholesome activities to be found in its pages. Corsage-making, an indoor greenhouse, flower arranging, herbs on the window sill, sweet potato vine, etc.—these are only a few of many. Attractive illustrations in appropriate green are by Eric Carle. An exceptionally worthwhile little volume.

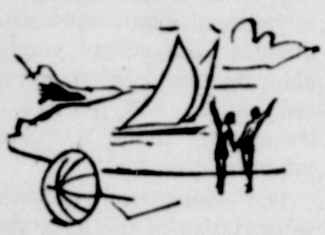

Manley Wade Wellman continues to spin his exciting mystery - adventure yarns of frontier times for boys. "The Specter of Bear Paw Gap" (Dutton, $3.75) is a fine one, taking up the challenges and mysteries that confront a youngster in the wild mountains of North Carolina in the closing decade of the 18th Century. It's a gripping combination of history and suspense.

"Things To See" is another book for tots with Thomas Matthiesen color photo illustrations (Platt & Munk, $2.50). Not an ABC book, it uses a similar approach to acquaint boys and girls with objects and their functions. This "learning" tool has been published in a "child sized" format, six and three quarters by eight and one quarter inches, so that small hands will have no difficulty with it. Lots of color. Lots of intriguing subjects to tempt inquisitive young minds.

THE CAREFULLY researched nature study of one year in the life of a family of black bears, with emphasis upon the growing-up of two charming little cubs, is documented in Irmengarde Eberle's "Bears Live Here." The book for children up to 9 is copiously illustrated with photographs including the one above.

Our Reviewers Report

Fascinating Scot

JAMES BOSWELL, The Earlier Years 1740-1769, by Frederick A. Pottle, McGraw-Hill, 606 pages, $12.50. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Vain though he was, and with an image-making skill that modern public relations men might envy, James Boswell would certainly have marvelled at the keen interest his journals, indeed, everything he ever jotted down, have for us today.

Far eclipsing his reputation as biographer of the immortal Johnson is the graphic portrait he has recorded of himself, with a bluntness and wit that ring down the centuries.

Here, in the first volume of his definitive biography, we reap the reward of Dr. Pottle's Herculean labors as editor of the voluminous Boswell Papers discovered in the 1920s (another six or seven volumes are still to be published). Far from being overwhelmed with his wealth of material, Dr. Pottle has knit it together in intensely readable, altogether admirable shape.

Dr. Pottle is the recognized authority on Boswell, and he borders on the omnipotent with his shrewd surmises and careful network of facts (he is scrupulous to keep the two separate) as he recreates Boswell's world. If Dr. Pottle, distilling his 42 years of study, concludes that Boswell's natural daughter must have died in infancy, the reader is sure that it is so.

Boswell, according to Dr. Pottle, was "a very great imaginative artist and a superb stylist." Most remarkably he writes like a 20th Century man and, to our good fortune, "certainly no patient reveals himself to his pyschiatrist as openly as Boswell reveals himself in his journals, letters and writings."

The more one knows of the vivacious Scotsman, the more one is fascinated. How frankly he longed to be in the public eye, and how cleverly he achieved it; how proud he was to be the heir of Auchinleck; and how earnestly (and amusingly) he consults with his many friends over his shortcomings, his quarrels with his long-suffering, unbending father, his headlong search for the perfect wife. How sure he was to succumb to temptation and how convinced he was that each lapse would be his last!

For the most part his contemporaries were as charmed as we are today. His success, by sheer personality, in making friends of Voltaire and Rousseau, as he calmly set out to do on his tour of Europe, is nothing short of astonishing. And what can we say of his storybook conquest of Corsica, which ever after was coupled in the British mind with Boswell?

Dr. Pottle, who in this first volume takes us to Boswell's 30th year, reveals a little-known side of Boswell, his excellence as a lawyer. And we have yet another Boswell to reconcile with the wit, the hypochondriac, the self-puffing publicity man, the greedy pursuer of street girls, and the friend of the great.

The organizing principle of his biography, Dr. Pottle explains, was his conviction that Boswell must be considered primarily as a writer of genius, "for his virtues and foibles would not interest us in the least if he had not written of them so engagingly." But write of them engagingly he did, and his many avid admirers will await impatiently the concluding volumes of Dr. Pottle's masterful work.

Vigilantes Unmasked

SAN FRANCISCO'S REIGN OF TERROR by John Myers Myers, Doubleday, 283 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The revered San Francisco Vigilance Committees and their potentate—that pillar of early San Rafael society, William T. Coleman—get their comeuppance in John Myers Myers' "San Francisco's Reign of Terror."

Using as his vehicle the life of Judge Edward McGowan—the "Notorious Ned McGowan" of Hubert Howe Bancroft and a hundred since—Myers rips the mask of respectability from the men who threw out the law to rule by terror in the turbulent city by the Golden Gate.

His hero was no saint. A broth of a fighting Irishman, McGowan was in his element in the hurly-burly of California politics of the 1850s. He could, it appears, buy votes and stuff ballot boxes with the best of them. And although a judge, he was not above picking up the duelling pistols.

But McGowan was not the "shoulder striker" that Bancroft made him out. He was well educated, with a literary bent, and turned out quantities of verse certainly comparable in quality to that which helped make Bret Harte famous a little later.

Nor were the Vigilantes the defenders of law and order they made themselves out to be. The "crisis of lawlessness" they formed to eradicate in '51, contends Myers, was mostly a piece of fiction. And their re-formation in '56 was for political ends.

Myers is no unbiased reporter in "San Francisco's Reign of Terror." He sets out to debunk the Vigilantes and save the long-smeared reputation of McGowan. He does it in racy style, quite obviously imitative of McGowan's own.

But neither is Myers one to accept without question the standard works—notably Bancroft's "Popular Tribunals," which, he contends, merely preserved the falsehoods the author had put in a series of puff biographies written to order for some of the wealthy figures of the Vigilance Committee.

Instead, Myers has gone back to original manuscripts—mostly in the Bancroft and Huntington libraries—of those who were on the scene at the time, including several members of the Vigilance Committee itself. And the story they tell is quite different from the commonly accepted version.

His summing up the records of the two Vigilance Committees—both of which were headed by Coleman because, says Myers, Coleman could not help indulging the opportunity to practice his organizational genius even though he had little heart for the cause—shows them to be not very impressive.

The '51 committee hanged four men, one of whom would have been hanged anyway by the legal authorities and two of whom were accused of nothing worse than "various torts of burglary, robbery and arson"—to quote the committee's own records.

Revived in '56, the Vigilantes hanged four more, two of whom had killed in impromptu duels, one probably in self-defense, and the fourth probably not at all. They also condemned Chief Justice David W. Terry to death for killing James King of William, but eventually had to let him go because King refused to die.

They also condemned Ned McGowan, but they couldn't catch him. And therein lies much of Myers' story. It's a good one.

The Long Duel

BOSWORTH FIELD — From Medieval to Tudor England by A. L. Rowse, Doubleday, 317 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer Jr.

"One thing one learns from history is that people never learn anything from history—though they might so easily." Epigrams, historical expertise and literate prose are all to be expected from A. L. Rowse, and they are all present in this fascinating study of the War of the Roses.

The author's purpose is "to make the long duel between the House of Lancaster and the House of York, and its outcome, intelligible."

The title and subtitle of the book are illustrative of its point of view. The important process is the transition, in England, from medieval feudalism to the growth of centralized nationalism under Henry VII, victor at Bosworth Field and first of the Tudor kings. The battle itself, even the snatching of victory from defeat by the Lancastrians when York seemed firmly on the throne, are secondary to the main theme.

The problem of providing historical evidence for Richard III's alleged murder of his nephews, the deed which turned every man's hand against him, looms large. Rowse says it was commonly assumed at the time that Richard caused the death of the children. Furthermore, kingship was the "holy grail" of the time, and living, the boys barred Richard from the crown. In point of fact, we cannot know. All the evidence is indicative and not determinative.

Perhaps it is sufficient that during the very beginning of Richard's short reign, the Lancastrians and disaffected Yorkists brought back their last surviving male claimant from France where he had spent almost all of his life. His promise, which he kept, to marry Elizabeth of York, indicates that the movers and shakers in England were weary of dynastic strife as well as of Richard III.

"Bosworth Field" will have particular appeal to those readers who want to use it as a stepping stone to greater enjoyment of Shakespeare's histories. Rowse is a noted Shakespearean scholar and throughout he relates his interpretation to Shakespeare's, and his final chapter deals with Shakespeare's sources and the critical use he made of them.

If you want to add to your enjoyment and appreciation of Shakespeare as both dramatist and historian, and get a closer look at the undermining of English feudalism, "Bosworth Field" is a good place to start.

Sugar-Coated

CHALLENGING CAREERS IN THE CHURCH, by Joseph E. McCabe, McGraw-Hill, 180 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Dr. McCabe, an ordained Presbyterian minister and president of Coe College, aims in this book " . . . to get people, good and loyal church people, to grasp the mission of the church. That mission is not to get people to come to church and feel good about their favored position with God. Rather they need to see the church as the way God goes forth into the world, through His people."

Dr. McCabe skillfully handles a fictional framework that addresses high school youngsters, showing them what service to the church will be like. But I believe he made a mistake in adopting this form.

The youngster who will seek information of this type does not appreciate finding it in a "sugar-coated" form. Young people who take an active role in religion today have thoroughly grasped Dr. McCabe's message and are spreading the word loud-and-clear.

Perhaps the "sugar-coating" should be reserved for some of the adults who are reluctant to emerge from their cocoons.

Scottish Fare From Haggis To The Scones And Trifles

THE HIGHLANDER'S COOKBOOK by Sheila MacNiven Cameron, Lane Book Co., 107 pages, $4.95 until June 30, $5.95 thereafter. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

More by necessity than choice, the Scots developed a knack for coming up with substantial, tasty dishes from the simplest of ingredients.

The materials from which Scottish cooks could work were always restricted rather severely as to variety, if not in bounty.

Yet, motivated by a tradition of hospitality as well as a canny thrift, they persevered and developed a national cuisine that has special appeal for the American palate that values the simple and the hearty over the overly elaborate.

Reaching back into her clan ancestry, Northern Californian Sheila MacNiven Cameron has assembled this collection of traditional Highland dishes and has adapted them for the American kitchen.

Haggis, naturally, is there. But more likely to win the approval of American cooks and diners are the rich soups, the crusty scones and shortbreads, the filling fish and meat entrees, the puddings, the sweet trifles, cakes, cookies and candies.

Along with the still familiar stand-bys of the Scottish bill-of-fare, Mrs. Cameron has included some old recipes that today, even in the Highlands, are encountered but infrequently.

Her brief notes of introduction for some of the recipes add immensely to the enjoyment of the gourmet.

Credit Mrs. Cameron and Lane Magazine and Book Co. (publishers of Sunset) with a real service in this excellent compilation of representations from an old and time-proven cuisine that has received too little attention in this country, to the detriment of our dining tables.

BRIGHT IDEAS

One Room Shared By Two Girls

By JOE JONES

Two girls can share one room and still have a real feeling of privacy and ownership.

With each girl having her own half, tidiness and good housekeeping are encouraged. Competition is a good thing.

THE TWO-IN-ONE look is nicely accomplished here. Mary chose gray for her half. Jane chose yellow.

Let the girls make their own color decision. They have to live with it.

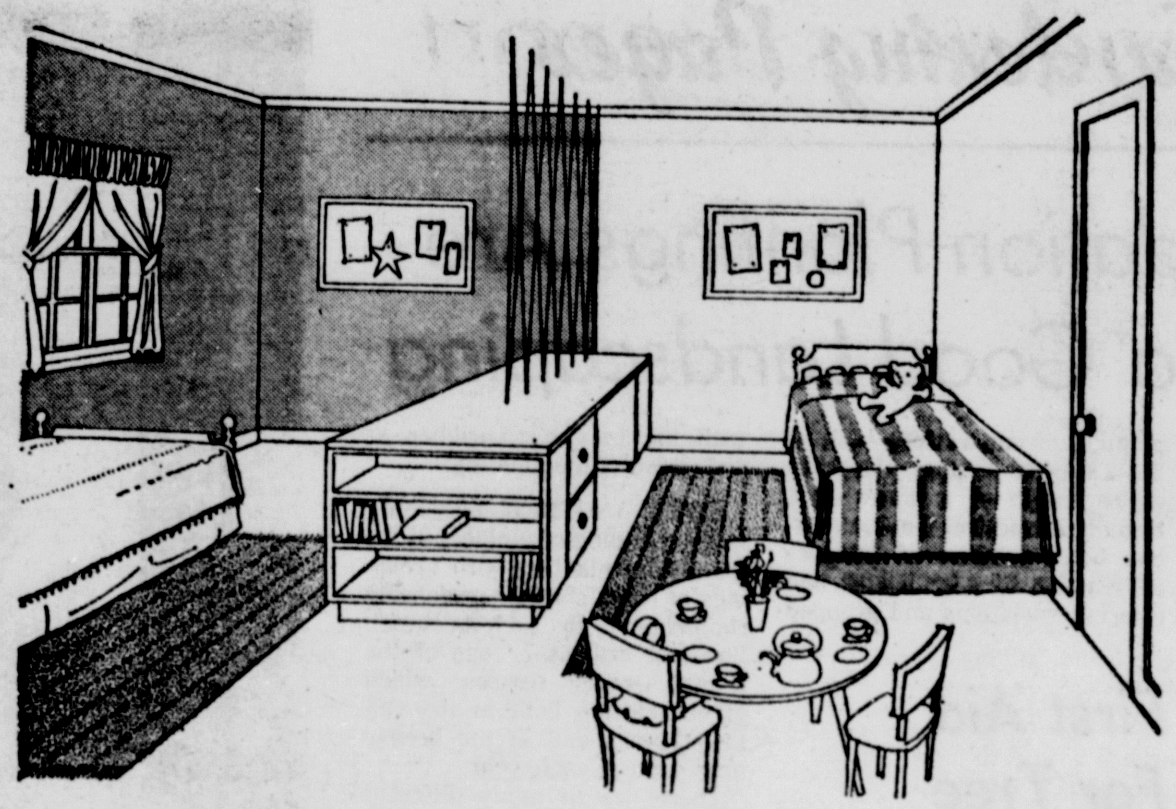

The room divider shown is a functional piece of furniture and a do-it-yourself item.

It consists of three pieces of unpainted furniture and one blank door. The door is the table top. One end support is the bookcase. The other two supports are drawer units, one for Mary and one for Jane.

STAIN OR PAINT to the girls' taste.

For further separateness, create a divider of clothes line or colorful bell-pull cord. This is easily done by spacing screw-eye hooks in the ceiling and the table top, for intertwining.

Handyman's Page

THE RIGHT KIND of fencing can serve a dual purpose. It can not only protect your property, but also enhance its appearance. An authentic Williamsburg picket fence is the perfect choice for many homes, particularly those in the traditional architectural styles. It will give such a house an attractive, complementary frame. For the Easi-Bild pattern, send 50 cents to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Williamsburg Fence and Gate Pattern No. 315. The pattern contains full-size templates for cutting six different colonial style fence pickets, plus directions on how to erect the fence.

Your Foundation Plantings Are The Key To Good Landscaping

There are few more chalieng-ing areas for the gardener than that around the base of his house—the foundation planting, as nurserymen call it.

This is often a no-man's land in the over-all garden picture; a land of overgrowth and under-planting where a few ever-greens have both solved and created problems.

Yet, if it presents a challenge it also offers potential satisfac-tion. A well-planted foundation is the face which passersby see and by which they usually judge the charm of a given house.

THERE IS NO one plant or family of plants which solves the foundation problem, but one that comes near to doing so is the India Hawthorn. This wood-sy shrub is a handsome addi-tion to the garden year round—its delicate spring blossoms of pink, rose or pinkish-white ling-ering into summer in some cases.

The India Hawthorns are ideally suited to our climate and are very easily cared for.

The pink-flowered varieties "Springtime" and "Pink Cloud" are earliest, starting their bloom in late winter. The va-riety "Enchantress" starts and ends its rose-flowered parade a bit later. There are several others, some of them un-named and all of them worth the gar-dener's attention.

ANOTHER FAMILY that con-forms to the landscaper's ideal of a low-growing anchor for the house wall is the juniper family. These are non-blooming shrubs but they make up for a lack of flower color with variations in the color of their foliage, which can be deep green or silvery or flecked with yellow.

In using junipers the garden-er has a wide choice not only in variety but in the method of planting.

Commonly seen is a uniform planting of one variety such as the Tamarix Juniper along the entire length of a house wall. Equally attractive, however, can be a mixture of junipers chosen for their height and coloring variations and grouped with the taller varieties at either end of the planting.

STILL ANOTHER possibility is the grouping of junipers in the foundation planting with group-ings of other shrubs—preferably flowering shrubs such as camel-lias and azaleas or one of the Dwarf Oregon Grapes, which gives coloring both in the yel-low flowers and in the bronzy new growth each year.

There are so many different juniper varieties on today's market—the garden never had it so good—that it is best to check with your nurseryman to determine which is best for your garden. You can't go far wrong.

For the shaded foundation fuchsias can be used along with the camellia-azalea combina-tion if one remembers that they are deciduous during winter and plants them where their bare-ness won't matter. At the front of a shaded border the primula family can lend their splash of color in spring.

FOR SUN-BAKED foundation walls the floribunda roses are a riot of color through several months each year. They should be pruned rather severely in winter to keep them low and kept back during bloom by se-lective pruning. You can do this when picking the blooms.

On the subject of roses let's consider their further use as specimen shrubs—in tubs—for use on either side of a door-way. They can be interchanged, as they go out of bloom, with winter-blooming shrubs, or with with conifers to celebrate the Christmas season, thus giving you a portable planting for that part of the foundation wihch is split up by an entrance.

The gardener with a new home to landscape is lucky, for he can get off to the right start by conferring with a nursery-man or landscaper and seeking his help with an over-all plan.

First Aid For Tree Wounds—

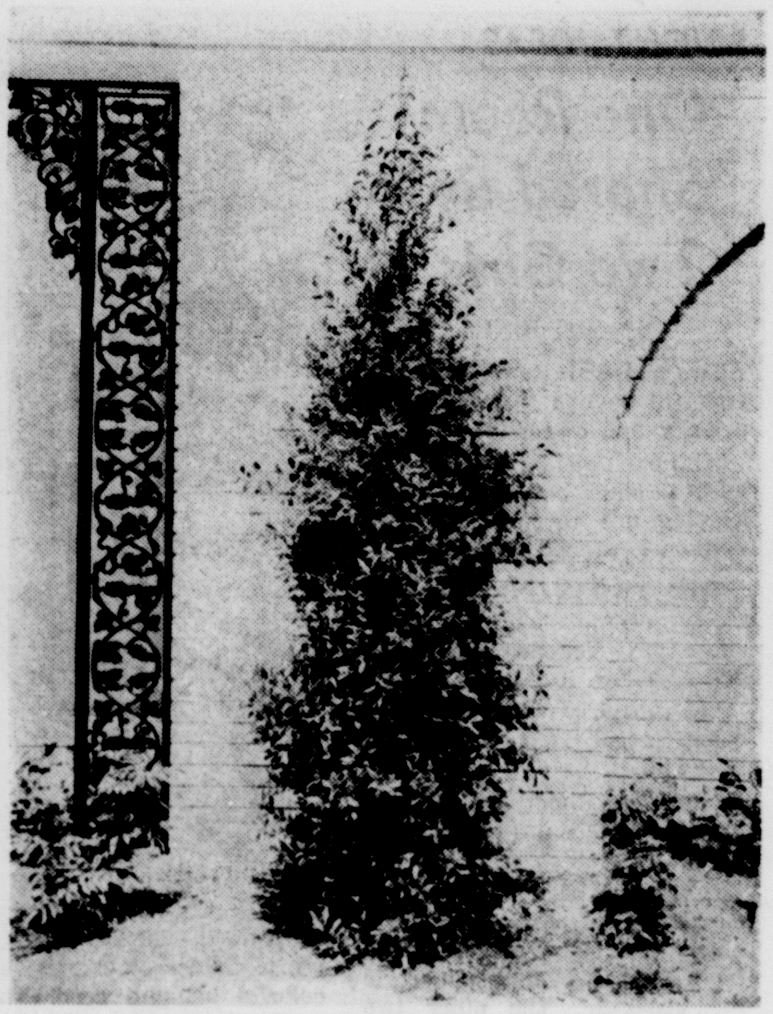

Tree wound dressing that is applied over cuts made in prun-ing branches should be inspect-ed periodically, and a fresh coating put on if there are any cracks or checks in the sur-face.

The wound dressing material generally used is an asphaltic base compound, black in color, and about the consistency of thick paint. Commonly called "tree wound dressing," or "tree paint," it is formulated specifi-cally for use on trees and shrubs and is available at most stores and nurseries that han-dle garden supplies.

Use of the dressing is advo-cated on branch pruning cuts or any bark-deep wound, pri-marily to prevent wood-rotting organisms becoming establish-ed on the exposed wood. Fol-lowing application, the mater-ial drys and forms a film that functions well for a period of months.

Under changing weather con-ditions, however, tiny cracks may develop on the surface of the film and eventually deepen to the wood below. Through these cracks spores of decay-causing fungi may enter the tree.

To protect the tree, a new coat of wound dressing may be needed at intervals of six to eight months while the wound is healing.

THE AUSTRALIAN Brush Cherry, also listed as Eugenia mytifolia, is an excellent shrub and anchor foundation planting for our mild climate. Its bronze foliage is sprinkled liberally with purple "cherries," which are edible, but no great taste treat. Eugenia can also be used as a screen or a clipped hedge. Don't Let Your Lawn Turn An Unsightly Brown

The difference between a beautiful green lawn and an ugly carpet of brown each sum-mer is only a matter of time—the time you give toward keep-ing it green.

Surprisingly, this can be only a matter of minutes which is small enough concession for what many consider to be the summer garden's most valuable asset.

IF YOUR LAWN is compacted from over use during wet weath-er this initial effort can best be made in aerating it. A hollow-tined aerator can be obtained. Or you can use an ordinary pitchfork to aerate a lawn with, but this method is far less satis-factory than using an aerator with hollow tines, since the lat-ter actually removes a small core of earth, giving grass roots more room to breathe and water more chance to penetrate.

Aeration alone will help a lawn green up, but aeration combined with a raked-on appli-cation of steer manure and/or one of the commercial soil con-ditioners will give a longer-lasting effect. Rake these on with a sweeping motion to insure that they are worked into the holes left by the aerator, then water them in well, wait a week and start a monthly program of light fertilizing.

With lawns that are already conditioned and need no aera-tion, start the monthly feeding schedule now if you have neg-lected it to this late date. And start watering programs which insure regular soakings.

MORE LAWNS succumb from irregular and inadequate water-ing than from any other cause.

Insect pests are less of a problem than imperfect water-ing. They do show up in the form of lawn moths, grubs and occasionally other garden ene-mies, however. Look for un-explained brown areas on an otherwise healthy lawn and if they show up lawn moths won't be far behind. Consult a nursery-man about the remedy.

THE WIDE double gate provides an inviting entrance to the private courtyard at the Belvedere home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lazio. The gate also serves as the front door, since it cannot be opened from the street side. The fence is built of one-by-two redwood pickets stained to match the buff color of the residence. Inside are twisted juniper and nandina to relieve the straight lines. Katy and Paul Steinmetz, landscape architects, are the designers. (Photo by Ken Molino)

The Lowly Dandelion Has Uses

You probably feel as unimpressed as most people do about the dandelion, but let's be honorable about the pest and give it its due.

The dandelion has its utilitarian side.

The yellow petals are used to concoct a tasty wine. The young green leaves may be eaten as you do spinach. In some places the roots are used as a substitute for coffee.

And some folks will tell you the roots will ease indigestion.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Water newly planted trees and shrubs thoroughly at this time to help them off to a good start in your garden.
- Set out tuberous begonias in shaded areas for summer-fall bloom. They will stand some sun.
- Feed azaleas and camellias lightly once a month during their spring-summer growth cycle. Keep them moist during warm weather to insure bud set.
- Pinch out the tops of new annuals to encourage bushier growth and more bloom later on.
- New chrysanthemums may still be planted from nursery pots. Larger plants in full bloom at your nursery may be enjoyed now, then cut back and watered for bloom again this fall.

For Plant That Requires Little Care, Try Bromeliad

If you've never tried Bromeliads, you have a treat in store.

Because they are accustomed to growing in tree crotches, etc., they need very little care. They will grow in fern root, leafmold and sand, or on tree-fern totem poles with ease. Just see that the cups formed at the bases of the leaves are kept full of water.

There are many kinds, large and small, plain-leaved and zebra-like and bear vividly colored flowers of red, blue, yellow and white, alone or in combination.

Besides watering, feed these or any house plants occasionally —those that are not resting—according to the instructions on your houseplant food package. If they get a little buggy use any house plant spray, and keep the soil loosened up with one of the handy little multi-purpose hand potting tools designed especially for house plant care.

"Why Did Oil Stain Permanent Press Pants?"

You bring up a subject which is important in the industry today. So-called "permanent press" is widely accepted. We find it in garments of all types. It has merit, but it, also, has weak points.

While some soil can be removed easily from "permanent press" fabrics, oils and oily soil cannot. The reason is that "permanent press" cottons are really not all cotton. In fact, they are actually 65% polyester fiber and polyester fibers are "oil-loving." While oily soil stays on the surface of cotton fibers, it penetrates to the interior of polyesters, and resists all efforts to wash it out. Therefore oil stains easily form on "permanent press" fabrics. They require professional care for their removal. After the oil soil has been removed by your cleaner, the garment may not need finishing, but removing oily soil from "permanent press" garments does require professional care.
